AT LAST — A plot of survey of land to be used for a swimming pool was finally conveyed by the Wood Dale Village Council to the Wood Dale Park District, clearing the way for final planning on the project. Park board members Dr. John Parkinson and Mrs. Josephine Kuffel, left, study the plot with council members Hilbert Gehrke and Dino Janis.

McDowell Rebukes Pool Pressures

Strong rebuttal to comments by Wood Dale Village Council members to the Wood Dale Park District was issued Tuesday night by William McDowell, park board president.

He said his board would not be "pressured" by any "one person, one group or one governmental body," particularly on the issue of a community swimming pool.

The reference apparently was directed to Councilman Dino Janis, although McDowell did not mention any names.

Last Thursday, the park board was under the verbal gun of Janis about the pool, in which the village has a $220,000 stake.

"WE HAVE AN obligation to 14,000 people living in an area twice the size of the village," McDowell said Tuesday. "We have gone all out to represent our people."

During recent months, he added, the park board has conducted exhaustive studies of swimming pools and pool architects. He said there have been 35 meetings of the park board on the topic.

"We haven't delayed the project at all," he said, in an apparent reference to charges by the village that the park district has been dragging its heels.

"In the past three months, we have evolved a good concept for building a pool, new and different, which will save a considerable sum of money," the board president said.

"THIS BOARD won't make hasty decisions or be pressured into quick decisions to satisfy any one person, group or governmental body," McDowell asserted.

He added that "my board has been criticized because of a commissioner making a statement about a referendum. No park commissioner has ever made such a statement to the council," he said, "and it's not fair to criticize without the facts."

That was apparent reference to comments by Janis that a park board member who was not named, allegedly said that funds provided by the park district for the pool project would come from a $500,000 bond issue referendum.

With that, McDowell said that from the 35 meetings held on the topic of the pool, "we have found an architectural firm to suit our needs."

HE THEN ASKED the board to retain the firm of Laz and Edwards, of Champaign, Ill., to design the pool. The board concurred.

"The reason for hiring this firm is that their ideas and thoughts are the same as ours. We communicate well, and that's the basic ingredient to a good project," McDowell said.

He noted that of the architects sought, the Laz and Edwards firm will cost $17,000 less than the highest applicant.

Park board officials noted that it is not required to obtain bids on professional aides such as architects or attorneys.

"THE RESULT OF this," McDowell said "is that the park district is getting enormous savings right at the start."

The board also outlined several proposed ideas which would eliminate the need for a general contractor, and result in more favorable bidding. Though not yet accepted as final, the proposals provide for "open space bidding" on the pool.

Laz and Edwards would design the bathhouse and related facilities, and prepare rough specifications for the pool.

"It would then be up to the bidders to submit a design, saving us architectural fees," McDowell added.

McDOWELL ADDED, "We are not in a position to build an indoor pool. We'd be cheating ourselves on land acquisition and development of parks."

He added however, that the pool will be constructed in such a way to permit the installation of a bubble-type cover at some time in the future. This would result in an indoor facility for use during winter months.

The park board president added that a comment attributed to him regarding bidding was not correct.

"We won't have bids in 30 to 45 days," he said. "We should have preliminary plans finished by then, with bidding probably taking place in January."

McDOWELL ALSO directed that the board meet informally for the next six weeks on Thursday evenings to work on details of the plans and specifications with the architect.

Board meetings are held on the fourth Tuesday of the month, and village council sessions which have been the repeated scene of verbal attack on the park district are on Thursdays.

The result will be that park board members will go into virtual hibernation on the pool project until they are ready to seek construction bids.

Nottke Might Run for State Senate

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Wilbert H. Nottke, mayor of Itasca, said Wednesday he is "giving strong consideration" to opposing State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th District in the March Republican primary election.

In an exclusive interview, Nottke confirmed interest in running for the job. He has been meeting with precinct committeemen and other elected officials, sounding out the possibilities of challenging the Elmhurst conservative.

"I'd like to give it a real go if it's at all possible," Nottke said Wednesday, "but I haven't asked anyone for sponsorship."

Asked about the current split in DuPage Republican ranks, Nottke said that he is getting the impression that Knuepfer does not have strong support among either faction.

"I DON'T THINK I'll get the backing of Elmer Hoffman," Nottke said. Hoffman is the chairman of the GOP County Central Committee, and in years past it was Hoffman's stamp of approval that usually led to a position on the ballot.

Times change, however, and Hoffman is currently being challenged by a group known as "The Young Turks" for county political leadership.

That group includes Congressman John Erlenborn, State Sen. Harris Fawell, R-10th Dist., and State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

While Knuepfer is listed as an Erlenborn supporter, Nottke said he believed it was in name only.

"I also have reason to believe that Knuepfer no longer has the support of York Township committeemen," Nottke said.

KNUEPFER WAS elected in 1966, defeating Democrat Michael Butler of Oak Brook, who recently gained fame for being the producer of the Broadway musical "Hair."

As to position on major state issues, Nottke told the Register that he strongly supports tax reform, increased home rule, improved state recreation areas, judicial reform, consolidation of the state's 6,300 taxing districts, increased aid to senior citizens, and a full-time general assembly.

"I completely support Gov. Richard Ogilvie and his program," Nottke said. "Under that program, more has been done for municipalities and home rule than ever before."

Nottke pointed out that he has 11 years of experience in government. In addition to being a full-time mayor of Itasca, he is president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference, actively involved in the Illinois Municipal League and the National League of Cities.

THE MAYOR WHO is independently wealthy, finds his outside income to be an advantage in that it provides valuable time for governmental work.

Asked why he was interested in seeking a state office, Nottke said that he has long had an interest in state government. "I'm not getting any younger," he said, "so I figured this would be the best time as any."

Nottke said that he began giving the idea consideration "about a month ago" and has since formed up serious intent of seeking the position.

The mayor, however, did not formally announce that he would run, citing time between now and the filing deadline of Dec. 15.

He said he has not yet obtained petitions to get on the March 17 primary ballot.

Praise Addison Schools

Addison schools recently received a high grade by state educational inspectors who visited the school district early last month.

A report was received this week from the Office of Ray Page, superintendent of public instruction. The two-day visitation report, together with the district's annual application for recognition and the recommendation of Merrill Gates, DuPage County superintendent of schools, will be considered in determining the status of the district by Page.

THE REPORT COMMENDED all aspects of the school system from the superintendent, Dr. Lester Przewlocki, to the janitorial service and most of the facilities. Constructive criticism was also contained as suggestions for even further rising of educational standards.

In the administration and supervision section, the investigating team said the administrative physical facilities were not adequate. An administrative building should be planned and considered, the report urged.

Warren D. Kuster, author of the report, said Indian Trail Junior High School should have an assistant principal as soon as a qualified person could be found.

THE DISTRICT HAS an assessed valuation of $97,489,000 or slightly less than $18,000 per student. Although, the assessed valuation has increased each year, so has the student population resulting in a per student valuation fairly constant. The educational rate is $1.54, and the building rate is 25 cents per hundred dollars of assessed valuation.

It was necessary to borrow $450,000 last year. Increased state aid may reduce the district's debt somewhat this year but with the per capita cost estimated at $100 more this year than last, it appears that deficit financing will need to be continued.

THE JUNIOR HIGH school of seventh and eighth grades, the report said, with over 1,000 students is overcrowded. As a result, the students' schedules are staggered, however, all students are in school more than five hours a day.

Junior high school activities are somewhat limited, the report said, and consist of student council, sports, choral and band activities. When another junior high school is available (possibly within the next three years), club programs should be considered, it said.

Other junior high school problems were the lack of bulletin boards and the lack of storage space.

Kuster saw a lack of personnel in the school libraries as one of the weaknesses, and said a district library coordinator with a library clerk in each library were needed.

THE NUMBER OF school buildings has increased from one in 1949 to nine at present. The enrollment has increased from about 300 in 1953 to 5,365 in 1968. Presently, this year's enrollment increased 400 over 1968. Several mobile classrooms are being used and point to the need for additional room construction.

Buildings were found in generally satisfactory to excellent condition. The Oak School, the oldest at 20-year-old, is undergoing renovations to comply with the state's life safety code. The two classrooms in the basement of this building were found undesirable when students must remain in them all day.

The Ardmore School has some incandescent lighting which the school board of education said recently will be replaced with more modern lighting.

THE LINCOLN AND Lake Park Manor schools need further landscaping and hard-surfaced areas, Kuster said.

The final recommendations were:

—An administrative center should be provided.

—An assistant principal should be hired for the junior high school.

—Curriculum guides should be developed.

—A district library coordinator should be hired along with a library clerk in each of the grade schools rather than volunteers.

—Libraries and the school learning centers should be arranged to be near each other for better use.

—ALL OF THE children should be given physical education every day or health. The middle grades are falling far short of this requirement, Kuster said, and the primary grades are only partially meeting the requirement.

—The board of education should continue hiring special teachers in art, music, and physical education.

—Plans should be made to comply with the school lunch law by the required 1970 deadline.

Gordon Seminary Names Alumnus

At a recent annual alumni homecoming banquet at Gordon College and Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, Joseph Bedell Bubar of 120 E. Nakoma Ave., Addison, was honored as the "Gordon Alumnus of the Year."

This award is given each year to an outstanding graduate who has been an alumnus for at least 10 years and who shows doctrinal faithfulness, service to the Lord, and consistent sympathy with and support of Gordon's standards.

Bubar earned a bachelor of arts degree at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, and a bachelor of divinity degree at Gordon Divinity School. After being graduated from Gordon he pastored the Highland Baptist Church in Fitchburg, Mass. while acting as the New England representative for Christian Service Brigade (CSB) and director of Brigade Camp.

Five years later the board of directors of CSB asked Bubar to be general director at the international headquarters in Chicago. He served in that capacity until this past June.

May Send Messages

Families with relatives in the service will be able to send free messages to the servicemen thanks to the efforts of the Military Affiliated Radio System. (MARS)

John Petrikas of 122 N. Elmwood in Wood Dale has announced that all families of servicemen may call at 760-0320 to leave messages which will be transmitted either in the states or overseas. Petrikas said the service is always available but is especially important during the holiday season.

The service is strictly on a volunteer basis, with amateur radio operators donating time to the project.

Girls to Play Basketball

Addison girls in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades will be able to play basketball this winter through the Addison Parks and Recreation Department program offered free of charge.

Registration is regular recreation office hours from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30-5:30 p.m. in the village hall Monday through Friday.

The program starts Nov. 22 and runs through March 15 at Indian Trail Junior High School. Plans are to organize a four-team league with men and women coaches. The meeting will be at 6:30 p.m.

It is open to both public and parochial school children. Fundamentals will be taught to participants.

Proper attire for those playing will be shorts or slacks, sweat shirt and tennis shoes. All girls must wear tennis shoes when playing on the gym floor. Locker room facilities will not be available during the program.

There will be two games each evening with the first one starting at 6:30 p.m. and the second at 7:30 p.m.

It was necessary to borrow $450,000 last year. Increased state aid may reduce the district's debt somewhat this year but with the per capita cost estimated at $100 more this year than last, it appears that deficit financing will need to be continued.

THE JUNIOR HIGH school of seventh and eighth grades, the report said, with over 1,000 students is overcrowded. As a result, the students' schedules are staggered, however, all students are in school more than five hours a day.

Junior high school activities are somewhat limited, the report said, and consist of student council, sports, choral and band activities. When another junior high school is available (possibly within the next three years), club programs should be considered, it said.

Other junior high school problems were the lack of bulletin boards and the lack of storage space.

Kuster saw a lack of personnel in the school libraries as one of the weaknesses, and said a district library coordinator with a library clerk in each library were needed.

THE NUMBER OF school buildings has increased from one in 1949 to nine at present. The enrollment has increased from about 300 in 1953 to 5,365 in 1969. Presently, this year's enrollment increased 400 over 1968. Several mobile classrooms are being used and point to the need for additional room construction.

Buildings were found in generally satisfactory to excellent condition. The Oak School, the oldest at 20-year-old, is undergoing renovations to comply with the state's life safety code. The two classrooms in the basement of this building were found undesirable when students must remain in them all day.

The Ardmore School has some incandescent lighting which the school board of education said recently will be replaced with more modern lighting.

THE LINCOLN AND Lake Park Manor schools need further landscaping and hard-surfaced areas, Kuster said.

The final recommendations were:

—An administrative center should be provided.

—An assistant principal should be hired for the junior high school.

—Curriculum guides should be developed.

—A district library coordinator should be hired along with a library clerk in each of the grade schools rather than volunteers.

—Libraries and the school learning centers should be arranged to be near each other for better use.

ALL OF THE children should be given physical education every day or health. The middle grades are falling far short of this requirement, Kuster said, and the primary grades are only partially meeting the requirement.

—The board of education should continue hiring special teachers in art, music, and physical education.

—Plans should be made to comply with the school lunch law by the required 1970 deadline.

Gordon Seminary Names Alumnus

At a recent annual alumni homecoming banquet at Gordon College and Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, Joseph Bedell Bubar of 120 E. Natoma Ave., Addison, was honored as the "Gordon Alumnus of the Year."

This award is given each year to an outstanding graduate who has been an alumnus for at least 10 years and who shows doctrinal faithfulness, service to the Lord, and consistent sympathy with and support of Gordon's standards.

Bubar earned a bachelor of arts degree at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, and a bachelor of divinity degree at Gordon Divinity School. After being graduated from Gordon he pastored the Highland Baptist Church in Fitchburg, Mass. while acting as the New England representative for Christian Service Brigade (CSB) and director of Brigade Camp.

Julian Appointed Building Commissioner

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ
Bloomington's village board, acting on the recommendation of the building, planning and zoning committee, appointed Joseph Julian building commissioner for a 30-day trial period at its meeting Wednesday.

The appointment was effective immediately.

Julian, was recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the job in May. The appointment was placed in committee for approval.

Since June both Julian and August Fessler, the former building commissioner, have been appointed for 30 day periods. Fessler as the building commissioner was receiving $800 a month and Julian as assistant commissioner was receiving no salary.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT, the board accepted the committee's recommendation and appointed Julian as commissioner at a wage of $5 an hour, but not to exceed $800 for the month.

Julian is responsible for issuing all new building applications and for inspections on the permits issued after Nov. 12.

Fessler is being retained as inspector, responsible for all permits issued prior to the 12th.

"The arrangement creates an orderly transition," Meyers said.

He explained Fessler "was considering retiring and with the tremendous workload we needed a new man."

TRUSTEES ALSO voted to purchase a 1969 demonstration squad car for the police department for $2,375 which includes a trade-in on one of the 1968 cars.

Trustee J. Stewart May told the board both 1968 cars in the department were having electrical problems. The older of the two, and the one with more mileage was currently inoperative according to May. He advised the board to trade it in rather than attempt to repair it.

In other business the board referred to committee suggestion by Trustee Wallace Geils concerning correspondence to the state sanitary water board.

Geils wanted a resolution passed asking the sanitary water board to correspond directly with the board, and not any one member or village official. His intent was to "make a record of all actions so we don't get caught short on any decisions."

MRS. GRACE JACOBS, 101 First St., Bloomington, who applied for the position of village clerk in September appeared before the board, requesting a clarification of the procedure she was to follow.

The board informed Mrs. Jacobs she was expected to present a petition signed by no less than 5 per cent of the voters in the last general election to them.

To date there has been one petition presented to the board from Mrs. Fortune LoPresi.

A regular feature of the Wood Dale Village Council meetings has been a running attack on the ability of another and completely independent governmental unit:
the Wood Dale Park District, which in area is twice the size of the municipality.

Every other Thursday, a couple of commissioners take it upon themselves to demonstrate publicly an irresponsibility which amazes observers. They pull the cork out of the temper bottle and do their best to spray invective all over a group which takes its job more seriously than the village council apparently thinks.

WHEATHER IT IS out of jealousy for efficient, responsible government, or perhaps the ability to control oneself in public is a matter of debate.

Nonetheless, park board Pres. William McDowell and his fellow commissioners have been subjected to verbal abuse which reflects negatively in the village council.
Park officials keeping calm under childish fire reflect well on their very young governmental agency.

Much of the credit has to go to McDowell, who has been quietly giving the indication — and properly so — that the park board is not a committee of the village council.

This week, McDowell laid it out for all to see. Reporting on the latest encounter, he said simply that the park district will not be pressured by "one person, one group or one governmental body" in the conduct of its responsibilities to 14,000 people.

THE ISSUE AT STAKE is a community swimming pool, in which the council would like a piece of the action. Progress hasn't been as rapid as the council would like, for two reasons: the park district couldn't legally take action in some respects until the village council provided information it obligated itself to supply, and the park district has been working hard on the necessary groundwork.

Ripped for not yet having an architect last Thursday, the park board hired one Tuesday after 35 meetings to study a variety of swimming pool options and to interview potential architects.

It seems curious for the village council to rap the knuckles of the park district for taking its job seriously, particularly at the same time the council is opposing a county-wide sewage treatment plan without having done any research on the matter.

ON THIA' ISSUE, the complaint by the council was lack of information. Extensive discussion and research has been conducted by the DuPage Mayors and Manager's Conference, of which Wood Dale is a member but never seems to attend.

It is curious, too, to attack the park district for alleged dragging of heels when the council can't even find a village administrator and exhibits a lack of decisivness in operating its own police department.

To harass a park district for not signing an incomplete swimming pool contract, is one thing, but for the village to delay executing its obligations on that contract provides poor rationalization for complaint.

A lot of people are beginning to think that Wood Dale's swimming pool would be well along the road of progress if the park district was completely in charge of the operation. The die of legality, however, has already been cast. A contract is the only way in which a pool can be built by the park district and the village council.

WHAT'S BEEN DONE? Wood Dale's young park board has taken the time and effort to become expert in swimming pool planning. The council, therefore, can and should bury the intergovernmental hatchet by leaving the park district alone and permitting the job to get done quickly.

Perhaps with the strain of recreational business removed from its agenda, the village council can turn proper attention to municipal business.

Run 'Low-Key Campaign

"Low-key" is the phrase used most frequently to describe the current campaign to pass a 25-cent educational fund tax rate increase for Dist. 160, Fenton High School.

Unlike last spring's campaign, there is no formal citizens committee with chairman. An interested group of Wood Dale and Bensenville residents met this week with school board members, students and a representative of the Fenton teachers. Also at the meeting was Fred Burnham of the Illinois School Consulting Service.

The referendum date is Dec. 2 and the committee decided a major door-to-door campaign was impossible due to a lack of time. A telephone campaign will be conducted instead, urging residents to get out and vote on that day.

REPRESENTATIVES OF Bensenville include Mrs. Richard Diegnau, Mrs. Ben Gittner and Mrs. Harold Marshall. Those from Wood Dale include Mrs. Chester Molinda, Mrs. Jack Krass and Mrs. Dorothy Larson.

Teacher representative was Mrs. Loe Buttermann and the Fenton student council was represented by officers Kent Novalny and Diane Rubiano.

The group was also told a letter will be sent out soon to all parents of children in Dist. 160 signed by members of the board of education. The purpose of the letter is "to define the nature of the referendum," according to school board members.

The Fenton student council held a special session yesterday to decide how they will show their support for the referendum. Ideas included letters to residents, newspapers and volunteer work at election headquarters on election day.

THIS WILL BE the third attempt in one year to pass the educational fund increase.

Efforts in February and June were defeated. Fenton High School is currently under a curtailed program due to lack of funds. There is also a projected deficit of $700,000 by June 1970 in the educational fund.

The educational fund is all money spent for salaries and classroom materials. A major portion of the fund is used to pay teachers' salaries. It is expected that Fenton teachers will make another request this year for a pay raise.

Board president James DiOrio has stated that if the referendum is passed, the board will work to reinstate many of the curtailments and attempt to reduce the deficit. There are also certain areas of the curriculum which must be expanded next year if Fenton is to keep up with standards of other schools, DiOrio said. He mentioned a proposed electronics course as an example.

Seek Help in Murder Case

DuPage County Sheriff's police have appealed to the public to be on the alert for a suspect in the Nov. 2 murder of a woman north of Wood Dale.

The body of Mrs. Mary M. Veltum, 45, of 500 Touhy Ave., north of Bensenville, was found in the back seat of her car parked near Joe's Elk Colonial Inn, Wood Dale and Thorndale roads.

Detective Edward Ley said the suspect is believed to be 40 to 45-years-old, 5 feet 9 inches tall and about 175 pounds.

A well-built man, possibly a construction worker, he may have had the nickname of "Mick" or "Mickey." Ley said the suspect may be of Italian descent.

Judging by the blows to Mrs. Veltum's head (which caused two fractures), police have theorized that the killer suspect may be a karate or judo expert.

The suspect would have had to be an expert to have killed her with his hands, Ley said.

Ley said the suspect knew the woman. He was seen dancing with her in the tavern the night of the killing, according to witnesses. The woman left the tavern before closing at 2 a.m. and her body was discovered by Wood Dale police on patrol at about 5 a.m.

Police believe the woman was killed in the area and dragged to her car and placed on the floor in the back seat.

Because the woman formerly lived in Des Plaines, police are looking in both DuPage and Cook counties for the killer.

Persons with information should contact the police, either in their village or at the county sheriff's office in Wheaton, Ley said.

Principals To Meet

DuPage Elementary Principals' Association will meet at the Holiday Inn on Roosevelt Road, on Nov. 19.

A panel presentation on teacher aides will be the program for the meeting.

Members of the panel include Robert Grant from the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Springfield; Doris Frank, College of DuPage; Mrs. Arlene Chval, a teacher from Hinsdale and two teachers from Downers Grove, Arlene Logston and Jan Neckrosh.

Grant will present the legal ramifications, Miss Frank will speak on the training and the teachers will discuss their experiences in using aides.

2 in Intensive Care After Crash

Two men are in the intensive care unit of St. Alexius hospital following a car accident near Itasca early Wednesday in which a third man from Hoffman Estates escaped serious injury.

Alvaro Caraballo, 33, of 388 Glenlake, Hoffman Estates, suffered minor head wounds when the car he was driving crashed head-on into one driven by William Haney, age unknown, of Davenport, Iowa.

Haney and his passenger, Jon E. Goodrich, 24, of Evanston, are in satisfactory condition at the hospital. Haney suffered multiple fractures and cuts. Goodrich suffered cuts and a head injury.

Caraballo was treated and released from the hospital Wednesday.

ACCORDING TO DuPage County Sheriff's deputies, Caraballo was reportedly driving on the wrong side of the road on Route 53 near Irving Park Road at about 1:45 a.m. when the accident occurred.

No charges have been made pending further statements from those involved, police said.

Both cars were termed total losses and towed to a nearby service station.

Book Fines Increased

Fines for overdue books at the Roselle Public Library were increased for adults from two to five cents per book per day as approved by the library board last month.

Accelerator Has Advanced

Installation completion of the main atomic accelerator components is six months ahead of schedule at the National Accelerator Lab (NAL) at Weston.

The completion time has been moved up from Jan. 1, 1972, to July 1, 1971. Energy will be available from the atom booster in April, 1971, according to latest predictions.

The NAL is funded on a month to month basis. Over $9 million was received last month and about $7.4 million was received in September. The total project cost is estimated at $300 million.

Reports indicate the construction will be affected by President Richard Nixon's program of slowing down conventional construction since part of the project is below-ground. A major contract for conventional construction will be let in at the end of next year for underground portion of the main accelerator.

AN INFORMAL groundbreaking for the main accelerator was held early last month. The accelerator's enclosure will cover an area approximately four miles in circumference and over one mile in diameter on the 6,800 acre NAL site.

A $3,428,917 contract was awarded to Schlusser-Madden Co., Inc. of Batavia for Phase I of the accelerator. It covers about 12 per cent of the main work.

A site manager was recently hired for the NAL site which covers land in both DuPage and Kane Counties. Rudolph Dorner, formerly head of planning and development for the State of Illinois Department of Conservation, will be responsible for general management of development of pasture land and recreational areas. Maintenance of the roads and grounds will also take up part of his time.

Aid Noise Costs

Costs of mailing letters, minutes of meetings, telephone calls and other activities directed to some 19 communities which comprise the Greater O'Hare Noise Abatement Council, has reached the point where the village of Wood Dale has authorized a payment of $200 as its local share to cover expenses.

With allocation of the funds, Wood Dale village officials feel the council should operate on its own and pay its way in communicating to its membership and elected representatives at the state and national level.

FOR THE past year Wood Dale has borne the cost and reimbursed council chairman George Franks where expenditures have accrued. But now the village thinks it is time for the other communities on the noise abatement council to help share the cost and for the group to perhaps give approval for employment of a secretary to fill the gap.

"We have been carrying the load," one commissioner noted at last week's meeting of the village council.

He did not suggest what specific amount should be appropriated by each municipality to help further the cause of the noise abatement council, but it was pointed out that the council "should function on its own."

The recommendation was made by Ralph Madonna, Wood Dale commissioner, who was one of the principals who attended the Washington conference recently with Bensenville Pres. John Varble.

Don Bauer Heads Hockey Program

Bensenville's Park District has announced that Don Bauer of 202 E. Lincoln will head this year's hockey program. Bauer was assistant instructor last season and now coaches the Bensenville Blades at the Polar Dome.

The park district has three rinks and hopes to run the program in three leagues. The Midgets will be 9-11 years old, juveniles 12-14 and juniors 15-17. All will be under the direction of Bauer.

A $2 fee for residents and a $3 fee for nonresidents will be charged to help defray expenses and maintenance of the rink and provide supervision.

A STARTING DATE is difficult to project since there must be four days of continuously cold weather, at least 15 degrees above zero.

Registration begins Monday at the park district building located at 161 N. Church Road, opposite the village hall. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or registration forms available at the schools may be mailed. Registration closes Dec. 12.

Tentative plans call for Saturday practices with the Midgets from 10 a.m. to noon, the juveniles from 1 to 3 p.m. and the juniors from 10 a.m. to noon.

Boys must furnish their own skates, mouthguards and hockey sticks. Figure skates may be used but hockey skates should be purchased as the season progresses. Helmets and goalie equipment be provided by the Park District.

For further information call the Bensenville Park District at 766-4334.

Succeeds Despite Sanctions

by ERICK VANEES

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—It is four years this Tuesday since Rhodesia enunciated the American colonies and made a unilateral declaration of independence from Britain.

If most of the rest of the world had its way, Rhodesia by now would be legally independent under the name of Zimbabwe and ruled by its African majority.

Instead, four years after, Rhodesia remains firmly under the rule of a white minority government regarded as illegal by Britain and the United Nations, and is defiantly and apparently successfully making its way in the face of world economic sanctions.

THE U.N. SANCTIONS voted by the Security Council in May, 1966, while posing many difficult problems, have not to date bitten very hard and circumventing them has become a national preoccupation as well as a challenge.

For one thing the government allocates foreign exchange quotas to business and industry, foreign exchange being one of the hardest things to come by in the present situation. And getting foreign exchange for business requirements is part of the game of circumvention.

A Salisbury businessman explained the approach: "When I sell my goods overseas I'm doing something illegal. When I buy overseas I break the law. If I don't get the foreign exchange I need to buy the goods I need to carry on my business here, then I have to make a plan, don't I?"

Most Rhodesians doing business have "made a plan" one way or another. Their success may be deceptive, but surface they seem to be thriving.

THIS AUTUMN Salisbury is a flower-filled, clean-looking capital city of 390,000 persons—97,700 whites and the rest African, Asian or people of mixed blood known here as "coloreds."

Purple jacaranda trees line the streets, littering the pavements with a fragrant carpet of flowers which pop and slither underfoot. Traffic islands in the center of the wide roads sprout shade-giving palm trees, yellow mimosa and pink roses. In the pre-rainy season heat the girls are mini-skirted as anywhere, the men in tropicals and shirtsleeves.

If the look of economic well being is a puzzle, the puzzle extends to the experts. Prof. Paul Harris, head of the department of political science at the University College of Rhodesia, voiced the puzzle when he said:

"THE RHODESIAN economy is the graveyard of the prediction of economists. Rhodesia is the questionmark of southern Africa. There are so many imponderables ahead for the country it is not possible to speculate for more than a few years ahead."

If an observer digs too deeply or asks too many questions on how the economy functions, he courts trouble. Legislation passed in September cracked down on economic "spying." Fines of up to 1,000 pounds ($2,600) or two years imprisonment can be imposed on anyone found guilty of divulging information which might help the implementation of sanctions, or anyone who reveals how sanctions are bypassed.

With Christmas nearing, stores are full, money seems plentiful. Gasoline, though still rationed, is in such generous supply the government plans to do something about air pollution from car exhausts. Visitors are surprised to see the many new foreign cars on the roads. Ask an owner how he got his and the answer is apt to be a laugh or a smile, without comment.

Security Policeman

U. S. Air Force Airman 1C Lester E. Stevens Jr., son of Lester E. Stevens Sr. of 115 N. Pine, Arlington Heights, is on duty at Tan Son Nhut AB, Vietnam.

Airman Stevens, a security policeman, is assigned to the 377th Security Police Squadron, a unit of the Pacific Air Forces, headquarters for air operations in Southeast Asia, the Far East and Pacific area.

The airman, who previously served at McChord AFB, Wash., is a 1966 graduate of Arlington High School.

His mother, Mrs. Ono Sperry, lives at 2300 Algonquin Parkway, Rolling Meadows.

Parts, however, are a problem—almost impossible to obtain.

POLITICALLY, the impasse with Britain—which demands majority, meaning African, rule before it will grant independence—shows no sign of imminent solution.

This year the government of Premier Ian Smith moved further along the road. Decisions were made for the country to become a republic sometime in 1970, for a new constitution, and for 1970 elections on a date not yet set.

BILL HANDS, Chicago Cubs pitcher, signs an autograph for third grader Doug Soukup of Madinah South after speaking at the Madinah PTO's "Family Sports Night." Hands entertained a crowd of over 100 youngsters with tales of life among the "hometown" baseball stars.

Bill Hands Tells Cub Tales

by GARY ZACNY

The "Family Sports Night" sponsored by the Madinah Parent Teacher Organization last Tuesday was a boisterous success.

The program for the night centered on Bill Hands, ace pitcher for the Chicago Cubs and speaker for the evening.

One can imagine Hands' reaction as he surveyed his audience: a score of harried parents, a sprinkling of teachers and a mob of over 100 children. Kids of all dimensions thronged the Lake Park High School auditorium — toddlers to pre-teens, towheads to ponytails, giggling and fidgeting with anticipation.

HANDS HAD THE audience in the palm of his hand. He delivered a long, chatty speech, full of salty anecdotes about life among the Chicago Cubs, the idiosyncrasies of Leo Durocher and the very real problems of a professional athlete.

More than once, Hands commented on the disappointing season of the Cubs.

"I don't know what happened," Hands said. "During the first half of the season, we won a lot of close games. It seemed like we had everything going for us; we just knew this was our year."

"But in the last half of the season, the tables turned. The Mets got all the breaks, and we couldn't pull out of it."

HANDS PRAISED the Cub fans for the support they gave the team, and he apologized for Chicago's dismal finish. He said the newspapers were "unfair" in their appraisal of the slump. The stories about "outside business interests" and "over-confidence" were absolutely mistaken, he said.

"A lot of us spent weeks after the season getting headaches, worrying about what went wrong. When we started losing, it felt like I had an ulcer. I don't, but I felt that bad."

Hands prosed the parents for bringing their children to the talk. He urged the youngsters to participate in sports and he recommended parents concentrate on the healthful, rather than the glamorous, aspects of children's sports.

HE TRACED HIS own sports career, through little leagues, school sports and minor league training. During the question and answer period following his address, he described 1969 as the best of the four seasons he has spent in the majors.

Hands was the only consistent ball player on the Cubs staff. He collected five of the seven or so victories the Cubs won in September. But he seemed more concerned about the team's upset than his personal success.

Hands delighted the audience by ad libbing jokes in answer to their questions. He answered questions about Ernie Banks and other Cub stars, and he described his own life, on and off the field.

"I think I should tell you I broke a record in 1968," he said. "I broke Sandy Koufax's old record. I struck out 14 times in a row."

Off the Register Record

by "HEC"

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

The members of the county board threw the book at one another at their Wednesday session. They enjoyed a field day of setting up numerous straw issues and gloated with delight when they scored direct hits.

What it appeared to amount to was an effort to settle some old scores and perhaps some new ones too as committee chairman made reports.

But there were some solid matters handled though, especially on the new budget. An emergency appropriation calling for the transfer of $3,500 to hire an outside accounting firm to get the budget in shape was beaten down by an 18-9 vote, 21 being required for approval.

The nine dissenters who agreed that the county auditor's office was there to provide this service were: Nichols, Savaiano, Swegler, Wall, Weeks, Demme, James, Koebelman and Kohler.

MRS. ANGE MANHKE, Milton Township is chairman of the finance committee. She warned the board that the budget had to be approved by Dec. 1.

But Gerald Weeks, a former finance chairman, reminded the board that he was getting the same type of service in the Milton Township office for $10 per hour. He said this was the first time the finance committee was late with the budget and asked for outside help.

Pat Savaiano, Bloomington Township, wondered whether any outsiders would have the "expertise" required to put together the complicated DuPage County 1969-70 budget in a matter of a few days.

Jack Wall, from the same township wanted to know why the county auditor's office was not being used.

"HAS THE AUDITOR refused?" Wall inquired.

"We have not had his services although he was invited," Mrs. Manhke answered.

But Ray Haas, Milton Township, took a less challenging view about this budget situation. He looked at it this way:

"It's late and we do not have the budget ready. I don't know why. But we're in need of immediate help to get it ready in time."

Savaiano in defense of the county auditor pointed out that "the feeling should not be conveyed that the auditor has not been present."

"I MUST TAKE exception to Mr. Savaiano's remarks," Pat Riedy, Lisle Township, replied as he briskly took the floor. "He has not been present when needed."

Savaiano countered with the law not requiring the auditor to attend finance committee meetings. This led to a discussion of what the law required of the auditor.

As Robert Scott, the board's legal adviser, once said, in a jiffy "every member of the county board considers himself an attorney-at-law."

Several on the board concluded that personality conflicts were a big part of the trouble for this lack of cooperation. The county chairman announced that a public hearing on the budget would be held Nov. 24 and adoption of the proposed budget would be considered Dec. 1.

The red-hot issue of the day which brought comments from many aroused members who were cognizant of the presence of the county press was a big DuPage Airport construction job. The multiple issue was a "partial permit," fire protection, water for it and whether the county was in fact authorizing itself to violate its own building code.

AT FIRST IT appeared that the foundation of the new building was being laid by a contractor before a building permit had been issued. A second criticism was that the specifications called for the installation of a sprinkling system without providing any water for it. It would cost money to get water but no one had given it any consideration.

Again Weeks warned: "When you lease a property you'd better be sure it can be used for the purpose intended. We are in default."

Paul Droege Mueller, Addison Township, chairman of the building committee explained that a partial permit had been issued by a vote of 2-1 and board members gasped. He said the sprinkler system was not in the plans.

"How can we issue building permits in violation of our building code?" LeRoy James, Downers Grove Township wanted to know.

"WHAT'S A PARTIAL permit?" Jack wall asked. "We're in for a lawsuit," he warned, "all must abide by the same rule."

James moved that no building permit be issued that did not meet the requirements of the county building code. James Kohler, York Township, challenged this motion by moving to table it. It was tabled by a vote of 12-11.

Droege Mueller explained that nothing was being done but laying the foundation. No building permit would be issued until all requirements are met and the construction would not start until 1970.

As for the water, John Earl explained that the building would be of metal construction and water would be useless in case of fire. Chemical apparatus will be used, he said.

County chairman announced that no building permits had been issued so there was no violation.

"What do we do now?" Pat Riedy inquired.

"Adjourn for lunch," was James Kohler's response. It was 12 o'clock noon on the button.

Enrollment Causes Trouble

A large increase in enrollment next year will confront Addison Trail High School with a difficult problem, according to annual report on projected enrollments prepared by the Community High School District 88 administration.

The report, based on figures from the elementary public and parochial schools that send students to the Dist. 88 schools, forecasts the total enrollment of the district may be expected to increase from the 8,858 mark logged this fall to 9,368 in 1970-71 and 9,974 in 1971-72.

Of the three schools, Addison Trail will be the hardest hit by the enrollment growth, the report predicts. The school which is the newest of the Dist. 88 schools has a present capacity of approximately 2,000 but this year is housing 2,312 students. Next year, the enrollment is expected to shoot to 2,653.

THE DISTRICT administration recognizes that Addison Trail will find it very difficult to handle 2,653 pupils next year without resorting to double shifts.

The three schools are on split shift schedules, in which half the school enrollment starts and finishes its class day an hour ahead of the rest.

Double shift scheduling, on the other hand, divides the enrollment into separate morning and afternoon groups.

In double shifts, half the students would start school at about 6:45 a.m. and finish for the day at noon. The other half would start at 12:30 p.m. and stay until 5:45 p.m.

All the schools face overcrowding next year, the report said, but not to the extent as that of Addison Trail. York, with a capacity of 3,100, is expected to have its enrollment increased from 3,225 this year to 3,356 next fall. Willowbrook, whose capacity is also 3,100, will increase from 3,321 this year to 3,359 in 1970-71.

WILLOWBROOK, with its relocatable classrooms, and only a slight increase in enrollment, will be in better shape than either of the other schools.

Addison Trail may be able to alleviate the extremely crowded condition with the addition of one or two large relocatable classrooms, as Willowbrook is doing this year. Three non-class areas might also be equipped for industrial arts and home economics labs. The storage area under the auditorium and an emergency safety evacuation tunnel might be converted to vocational-technical shops. A general home economics classroom could be turned into a sewing laboratory.

These alternatives could stave off double shifts for 1970-71, the report said, but by 1971-72, if additional class space is not available, it would seem that double shifts in at least two of the schools will probably be inevitable.

If voters approve an $8.8 million bond issue in the Nov. 25 referendum, the district would enlarge Addison Trail to 3,000 and would expand and renovate Willowbrook to 4,000 and York to 3,500. The added facilities, which would make room for 2,300 more students, would not be ready until about September, 1971. Dist. 88 school officials have said.

ADDISON TRAIL was originally planned to handle an enrollment of 4,000. The first stage of construction, completed in 1965, provided the 2,000 capacity. The district's long-range plans call for two major additions in the next few years, provided money is available.

Willowbrook coped with its enrollment crisis this year by effecting two attendance area changes. The attendance area changes for this year were needed, district officials said, to keep Willowbrook from being forced into a double shift operation this year.

Next Week Is Book Week

BENSENVILLE COMMUNITY LIBRARY
by Shirley Moreth
Children's Librarian

Plans are under way at the Bensenville Community Public Library to observe the 50th anniversary of National Children's Book Week, Nov. 18-22.

The purpose of Book Week is to focus attention on the importance of good books for children. Books can play a vital part in the life of a growing child and Book Week emphasizes the value of bringing children and good books together.

Today's books for children are more interesting and attractive than ever. The day has passed when a children's book was a thinly disguised geography lesson or a moral tale designed solely to instruct. Present day books have vitality, honesty, imagination and subject matter that ranges from the practical to the fantastic.

IN ADDITION to the new children's books on display, the Bensenville Community Public Library invites all members of the community to view the sculpture exhibit that will be at the library from Nov. 21 to Dec. 12. The exhibit entitled "Illinois Sculptors," was secured through the services of the Illinois Arts Council.

The Illinois Arts Council, by sponsoring traveling exhibits, calls public attention to the work of professional artists living and working in Illinois. Not only do these exhibits encourage talented artists, but they give the people of Illinois an opportunity to become better acquainted with the art world of today and what our artists are doing.

Richard Hunt, the Chicago artist who is nationally recognized, was commissioned by the Council to assemble this show. He was assisted by an advisory committee consisting of Whitney Halsted of the Art Institute, Tracy Atkinson of the Milwaukee Art Center, and Ralph T. Coe of the William Rockhill Nelson Gallery, Kansas City.

ONE OF THE Illinois Arts Council's primary responsibilities is to bring art to the people of Illinois no matter what their geographic location may be. Thus, the visual arts program has been made available to banks, schools, libraries, shopping centers, factories and other non-traditional facilities around the state.

Seventeen pieces of sculpture will be exhibited at the Bensenville Community Library. The sculptors represented are Don Baum, Virginia Ferrari, Frank Gallo, Shirley Mann, Roy Schnackenberg and Mychajlo Urban.

Community residents have answered the call for "Sculpture Sliters" and will be on hand in the evening from 7 to 9 p.m. Children and young people will perform similar duties after school to aid the library staff.

The "Illinois Sculptors" exhibit will be open during regular library hours: Monday thru Thursday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Vets Entertained

Seventy Vietnam veterans from Great Lakes Naval Hospital were treated to a dinner and party Wednesday by Bensenville VFW Toga Post 2149 and the Ladies Auxiliary. The Veterans Day event was under the direction of Leland Scott Jr., vice-commander of the post and the dinner was supervised by Mrs. Dorothy Groebe.

The troops arrived at the post by bus at 6 p.m. and were served a pot-luck supper prepared by the auxiliary. Stewardesses from United Airlines attended the event and helped entertain the guests.

Entertainment for the evening included the Dorothy Brooks Trio from the carousel Restaurant at Arlington Park Race Track, the Countryside Chorus and singer Marian Miller.

DANCE MUSIC was provided by Ed Darcy and his band and the Toga Trio. If not the most professional, at least the zaniest entertainment of the evening were the Celestial Singers.

The Singers are a group composed of volunteers from the auxiliary who are members of a make-shift kazoo band.

Also present were the McCarthy sisters who are a guitar and singing group.

For those vets who couldn't make it to Bensenville, the auxiliary provided cake, cookies and fruit to be sent back to the hospital.

The dinner-dance is an annual event and all entertainment was donated to the VFW.

Democrats Set Open Meeting

The Addison Township Democratic Committee will have an open meeting Wednesday in the Bensenville Village Hall, Irving Park Road and Church Street at 8 p.m.

Philip Grisolia, township chairman, said this is one of the first public meetings for the group in a long time. People are being invited to attend regardless of their political leanings, he added.

In the meeting notice sent to Democratic committeemen and judges, Grisolia asked each to bring at least one friend despite political party affiliations.

"OUR SOLE CONCERN isn't which side a person voted on in the primary, but what is their interest in restoring true two-party government in DuPage County," he said.

Restoring the country to a two-party system means electing Democrats to office since nearly all of the elected and appointed public positions are held by persons who associate themselves with the Republican party.

THE ADDISON Democratic organization meets regularly on the third Wednesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the Bensenville Village hall.

For additional information call Robert Page at 323-8887 or write the general office care of Post Office Box 151, Wood Dale.

Itasca Community Library is at your service, but in order to be of service we would like to ask your cooperation. It would be a great help if you would take a few minutes to list — either the titles of books you'd like, or the type of book you're most interested in. I'm sure we disappoint many people who are looking for books that we don't have, but we have no way of knowing unless you let us know your wants.

If you don't have time to drop in, drop us a post card or give us a call.

If you have complaints, we'd like to hear about them. We are overcrowded. Doing research during the afternoons or evening is pretty difficult, but that's one problem we can not overcome at the moment. Anything else that displeases you we want to hear about.

DO YOU KNOW OF any special services that other libraries offer that you would like to see adopted by Itasca Community Library? If so let us know. We aim to please, but until we know how you feel, we just have to remain the same.

If you have a dog, or even if you don't, we think you will get a real kick out of "How to Raise a Dog in the City and in the Suburb" by James R. Kinney, VMD. I think this book will completely floor you. It certainly did me. The subject is serious, but it is written with so much humor that you'll love it even if you dislike dogs.

It is full of sage advice on keeping your beagle well, and covers all facets of dog care. Kinney writes so much like Robert Benchley that I found my eyes tearing from nostalgia. Another nostalgic note is the fact that this book is illustrated abundantly by James Thurber. Your dog will be forever grateful to you if you can work this into your reading program.

The Lighter Side

Live by Not Breathing

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reports submitted to the American Public Health Association this week provide new evidence that air pollution causes respiratory ailments and other maladies that sometimes prove fatal.

Maybe there are still some skeptics around, but I personally am now convinced beyond all doubt that breathing is hazardous to your health.

If such statistics were available, they probably would show that the rate of respiratory ailments among heavy breathers is 100 per cent greater than it is among nonbreathers.

Okay, then, why not quit breathing?

ever, you can cut down on your breathing. And it stands to reason that a light breather runs less risk than someone who is a chain breather.

Try skipping a breath at regular intervals with the aim of working up to the point where you are only breathing after meals. Anyone who does that will be a long way toward having the problem licked.

A year or so ago, I devised a series of shallow breathing exercises that I have found helpful in reducing my air intake.

These exercises are designed to strengthen the muscles of your nose so that you can keep one nostril closed, thus decreasing the amount of air that reaches the lungs.

(Anyone who is interested may obtain a copy of the exercise instructions under separate cover. Enclose a self-addressed envelope and $9.90 in cash or money order to cover the cost of packaging and mailing.)

Another good rule is to avoid situations that promote heavy breathing. Men, for example, are advised to stay away from Raquel Welch movies. Women should give up Jacqueline Susann's books.

Along with creating health hazards, air pollution also is having a political impact in America. It is, in fact, the main reason we have a "great silent majority." People are saving their breath.

Dick West

Well, dear boy, that is easier said than done. For most people, it is almost as hard to quit breathing as it is to quit smoking.

Breathing has become such a habit with most of us that abstaining probably would do more harm than good. People who quit breathing often become nervous and irritable, and may have other adverse reactions.

In other words, the side effects of not breathing may do more damage than the pollutants we inhale. So it is doubtful you will be able to refrain from breathing.

If you exercise a little will power, how-

The Way We See It

Fix Responsibility

A key issue facing the Illinois Constitutional Convention when it opens on Dec. 8 will be streamlining and invigorating the executive branch of state government.

In the present Constitution, the executive authority is diffused among a number of officers, giving them independent status. From their individual bases, office holders can, and frequently do, work at cross purposes with the chief executive.

Substantial payrolls, and vital state services, are controlled by office holders who are not accountable to the governor. This shattering of executive authority results in a simultaneous diffusion of executive responsibility. With the blame often difficult to place, residents of Illinois have been forced to accept many substandard state services.

It would be easy for framers of Illinois' new Constitution to perpetuate these grave weaknesses. Any attempt to reduce the number of political fiefdoms will be bitterly fought. But we believe it is a key responsibility of Con-Con delegates.

The central issue in revising the executive article will be to overhaul the nature of the chief executive's position. To do this, the number of state elective offices will have to be sharply reduced and full executive power will have to be placed in the governor.

We recommend election of the governor and lieutenant governor with a fiscal review officer either elected by the people or the Legislature.

We believe the Constitution should establish certain key offices, like a chief legal officer and chief educational officer, who would be appointed by the governor subject to confirmation by the state senate. The Constitution should permit the Legislature to establish other departments from time to time, as state needs change, with top appointments again subject to senate approval.

These officers would form a state level cabinet reporting to the governor and responsive to his policies.

A state board of elementary and secondary education and a board of higher education, either appointed or elected, would function as policy making agencies working through the chief educational officer.

We believe the governor and lieutenant governor should be elected on the same ballot as are the President and Vice President. And we recommend they be elected in off-Presidential years so state issues can be more clearly defined and the "coat-tail" effect of Presidential years can be negated.

The executive branch must be made more responsive to the wishes of voters. To realize that goal, responsibility for state operations must be more clearly fixed in the office of governor.

The Political Beat

Principle of Dissent Under Fire

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

The "right of dissent" on the part of citizens, long recognized as a traditional and constitutional right, is growing as an issue in itself apart from Vietnam. It simply means a right of a minority to disagree with a majority which happens in every election and in every election campaign.

While the majority position under a duly constituted free government must prevail to preserve order over anarchy, the safety of the political system requires a protection of the right to criticize, the right of free speech. This principle not only protects a minority but also maintains a safety for the majority. It's a built-in stabilizer.

IN SAFEGUARDING the rights of the few the rights of all are protected under our political system. But when the right to dissent is exercised — through speech, publishing, demonstration, assembly — it carries with it lawful limitations. If this were not true there would always be a danger of anarchy and chaos.

The New Mobilization against the Vietnam War tomorrow exemplifies the right of dissent as a major tenet of our democracy. It will be expressed in different ways: a senator will make a speech, a wealthy publisher will print an editorial, and a person disenchanted with our form of government might be guilty of anything. But many, if they are activists, will demonstrate in the streets, though some like to see their letters in the press.

The way one demonstrates his dissent (and we all are dissenters everyday) will depend on our education, social status and temperament. And don't be naive because many will dissent without knowing for what or why.

BUT WE OUGHT to agree that the vast majority of dissenters in a demonstration are serious about their political undertaking. They want to influence a "majority government" and in fact are the loyal opposition in action.

If there were no dissent in and out of government the nation would stagnate.

But there are several peculiar twists to what's going on under the eyes of the world. For one thing, we are trying to sell uncommitted people of the world the American brand of democracy. But if we gag free speech and halt demonstrations free government loses its validity.

If we permit lawful dissent, no matter how silly or exasperating, if those performing are protected in their right, friends are won and people influenced. This is because of the universal human idiosyncrasy of one's having his say.

Charles Hufnagel

The President on Nov. 3 stated the government position on Vietnam and peace. As the head of government he had the responsibility and authority to bring his case to the American people for their review, for after all under our system political power is vested in the citizen.

The Fence Post

Kinsolving Method: Flip, Shallow Answers

The Rev. Kinsolving, who writes with such apparent authority against the evils of "Fundamentalism Christianity" (The Herald, Nov. 3), exposed himself in his exposure on the Genesis creation stories. He is guilty of two faults that he probably accuses "fundamentalists": (1) he takes every word to have its absolute literal meaning, and (2) he uses selected verses to "prove" his preconceived point. As a result of the first, he apparently finds the literal meaning to be unacceptable and, therefore, dismisses the Genesis stories out of hand.

The reverend's method of flip questions and comments is an easy, but shallow and seldom constructive, way to ridicule almost any belief. It can be easily used in rebuttal. For example, he tells us that the serpent's assurance to Adam and Eve that they would not die "proved to be true," which logically leads to the question, "When did you see them last, reverend?" He also resorts to the trick of incorporating an irrelevant fact — other ancient cultures had creation stories. That fact proves nothing but that fact. It could be used just as easily as the starting point for a philosophical argument in favor of the Genesis stories.

IF ONE SERIOUSLY studies the different creation stories of Genesis 1 and 2, he may well conclude that they were not meant to be taken literally, word for word. However, having concluded that the first chapters of Genesis are not completely sensible with each word taken literally, one cannot automatically conclude that they are untrue.

If we look at the Genesis creation stories objectively, we see the main teachings to include: the universe was made as an ordered system; man was made of the same materials as the rest of the universe, but was given a special place of dominance with powers not given to other creatures; man chooses to act contrary to the order of the universe, with the attitude that he knows what is best, and as a result is afflicted with guilt, trouble and toil; and God is the creator, ruler and judge. Science, including the theory of evolution

BUT MANY SAW political overtones in it, putting a brake on the urge to dissent. The President also believes it less unseemly if we converse in a "low voice."

But his vice president, with whom he is well pleased, violates the low voice request by shouting epithets such as "rotten apples" and "effete snobs" at those who refuse to become 100 per cent administration supporters.

Many of these people have high educational credentials at big universities and some are members of both houses of Congress. In doing this the Vice President seems to be insensitive to the right of dissent as a principle in the American democratic tradition.

Another peculiar twist in this right of dissent row is discerned in a flashback to the Depression 30's on the eve of World War II. FDR was striving to aid the free nations of Europe against Hitler and especially Britain, short of war.

HE WAS PILLORED by a part of the partisan press when he spawned a deal to transfer over-age destroyers to the British. The point here is that the right of dissent was exercised then by millionaire newspaper publishers. They are objecting to dissent today. Why?

The dissenters today are not millionaires, so instead of expressing their opinion of the President in news columns they take to the streets to demonstrate.

If millionaires have a right to dissent in their newspapers, and some millionaires we are told don't pay any income taxes, what's wrong with the little guy with small change in his pocket marching down a street?

Two of our greatest presidents established the premises for the right of dissent.

"Though the will of the majority," wrote Jefferson, "is in all cases to prevail . . . the minority possesses their equal rights."

Lincoln said this nation cannot remain "half slave and half free." The rights of some must be permitted for all.

Trailers: Oughta Be a Law

Re: The ordinance the Elk Grove Planning Commission is considering — that you can't park your recreational vehicle anywhere on your premises. This ordinance would make it illegal to store your vehicle in your driveway, yard, even in the garage.

I'm assuming it will still be all right to keep a tent in the closet.

I'm appalled that this would even be considered. I feel it's a violation of a taxpayer's rights. If the village can dictate to us what we can park on our property this year, next year they'll tell us what color we can paint our house. We're at the mercy of the likes and dislikes of every person on the board.

Aesthetically speaking, most of the trailers I see parked in the village are in far better shape than a lot of the cars people own. If a trailer is an eyesore, then the village had better make it illegal to park a car older than a 1964 or one that has rusted or even a new one that is dirty, because they're eyesores too. I'm not too crazy about orange cars, either; let's put those on the list.

Trailer owners unite, let your opposition be heard!

Best Halloween

by RICK FRIEDMAN

There was an interesting letter in Wednesday's editorial page relating to Halloween Trick or Treat night.

The gist of it was that the night "gives vent to 'legal' vandalism — by these beggars that roam our streets . . . We 'doled' out candy until 10, and yet the next morning we found newly painted shutters smeared with soap and wax, as were the windows and screens and doors."

The writer asked why "homeowners are obligated to purchase candy or treats each Halloween" to promote such action.

ANY VANDALISM ON Halloween isn't to be condoned and unfortunately, completely destroys the happy intent of the night. But I never thought of the Trick or Treat part of it as promoting vandalism.

I've always seen Halloween as a child's holiday, giving kids the chance to get dressed in something pretty or something funny, to pretend they are princesses and fairies, spooks and witches.

Around our house, Halloween always means searching through drawers and closets for costume material. Some years we do better than other years. This was a good year.

Leah, my 10-year-old, became a fairy princess, complete with large cardboard wings and antennae made from a coathanger and silver foil, all fashioned by my wife.

Jessica, the five-year-old, was a gypsy, an easy costume for her mother to put together.

JOSH, THE SEVEN-YEAR-OLD, wanted to be a robot. I found two cardboard boxes of different sizes in the garage and cut them so one was the body and one was the head. Arm holes were cut in the bigger box, left-over pieces of cardboard went to make a nose and ears.

"Do you want a name for it?" I asked.

"Sure."

"Well, if people ask you what you are, tell them you're a Cyclamate."

JOSH THOUGHT that was a great name for a robot.

On the Thursday afternoon before Halloween, the school which all three of the kids attend, had a big Halloween parade. I stood on the street and watched dozens of kids march by in some of the cleverest costumes I had ever seen.

With them were their teachers, also in costumes and apparently having as much fun as the kids. An observer had to like that.

Halloween night was to prove even better.

A couple we know named the Foleys have this big, old house on the corner of Dwyer and Campbell Street in Arlington Heights. They asked me to get dressed up in a costume and help them put on a spook party.

I BORROWED A LONG, scraggly black wig from one of our staffers, found a black eye patch in the medicine chest and located an old black cardboard derby the kids played with in the basement. I dressed myself in all this, along with a black sweater and black pants, and put some tissue paper in my cheeks to give my face a distorted look.

My wife added the finishing touch by tossing an old black skirt around my shoulders to make a marvelous cape. I put my stocking feet into a pair of buckle-up old galoshes which made funny noises when I walked.

And I was transformed into something out of Dickens.

My kids were already at the Foleys. When I arrived at the front door, Brendan Foley greeted me. He was dressed in a long, white gown and had a gauze mask on his face. A stethoscope was around his neck.

TRUDY FOLEY WAS inside the door, decked up like something out of the Adam's Family.

The livingroom was lit by candles. In the middle of it was a large coffin-like box with a blanket in it. As I walked over to it with Brendan, he said to the blanket, "We have another guest."

The blanket sat up. Josh popped his head out from under it.

During the next couple of hours when kids came up to the door for Trick or Treat and Brendan would usher them in, lead them to the coffin and say, "We have another guest."

The blanket would slowly sit up.

THE KIDS WOULD then be led over to a Trick-or-Treat-laden table in the dining room where they could fill up their bags.

I would keep staring into their faces with my one good eye and make guttural sounds at them. At one point I found myself chasing a group of them around the house. At another point, Leah came up behind me and pulled off my black derby and wig. The kids around me shouted, "Fake! Fake!"

Some of the kids went out and told other kids about the old spook house and before long the livingroom was filled with youngsters and some of their parents. The place became a laughing, screaming madhouse.

WHEN I FINALLY took my own kids home a couple of hours later they said it was the best Halloween they had ever had.

I felt the same way. In all probability, so did most of the kids Trick or Treating Halloween night around Campbell and Dwyer in Arlington Heights.

DuPage Endorses Adlai

State Treas. Adlai Stevenson III was the "nearly unanimous" choice of the DuPage County Democratic Central Committee to run for U. S. Senator in the March 17 primary.

State Rep. William A. Redmond, D-Bensenville, chairman of the group, announced Wednesday that the committee endorsed Stevenson Tuesday night at a meeting in Glen Ellyn.

Stevenson has formally announced intent to run for the post now held by Ralph T. Smith, a Republican appointed to fill the vacancy created by the death of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

"Some committeemen felt we should wait and see who else may run," Redmond said. "Others thought we ought to support Paul Simon."

SIMON, a Democrat, is the Illinois lieutenant governor, but he has not announced intent of running for the Senate post.

"In the end, the decision to endorse Stevenson was as close to unanimous as you could get," Redmond said.

The move represented the second major endorsement of the liberal state treasurer. Lake County Democrats recently gave their support to Stevenson, who has been at odds with Chicago Mayor Richard Daley since the 1968 Democratic Convention in Chicago.

Avocation: Author

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Mother of four, wife of a surgeon, caretaker of one colic and three cats and presently the author of a children's book. Meet Mrs. Leo Pevsner of Palatine.

A novice at children's fiction but by no means an amateur with the pen, Mrs. Pevsner, in her first attempt at a complete book, has been rewarded with the recent publication of her novel, "Break a Leg."

Written for children 8-12 years of age, the story revolves around Fran, a 12-year-old girl who is disappointed at first because she can not accompany her best friend to camp. But, Fran finds that the summer will not be quite as dull as she imagined when she enrolls and becomes active in her suburb's community-theater project.

Intertwined in the book, which culminates in a final stage production, are the antics of a typical nuisance of a little brother, Chip.

Mrs. Pevsner first started researching and gathering material for her book in the summer of '68.

"I had written educational matter and a junior high play," she said. "And one day one of my children asked me why didn't I write a children's book."

MRS. PEVSNER'S four children are Stuart, 14; Marian, 13; Charles, 11; and Barbara, 9. "They go to four different schools which means four different schedules," she laughed.

There was really no hesitation in Mrs. Pevsner's mind to choose the theater as the theme of her book. "I just naturally chose it as my subject because I have always been interested in it," she said.

Quite active in Village Theatre, Stella Pevsner does most of her theater work backstage.

"While I like to do bit parts occasionally, I prefer decorating sets and working on costumes," she said. "Acting ties me down too much."

Yet, acting is exactly what she did do in preparation for her book. "In order to make the story authentic," she said, "I took an adult acting class to experience myself some of the main agonies undergone by my principle character. I also audited a children's course offered by the park district in Arlington Heights in order to see what the children were learning and doing," she explained.

"YOU SHOULD WRITE about something which is familiar and of interest to you," continued Mrs. Pevsner. "My sons want me to write a book about hockey, but I don't know anything about it. You just can't authentically write about something selected at random."

Mrs. Pevsner began writing in September after her offspring were back in school. "In the summer there are too many interruptions for me to be able to write," she said.

Discussing her technique she stated, "In writing, you first go through a mental process where for days you think it through and resolve it in your mind. Then you finally say to yourself, on such and such a day I will begin writing and then you do. It's all a matter of discipline," she declared.

"Although I find it easier to write late at night, it is not fair to my family. So I have retrained myself to write in the mornings between 9:30 and noon."

Mrs. Pevsner received her education at Illinois State University in Normal. Following graduation, she taught school for two years at the intermediate level in Lincoln, Ill.

"I CAME TO Chicago to take an art course at the Art Institute, liked the city and decided to stay," she said.

She made her debut as a writer in advertising. "I went with a friend to keep her company while she signed up for an advertising course at Northwestern and ended up in the course myself," she smiled.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Pevsner worked in retail advertising and then joined an advertising agency where she wrote fashion and cosmetic copy. She also has written humor articles for Reader's Digest and feature articles for newspaper publication.

Presently she is working on her second children's book which concerns the same family appearing in "Break a Leg." However, this time the younger brother is featured as the main character.

Besides managing her busy household, community activities and writing, Mrs. Pevsner finds time to enroll in art courses. Presently she is taking a design course at the Countryside Art Center.

"I REGULATE MY time between doing things I must do like house maintenance chores and things I like to do," she said.

"I don't get involved in things in which I have no interest."

"I really am not an artist," she continued, "just an assembler."

Decorating the walls of her home are unusual collages, the end product of one course she particularly enjoyed.

"I think it is the nearest thing in the art world to writing," she said, referring to collages. "In writing one takes scraps of experiences, places, facts, to form a design or story. A collage is also made up of various objects altered and regrouped in an entirely different manner from which they are found."

In writing Mrs. Pevsner said she tries to make her stories humorous.

"Although educational books are all well and good," she said, "children should have books just to enjoy. After all, the main purpose of a book is to entertain," she commented.

The Mount Prospect Book Nook, 119 S. Emerson, is hosting an autograph party for Mrs. Pevsner this Sunday (Nov. 16) from 1 to 5 p.m. She will be on hand to sign personalized copies of "Break a Leg."

SHE'S IN PRINT. Mrs. Stella Pevsner, Palatine homemaker and writer, has just had her first book published. It's a children's story with theater, in which the author always has been interested, as its theme.

Viewpoint on Contemporary Theater

by RICHARD SUDHALTER

SPLIT, Yugoslavia (UPI)— "Basically, I don't think all this nakedness and display is necessary," Sir John Gielgud said between sips of morning coffee.

With this reporter and his distinguished friend and fellow thespian, Sir Ralph Richardson, Sir John was discussing new trends in the contemporary theater, particularly the trends toward nudity, crudity and protest.

"It is all a matter of taste," Sir John said, adjusting a pair of wire-rimmed spectacles on his nose. "Shakespeare certainly used a lot of scenes and expressions which were, well, naughty. But the great writers, whether Dostoyevsky or Dickens, all managed to write horrors and thrilling scenes and what have you without going into four letter words or depicting people squatting on the lavatory. It's so much easier, you know, to use bad language and scatological terms and shock, and all that."

RICHARDSON, AT 67, two years older than his friend of many years, agreed. "I don't like all these four letter words very much," he said. "It all seems to be like going about with a heavy bludgeon or sledgehammer, banging people about, or continually firing off a revolver. It eliminates wit and subtlety, I think. I find it noisome, quite disturbing."

The conversation took place on a sunlit balcony overlooking the Adriatic. Britishers Gielgud and Richardson, both acknowledged to be among the great living actors, were in Split filming "Eagle in a Cage," a story of Napoleon's exile on the Isle of St. Helena.

Sir John's annoyance at onstage lavatories did not mean total condemnation of all new developments in theater, he insisted. On the contrary, he felt some horizons opened up by original thinkers such as Polish director Jerzy Grotowski offered great potential.

"SOME OF IT IS terribly interesting," he said. "I did an extraordinary production of Seneca's 'Oedipus' with Peter Brook at the National Theater last year. It was that kind of theater. 'We rehearsed 10-and a-half weeks, did exercises and improvisations and all that. We had the chorus strapped to 10-foot pillars. . . but it came off splendidly, fascinatingly. It was a rigid discipline and I felt I'd learned a great deal from it," he said.

Richardson said he had been to see the folk-rock musical "Hair" in London and had not enjoyed the nudity and overt sexuality.

"I can't help thinking... we all have what these young people are showing going on at home. Why not keep it there? I'm afraid 'Hair' was a bit too loud for me, too modernistic," he said.

GIELGUD: "I HATE audience participation in these things, actors crawling between your legs and running up and down the aisles and forcing you to take part. Perhaps I'm a bit old-fashioned—I like to go to the theater and feel I've a right to be entertained."

Richardson "I agree I have a right to be part of the audience if I want to be. When I was a little boy I used to go to see the conjurer (magician) and when he came around and said would anybody in the audience please step up, my heart would absolutely sink because I was always afraid he would pick on me. Something of that sort happens to me now with this new theater. It's not my cup of tea, to coin a phrase."

GIELGUD: "ALL OF this seems to be part of an extreme new movement to develop a new kind of epic theater which breaks all the barriers and has a new kind of construction and allows improvisation and acrobatics and every kind of thing."

"The actors have to be marvelously trained, which in some ways goes back to the Elizabethan theater where the fighting was so marvelous and the juggling and dancing were all so splendid. We've somehow forgotten all that. Now this new development seems to be a reacting against the theater of words."

Richardson: "New forms of anything are always weird in design, but finally settle down and cause the whole to move forward. Moving forward in any direction is always a bit uncomfortable — sort of like cutting through ice. Icebreakers have a very miserable time, but they do make a passage, don't they? I'm sure the new theater forms are making a passage to somewhere. They're moving things. Art is awful if it stands still—and this includes the art of the theater."

GIELGUD: "I THINK it's possible to overdo things. Peter Brook did a series of exercises on Shakespeare's 'The Tempest' at the Round House (in London) which I went to see. I couldn't bear it, what with the play and all cut up and people making extraordinary noises and hanging from trapezes, ladders, wires and things. To me it was a blasphemy on a great piece of work."

"It's not theater as I care for it."

DOES IT LOOK like any other oven? Ah, but this oven eats its own leftovers! And the demand for self-cleaning built-ins is growing, according to Evelyn Kafka of the American Gas Association.

Self-Cleaning Ovens

They Liberate the Housewife

by MARY B. GOOD

The filthiest job in the house is oven-cleaning. Just ask any woman.

About the best thing our scientific geniuses have done for the American housewife is devise the ovens that eat their own leftovers . . . or almost.

The lady who likes to cook but hates to clean up afterward can choose from two types of self-cleaning ovens now on the market: pyrolytic or the relative newcomer, catalytic. But don't let the fancy words throw you.

In the former, the oven heats up to temperatures ranging from 850 to 1000 degrees. At the end of the cleaning cycle and cool down period (about two hours) all that remains of the food soil is a powdery ash. The pyrolytic (also called self-cleaning) oven was "made" for electric cookery, although gas models also are available. The pyrolytic system virtually incinerates volcanoes of cherry pie ooze and sputtery lamb roast grease.

THE OTHER APPROACH allows catalytic ovens to clean themselves while the cook is cooking (the continuous cleaning principle). Manufacturers of gas ranges came out with these ovens just about a year ago to meet the competition from the pyrolytic-electric people.

In the continuous cleaning ovens, a catalytic material mixed in the porcelain enamel coating of the oven causes a chemical reaction at normal cooking temperatures that oxidizes the food soils continuously as they occur during cooking. It's designed to eliminate the necessity of oven-cleaning and in this way can be compared to a frost-free refrigerator.

HOMEMAKERS WHO worry about the efficiency and safety of the oven innovation can put their minds at ease. The self-cleaners do their job of cooking as well as conventional ovens, and there's nothing to taint the flavor of foods cooked in them. Using the surface unit does not interfere with the self-cleaning operation.

Extra insulation in the pyrolytic ovens provides a safety check for the increased interior temperatures. Because of the high heat involved in the cleaning cycle, it is impossible to open the locked oven cavity short of a musclemann with crowbar, until the temperature falls again.

Leo Keiffer, appliance sales manager for the Northern Illinois Gas Co., says that the trend is definitely toward the self-cleaning oven. "Right now, 75 per cent of the ranges we make are catalytic," volunteered George Waber, Chicago representative for one of the big name gas range manufacturers.

"IN FIVE YEARS," asserts Bonita Nichols, school home economics adviser for Commonwealth Edison Co., "nothing but self-cleaning ovens will be available for sale. Conventional ranges will become extinct."

Of course, not everyone is going to run out and buy a self-cleaning oven today. With a life expectancy of 19 years for the average American oven, according to Keiffer, it'll be a while before every middle-class homemaker has one.

But the gas and electric range manufacturers are poised and producing for the new bride, the young homemaker and the busy career as they latch onto this new timesaver, according to Lucretia Thomason, home extension adviser for the University of Illinois Extension Service in Des Plaines.

NOW ABOUT THE disadvantages . . . catalytic ovens require some manual cleaning (floor broilers and some oven bottoms and door liners), along with caution to prevent damage to the surface. Heavy spillovers (like runny apple tarts) will not be cleaned on catalytic ovens without first wiping up the excess. There is a slight powdery residue to be wiped off at the end of the pyrolytic cleaning cycle. Certain types of food stains may not disappear in one operation, but will fade during later use of the catalytic oven.

"When it comes right down to a choice between the two systems," said Keiffer, "women choose whichever looks most attractive."

"NOTHING IS going to take all of the work out of the kitchen," said Mrs. Thomason. "Expecting the manufacturer to do all of your homework is expecting too much. Still, most women get through the Thanksgiving dinner, and they're just too tired to care."

For them, anything that helps is a liberator.

For a list of manufacturers of free-standing and built-in catalytic and pyrolytic self-cleaning ranges, readers may call Paddock Publications Readers Service, 394-2300, Ext. 271.

The Potting Shed

by MARY B. GOOD

The ignorant called Rachel Carson a crackpot. Can they be the same ones who are doing all the leaf burning?

The best things in life may have been free when there were fewer of us, but the air we breathe is at premium now, and an investment in leaf bags makes good sense in this insurance risk.

Want to keep your mower running next season? Winterize now by draining the oil and replacing the mower with new oil. Circulate the new oil by running the mower on a nearly empty tank until it stops. This will dry the tank, fuel lines and carburetor and thus avoid gummy deposit that makes spring starting difficult. (Do you shudder at the thought of spring mowing?) Then remove the spark plug and pour in a tablespoon of oil, pull starter cord to coat cylinder and valves and replace spark plug. Finally, clean air filter, sharpen blades and cover the exhaust pipe with a tin can.

IF YOU'VE STARTED seeds indoors for the first time, don't be anxious to transplant those delicate flat seedlings to private quarters. After the initial set of false leaves, wait, at least, until the second set of true leaves gets its growing pains before you disturb them.

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, would you believe that the average American by age 70 has consumed a lifetime of 50 acres of fruits and vegetables, the equivalent of 150 head of cattle, 2,400 chickens, 225 lambs, 26 sheep, 310 pigs and 26 acres of grain? So says the AMA's Council on Food and Nutrition.

The chrysanthemum show steals the spotlight at Garfield and Lincoln Park Conservatories in Chicago now through No. 30 to 9 daily.

PAPER-WHITE NARCISSI planted before the 15th of November should flower for Christmas. Keep plants in the dark and on the dry side (this includes your amaryllis, too) until flower shoots are well out of their bubs, then expose gradually to light and water.

Store some fertilizer, such as ammonium sulfate, to use instead of regular rock salt when melting ice from driveways and walks. Rock salt brine can kill plants it touches; fertilizer can't help but do the old tolerosa (evergreens) some good. The rest of the chemical leftovers from the 1969 gardening season should be tossed out. Once opened they deteriorate. Never put pesticides in makeshift containers. It's almost impossible to remember what has been repackaged in which container.

Still got pumpkin seeds left over from Halloween? Here's a recipe for salted pumpkin seeds kitchen tested by me, so I know it's divine. 2 cups pumpkin seeds, 1 1/2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 1/4 teaspoons salt. Clean pumpkin seeds of pulp (by this time they should be pretty dried out anyway). Mix seeds with oil and salt in shallow baking dish. Bake in 250-degree oven, stirring from time to time, until crisp (about 20 minutes).

FILL THE SHELVES

by Marilyn Hallman

Scissors, paper, paste and a few old magazines are all a home-alone preschooler needs to play "fill the shelves."

Draw several heavy lines across a large sheet of paper. Print "GROCERY STORE" at the top in large letters. The child fills the shelves with appropriate pictures cut from magazines and pasted on. Next time vary the game by making a hardware, drug, pet, toy or clothing store. An old mail order catalog is also a good source of pictures.

Palatine Couple Married In Christ Church Rites

Two Palatine families were united Oct. 4 in the marriage of Linda Dolezal, 352 Slayton, and Howard E. Hall of 1371 Joyce. Their parents, the Anton Dolezals and the Robert Halls, invited relatives and friends to the 3:30 p.m. ceremony in Christ Lutheran Church, Palatine.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a white sheath gown with a lace bodice, two panels of lace extending down each side of the front skirt and with a three-tiered lace train flowing from the shoulders. The lace was scalloped at the round neckline, on the edge of the long sleeves and on the bottom of each tier of the train.

THE BRIDE WORE a cluster of petals centered with crystals to hold her shoulder-length veil in place and carried a bouquet of white carnations and roses.

Four attendants preceded her down the aisle, all gowned alike in aqua sheath dresses with a high collar and long sleeves. Linda Cullen of Palatine, as maid of honor, carried a bouquet of white and aqua carnations tied with white ribbons.

Bridesmaids Kathy Polluck, Palatine; Laurie Infelise, Hoffman Estates; and Elie Mokrousov, Elgin, carried aqua carnations accented with olive green ribbons.

Larry McCarthy of Palatine was his friend's best man, while Tom Gustavson, Palatine; Hans Juckel, Weathersfield, and Bobby Hall, brother of the groom, seated the wedding guests.

A BUFFET SUPPER and reception at Palatine Firehall followed the double ring rites. The bride's mother greeted guests in a strawberry brocade and pale pink crepe gown and the groom's mother wore a red formal trimmed in silver beading. Each had a corsage of pink rosebuds.

The bride and groom both attended Palatine High School and both are working in nearby suburbs, the bride at Pure Oil Co. and the groom a manager trainee at the Jewel Food Store in Deerfield.

The newlyweds are making their home in Arlington Heights.

Autumn Wedding

Autumn colors set the theme for the fall wedding of Robert E. Molumby, son of the Joseph A. Molumbys of Mount Prospect, and Edith Nina Taylor, daughter of the James L. Taylors of River Forest. All flowers in the church, Grace Episcopal in Oak Park, were in autumn tones as were the flowers in the bouquets of Edith's attendants. The maids, two, were in an autumn color, antique gold.

The couple's marriage took place on Oct. 11 and was followed by a buffet dinner reception for 200 in the Oak Park Country Club. Rev. Clyde Wilson officiated at the service and Mr. Taylor gave his daughter in marriage.

THE NEWLYWEDS honeymooned on the west coast and are now making their home in Evanston. The groom, who is with an architectural firm, Perkins and Will, earned his B.A. degree from Notre Dame and his M.A. degree from the University of California at Berkeley. His bride earned her A.B. degree from Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio.

Edith's gown was of white bridal satin with Alencon lace. A molded bodice, jeweled neckline cuffed with the lace, long bishop sleeves and bell-shaped skirt with lace appliques were details of her floor-length gown. The train, which flowed into a modified cathedral train, also was trimmed with lace accents. A satin toque held her matching lace mantilla, and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis and white roses.

The attendants' gowns were in crepe and fashioned with a jewel neckline, scarves, tucked bodices, bishop sleeves and floor-length skirts. Their bow headpieces and veils were also in gold.

MAID OF HONOR was the bride's sister, Barbara Taylor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. John Gosling of Appleton, Wis., sister of the groom, Miss Susan Norell of River Forest and Miss Lynn Coleman.

Best man was the groom's cousin, Kenneth Olson of Minneapolis, and ushers were the bride's brother, J. Hall Taylor of River Forest, Michael Youngman of Chicago and John Berchem of Glenview.

The bride's mother chose an apricot sheath and the groom's mother a frosty blue sheath. Both had corsages in autumn colors.

Tops No Longer White

Remember when you could have any kind of kitchen table top, just so it was white?

Things have changed. The B. Brody Seating Co., Chicago, for instance, offers 30 different table-top patterns ranging from soft green olive-wood to dark Florentine marble, and from lacy contemporary inlays to bold simulations of tortoise shell and brass.

For Fifth Wheelers

"How to Break the Smoking Habit" will be the topic of Fifth Wheelers at their meeting Sunday evening in Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines. The group is composed of divorced, divorced and legally separated persons.

The program begins at 7:45 in the church at Wolf and Algonquin Roads. Members will also have the opportunity to sign up for an adult party set for Nov. 22.

Area persons interested in the group may call 392-8520 or 358-6923.

who got the habit in grammar school. "It's no wonder, then, that most educators agree that you need a good library to teach reading today," says William J. Worrell, founder of the Pilgrim Book Society which was formed 11 years ago to promote good reading.

"Today's children need more books than ever. They are interested in more things. They are being encouraged to probe deeply and to think critically. There is more to learn today, and there are more beautiful and important books for children to read," Worrell said.

"THE AIM OF THE Pilgrim Book Society is to get good books into every child's hands — in his home library or the one at school — where he can read, savor, and cherish them as his very own," Worrell said.

"Unfortunately," he continued, "many children do not have a public or school library from which they may borrow. While effort is being expended to develop a good library in every elementary school nationwide, such is not the case yet."

Because of the expense involved in purchasing hard cover books, the Pilgrim Book Society, along with the U. S. Jaycees and the American Library Association, have compiled the latest lists of books available in paperback form.

The reading lists for children, teenagers, and young adults are available for a nominal printing and handling charge from the Pilgrim Book Society, 82 Pembroke Road, Akron, Ohio, 44313.

Crane, Warman Debate on TV

The hotly contested race for Congress in the 13th District wages on, when WTTW/Channel 11 presents "Confrontation: 13th District — Crane vs. Warman" Tuesday, Nov. 18 at 9:30 p.m. (Repeated Monday, Nov. 24 at 7 p.m.)

State Rep. Edward A. Warman, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 13th District, will face the GOP candidate Philip M. Crane as both air their views on such subjects as Viet Nam, student rioters, and federal aid to education.

Political editor and columnist for The Chicago Sun-Times, John Dreiske hosts the program. Dreiske will probe the candidates for their positions on the significant issues of this campaign.

The Canterbury tales, Chaucer's colorful, clever, and sometimes earthy tales of the famous medieval pilgrimage will be dramatized in a series of ten weekly programs on WTTW/Channel 11 beginning Tuesday, Nov. 18 at 10 p.m.

Medieval costumes and authentic medieval music will complement the half-hour dramatizations which will be spoken in modern English.

In order of their appearance, the tales to be performed will be "The Prologue" and the "Pardoner's Tale"; "The Knight's Tale"; "The Shipman's Tale"; "The Prioresse's Tale"; "The Merchant's Tale"; "The Franklin's Tale"; "The Nun's Priest's Tale" and "The Manciple's Tale."

Usually more than half of each program is devoted to drama, with the remainder of time given to Professor Thomas Garbaty, a Chaucerian scholar from the University of Michigan English Department, for Comment on Chaucer's England, a description of the tenor of Chaucer's time and an examination of the tale — the character of the teller and the tales' themes, plots and resolutions. Garbaty will also discuss Middle English, the language in which Chaucer wrote the tales.

Set Young Artists Auditions

Russel Harvey, director of the DuPage Symphony Orchestra, has announced that the Young Artists Auditions will be held Saturday, Jan. 10, 1970, at the McAlister Music Building, Washington and Union Streets, Wheaton College.

The Young Artists Auditions are an annual feature of the DuPage Symphony Orchestra. This will be the 12th season that the program has been sponsored by this musical organization.

Auditions are open to any musician living in DuPage County and attending a DuPage high school who sings, plays piano or any instrument used in a symphony orchestra, and whose teacher feels that he is ready. Selections must be from about five to 12 minutes long, memorized and have an available orchestra accompaniment. Vocalists should prepare two numbers.

EACH CONTESTANT must provide his own accompanist, and pianists are required to provide a second piano player to play the orchestral accompaniment on the second piano. A panel of judges selected by the Young Artists Auditions committee will select a winner, and the decision of the judges will be final.

The winner of the auditions will appear as soloist with the DuPage Symphony under the direction of Dr. Harvey, Sunday, March 8.

Application blanks and information may be obtained from Edward A. Cording, chairman of the Auditions Committee, at Wheaton College Conservatory of Music, 682-5088. Applications must be returned to the chairman not later than Tuesday, Dec. 30.

A Paddock Review

'Summer and Smoke' Shines

by PAT ADAM

Des Plaines Theatre Guild's current production, "Summer and Smoke," has two major assets. A sensitive and consistent performance in the demanding role of Alma by Ginny Boyer and a new "leading man" with acting ability plus good looks in the person of Jim Tuveson.

The overall production provides a worthwhile evening for theater lovers though some of the characterizations are weak.

The Tennessee Williams' play revolves around two lonely people, Alma, the minister's daughter trapped by her mother's mental illness and her father's position as well as her own lofty concept of love, and John Buchanan Jr., the doctor's son who has lost faith in everything but the physical, yet is attracted by Alma's "other worldly" qualities.

THOUGH THEY REACH out to one another, they never really meet, and in the end their roles are reversed, he believing in more than the physical nature of man and she having given in to it.

As Alma, Ginny Boyer is on stage nearly the entire play. Her portrayal is strong and skillful and particularly so in the final scene when Alma, aware the young doctor loves another, takes up with a traveling salesman who had just come to town.

Jim Tuveson, in his first role for Des Plaines Theatre Guild but no novice actor, seems completely at ease on stage and is convincing as the pleasure-seeking doctor's son whose outlook on life is changed abruptly by the accidental death of his father.

JEANNINE CARLSON is outstanding as Alma's young voice pupil, Nellie. The ostracized daughter of a "loose woman," Nellie switches her affections from Alma to young Dr. Buchanan, and after going off to finishing school, returns home a charming young lady. In the end it is she who fills the doctor's needs, not Alma.

Valerie Johnson does a good job as the mother whose breakdown when Alma was only a child, has reversed their natural roles. However, she appeared too youthful looking, even for a child-adult, on opening night. Makeup would remedy that.

As Alma's self-pitying father, Rev. Winemiller, Marshall Kiovet fails to bring sufficient maturity to make a convincing father of an adult daughter.

GOOD IN LESSER ROLES are Roy Quaid as the senior Dr. Buchanan, Ken Johnson as Alma's suitor Roger Doremus, Phyllis Beall as Mrs. Bassett and Sylvia Sanders as the impetuous Rosa Gonzales with whom young Dr. Buchanan consorts till her father shoots and kills his father.

Greg Gale plays Rosa's drunken father with a little too "mucha gusto"; he should tone down the laugh.

Cast in minor parts are Keith Olson as Vernon and Barbara DePisa as Rosemary, members of Alma's literary group, and Paul Cary as the traveling salesman. Olson doubles as a casino waiter.

Don Baylor returns to the Guild director's chair with this production and a noteworthy return it is. There is no lag in interest, despite numerous scenes, and blocking is exceptional. Considering the multi-purpose set that serves as the rectory living room, the park, the doctor's office and an arbor, it's amazing that only once on opening night did an actor stumble into a prop during the many stage darkenings.

BOTH SET AND LIGHTING deserve special comment. The set is intriguing, and the lighting, focused on whichever part of the set is being used in a particular scene, makes the audience oblivious to the rest of the stage.

Costume crew has done a good job of creating a 1910 fashion scene.

In this day of nudity on stage and off, supposed relaxed sex mores and feminine independence, it might seem that a play about a frustrated female around the turn of the century would be dull. But it's not. I thoroughly enjoyed the evening — as I usually do at Guild Playhouse.

"Summer and Smoke" may be seen again this weekend and next at the Playhouse on Lee Street.

'Sesame Street' Series

A Program for Young Tots

by GENIE CAMPBELL
"Sesame Street" premiered this week. Tuesday morning my roommate, a fifth grade school teacher, and I parked ourselves in front of the tube to see if the program was everything it was cracked up to be. Our conclusion — it is.
Letters of the alphabet, new words, numbers and counting and solving simple problems are all taught on the hour-long program by using such commercial television techniques as cartoons, jingles, puppets, comic skits and guest stars.
Young viewers will also have a chance to learn about cities and towns, mountains and oceans, animals, where food comes from and new ideas.
The hour-long "Sesame Street" series is presented at 9 a.m. Monday through Friday on WTTW/Channel 11.

The program last Tuesday, taught the letters E, S and W, the numerals and quantities 2 and 3, city and country sounds and the words "more," "less" and "same."

WHILE I SAT almost entranced by the clever photography and snappy music, I was able to hurriedly jot down some of the comments Cheri, or Miss Chamberlain as she is known to her students, was expounding upon the teaching techniques used in "Sesame Street," and their effectiveness. I particularly wanted her views as a teacher.

The program opened with concrete examples of roundness.

"This is to familiarize children with the concept of shape," my illustrious roommate said matter of factly. "Since children have difficulty thinking in abstract terms, they are using everyday concrete examples, things a child might see and experience." These everyday type things included garbage lids, fishies, balloons, bubbles and coins.

Sounds came next — all kinds, like eggs frying, milk being poured, doors being slammed and engines starting. There were even all sorts of interesting barnyard sounds when the scene focused on a farm.

"The sounds make a child aware of what is going on around him," volunteered my authority on the subject before I even had formed a question to ask her. "It helps those who have been sheltered to broaden their experiences."

"A child can relate better to live animals than ones that are merely seen in a book," she said referring to the barnyard crowd.

IN BETWEEN WHAT could be considered short lessons were visits with baby Chihuahuas, a baby squirrel and once, even a llama that could curl its lip appeared on the screen.

Then in a psychedelic array of lights and sounds, the numeral "2" was flashed on and off the tube, complete with an assortment of examples to particularly please a child, like two ice cream cones, and two cream pies. Both "2" and "3" were emphasized in identical sequences throughout the program, a method of reinforcement even I could recognize through my studies of Freud.

While I have no insight into teaching, I certainly was impressed with the show, one which may ultimately climb in status beyond Miss Frances and her Ding Dong School.

I particularly grooved to the catchy music, often soul music, which I figured was thrown in strictly for entertainment. However, my school teacher living companion once more had a teacher's explanation.

"The music helps a child to gain sense of rhythm," she said. "In fact if kids start clapping their hands to the music, they will also be learning hand-eye coordination."

Fantasy Season for Children

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Without fail, we welcome a new fall and winter season annually. But, this year northwest suburban residents will experience in addition a third very special kind of fantasy season. Wedged in around the holidays, it may be thought of as the "childdren's season," so named because of the various plays being offered by local guilds and professional theater groups for the sole purpose of entertaining the children.

Witches, magic potions, funny characters and sad, everything to delight a child's imagination. Many of the actors will be children although adults, too, hold starring roles. Regardless of who's on stage, interest is centered upon pleasing a child's audience.

THE PLACE TO BE on Nov. 22 or 23 is St. Viator's in Arlington Heights, when Village Theatre presents its annual children's play. This year their production is "Rapunzel and the Witch," a play filled with sorcery and characterized by an ugly wicked witch. The play will be performed twice on each day, 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door or advanced reservations and block seats may be obtained through the Village Theatre box office, 259-3200.

Kay Hawley, who is directing "Rapunzel and the Witch," will also be handling Guild Players' children theater selection, "The Frog Princess and the Witch" by Margery Evernden. Nine performances in all will be given on Dec. 6, 7, 12, 13 and 14 at Tefft Junior High School in Streamwood. Blocks of 10 seats or more must be reserved by phoning 529-3897.

Mice can create real havoc, especially in numbers, and that's exactly what will happen when Cameo Players present the contemporary comedy, "The Three Thousand Mice of Dr. Proctor" by Hans Josef Schmidt. Cameo Players are interested in selling their performance to various children's groups. Information about scheduling a performance may be obtained through Mrs. Carl Erickson at 259-3008.

MILL RUN THEATRE will host two children's plays during the month of November. Each Saturday and Sunday of this month for general admission, the stage will be set at 2 p.m. for a musical version of "Sleeping Beauty." During the week "Rumpelstiltskin" will be performed at 10 a.m. each Tuesday through Friday for classes of school children. Reservations may be made by phoning 259-3280.

Finally, Scrooge and Tiny Tim take over the stage at Pheasant Run Playhouse in St. Charles when the well-known Charles Dickens classic is presented every Saturday through Dec. 12 at 2 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door. Reservations, which are necessary only for groups of 20 or more, may be made by phoning 584-1454 or 261-7943.

'Think Pink, Think Antiques' Takes Memphis Girl As Bride

AUTHENTIC COSTUMES of a bygone era were worn by committee members of Memorial Hospital Guild when they attended the recent kick-off luncheon for the Guild's annual antique show to be held Nov. 19-21 in Elmhurst Country Club. Mrs. A. H. Kroon and Mrs. Joseph Bidro of the Addison Unit and Mrs. John Duerkop of the North DuPage Unit found time for a ride with the club manager, Adrian Looye.

The second annual antiques show and sale sponsored by the combined units of Memorial Hospital Guild will be held next Wednesday through Friday, Nov. 19 to 21, in Elmhurst Country Club.

As it did last year, the show has taken the theme, "Think Pink, Think Antiques." Mrs. A. H. Kroon of Addison, who is again serving as show chairman, reports that many of the same dealers who exhibited at last year's premiere show, will again bring their antiques from all corners of the middle west.

THE SMORGASBORD that was such a huge part of the success of last year's show will also be repeated and coffee and cookies will be available in the club lounge throughout the show hours.

Show hours are noon to 10 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday; Friday, noon to 6 p.m. Tickets purchased in advance of the show benefit the Guild, and may be used for all three days of the show.

Mrs. Joseph Bidro of Addison, president of the Addison Unit of the Guild, is again serving as ticket chairman.

James Edward Blaszczyński has taken his bride of Oct. 4 to live in St. Louis where he is employed by Emerson Electric Co. The bridegroom is the son of the Edward M. Blaszczyński, 205 S. Yale Ave., Arlington Heights, who with relatives and friends were in Memphis, Tenn., the first weekend in October to attend his marriage.

The bride, the former Marilyn Annette Sampietro, is the daughter of the Frank Anthony Sampietro of Memphis. She planned the late afternoon wedding for Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Memphis. Later there was a reception for 250 guests at a local Holiday Inn.

AS THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings at the flower-decked altar, the bride wore a candlelight peau de soie gown overlaid with peau d'ange lace and featuring a high neckline, long sleeves and chapel train. The gown was enhanced with touches of pearls and beading.

Her shoulder-length veil flowed from a headpiece composed of a single large organza flower trimmed with pearls. The bride's bouquet was an arrangement of orchids and stephanotis.

Five attendants preceded her down the church aisle, all gowned alike in red silk organza with matching floral headpieces and short veils.

MATRON OF HONOR was the bride's sister, Mrs. James Deaton of Memphis. Bridesmaids included her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Sampietro; a cousin, Linda Sampietro; the groom's sister, Judy Blaszczyński, and Christine Tansey of Memphis.

Thomas Coluri of Memphis served as best man, while guests were seated by Frank Sampietro Jr. and Michael Sampietro, brothers of the bride; Paul Simon of Dallas, and Gregory Was of Winston Salem, N.C.

Witnessing the ceremony, the bride's mother was attired in green chiffon and the groom's mother in apricot chiffon, each with an orchid and stephanotis corsage at her shoulder.

The bride worked for the county clerk in Memphis before her wedding. The groom is a graduate of St. Viator High School and Christian Brothers College, where he majored in electrical engineering.

The Race Between Stork And Driver

Chapel Hill, N.C. (WMNS) — If clogged roads and traffic jams unpredictably delayed storks as well as people, doctors would be less tempted to try to schedule childbirths.

As it is, warns Dr. Charles Hendricks, chairman of the obstetrics department of the University of North Carolina, the chemical induction of labor is spreading.

In rural areas, where the expectant mother lives far from the hospital and where there's a doctor shortage, some overworked physicians have induced labor in more than half of their patients. In large cities, labor is traditionally induced only for medical reasons.

But now, says Dr. Hendricks, induced labor is becoming more acceptable because miserable rush hour traffic conditions between suburbs and downtown hospitals make many trips a perilous race between stork and driver. The obstetrician believes that non-medical induction should never be done for the convenience of the doctor but is sometimes permissible for the convenience of the patient.

Easy To Clean

A little soaking in warm sudsy water will remove even burned-on foods from ceramicware utensils.

Al Volz 'To Tell It Like It Was'

Albert F. Volz, pioneer businessman and civic leader in Arlington Heights, will talk about "the good old days" at Tuesday morning's meeting of the Quaker group named in his honor. Mrs. Fred Jasper, 717 N. Chestnut Ave., will be hostess for the 9:30 a.m. program.

Mr. Volz, who is 90 years old, will give the antique study group a picture of the early days of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. George E. Short is president of Volz Chapter.

Newcomers Filling Baskets for Needy

Wheeling-Buttalo Grove Newcomers Club is asking for funds to fill grocery baskets that will be delivered to needy families at Thanksgiving. This is a community service project for the Wheeling-Buttalo Grove area.

Members will bring canned goods to the next club meeting, Thursday evening at 8, at Addolorata Villa. Area Girl Scouts will also collect canned goods door-to-door.

The baskets will include hams or turkeys and will be distributed during Thanksgiving week.

Mrs. Steve McFarland, community service chairman, may be called at 537-3906 for further information.

It's Big Business

Dairying is the most important agricultural industry in New York state. Nine out of every 10 acres in the state used for crops is used to maintain dairy cows.

Evening of Cards

The first annual card and games party sponsored by St. Cecilia Altar Guild will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the parish center, 2000 Scott Terr., Mount Prospect.

Mrs. John Long, 439-2529, may be called for reservations. Tickets are limited.

Homemakers Discuss Tension in Youths

"Pressures and Tensions in Young People" is the topic to be discussed by Arlington Heights Homemakers Extension Unit at Thursday's meeting at 1 p.m. at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan.

The lesson, conducted by Mrs. W. Wadsworth, will be held a week early because of the Thanksgiving holiday. Hostesses are Mrs. Joseph Jirak, Mrs. B. A. Owen and Mrs. A. Schulte.

Also on the agenda is the election of officers and discussion of plans for a Christmas party Dec. 11. Tickets for the annual meeting in the LaSalle Hotel on Thursday, Jan. 15, may be purchased at this time.

AFTER A HONEYMOON in Colorado Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy James Holmes are living near Newport, R.I., Naval Base where the groom is stationed. He and the former Lynn Ethel Williamson, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Williamson of Bloomingdale, were married in St. Peter Church, Itasca. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes of Barrington.

VFW Card Party Knippel Appointed

The Ladies Auxiliary to Wheeling VFW Post 7178 is planning a card and games party Friday, Nov. 21, at 8 p.m. in the Amvet Hall on Milwaukee Avenue. Tickets will be sold at the door. Mrs. Robert Holquist, ways and means chairman, is in charge of the event.

Correction

Announcement of the Las Vegas Night party being given by Catholic Women's Club of Elk Grove Queen of the Rosary Church stated incorrectly that the party would be held in the church hall. The party is at Salt Creek Country Club, Itasca, this (Friday) evening starting at 8:30.

Size, Speed, Hard-Hitters — Talent!

The 22 Best — Paddock's All-Area Squad

by PADDOCK'S SPORTS STAFF

The 1969 All-Area football team, the first ever selected by Paddock Publications, is loaded with record holders, highly acclaimed performers and lots of talent.

The team differs in height from Bob Moloznik's 5-7 to Bill Michalek's 6-3 and in weight from Chris Andriano's 150 to Mike O'Malley's 220, but in the amount of talent each member has, there is little difference.

The offensive ends, Palatine's Andriano and Prospect's Casey Rush, are a pair of swift, elusive, glue-fingered young men. Andriano is the Mid-Suburban League's all-time leading receiver with 66 catches, 13 for touchdowns. Rush, one of the All-Area team's three juniors, caught 38 passes this past season and has a shot at Andriano's all-time record next fall.

The tackle positions are filled by two rugged, strong seniors, John Vandenberg of St. Viator and Jack Hult of Arlington. At 5-9 and a muscular 185 pounds, Vandenberg fired out as well as any lineman around and was equally adept on pass blocking as well as blocking on running plays. Hult, 6-4 and 210 pounds, left many defensive linemen aching with his punishing blocking.

Palatine's Bob Carr, who is up for All-State recognition, and Fenton's best football player, Dave King, proved to be the best two guards for the 1969 season. Carr's best play was the power sweep in which he would pull out and lead the ball carrier around the end. When it came to trap blocking and cross blocking, there was none better than King.

Fremd's Jeff Creek, at 180 pounds, is small compared to many offensive centers, but in the category of toughness and competitiveness he ranked high. Creek also performed his chief duty as well as any center — snapping the ball to the quarterback. The Vikings lost just one fumble all season. Added up, Creek centered the ball more than 400 times during the season and the Vikings did not lose the ball once as a result of a bad snap.

One of the truly outstanding triple threats around, Lake Park's Glenn Damato, was named as the All-Area team's quarterback. Damato ran for over 700 yards, passed for nearly 800 yards, threw seven touchdown passes, scored over 100 points and punted for an average better than 41 yards per boot. Damato was one of the better signal callers, so good that his coach, Bob Monken once said, "I let Damato call more than three-fourths of the plays in the huddle."

Jim (Quick Draw) McGraw, Conant's All-State candidate, gained 948 yards this season to lead the area rushers and was selected at one halfback. Over his three-year, 25-game career, McGraw gained 2,049 yards on 398 carries and scored 24 touchdowns. At 6-1 and 185 pounds, McGraw had the power to run over people, the elusiveness to run around people and the speed to run away from defenders.

Bob Moloznik of Fremd is one of the smallest players in the Mid-Suburban League but his abilities were so good that his size did not make a bit of difference in his offensive production. Moloznik, who weighs a solid 105 pounds, gained over 600 yards this fall and led his Viking team in scoring with 66 points.

Skip Peterson of Hersey is the fastest prepster on the squad with enough speed to run 100 yards in 9.8. Peterson just fell short of catching McGraw in the Mid-Suburban League rushing standings and he was selected by the MSL coaches as deserving of All-State recognition. What makes Peterson so awesome is that he packs away 192 pounds with his 9.8 speed. In one game he picked up 283 yards . . . against Palatine, no less.

Many football fans have said that the defenses just aren't as good as they used to be. But looking over the Paddock All-Area defensive unit, those same football fans must think it over once again.

Bill Michalek of Forest View and Carl Anderson of Arlington are the defensive ends and they played winning football during the career. Michalek was with Forest View's 1967 co-championship team and Anderson played with Arlington's 1968 championship squad. Michalek is 6-3 and 195 pounds and he used his brute strength to lead his team in tackles. Anderson, at 180 pounds, used all the tricks of a seasoned veteran and outstanding quickness to get to enemy ball carriers.

The two biggest players on the All-Area team are the defensive tackles — St. Viator's Pat McGrath and Conant's Mike O'Malley.

McGrath, who weighs 215 pounds, simply overpowered nearly every blocker and ball carrier who came his way. It was McGrath's great defensive performance against Joliet West that snapped Joliet's 23-game winning streak.

In the Cougar football program, O'Malley is listed at 200 pounds but is really closer to 220. An all-around player, O'Malley played fullback, tackle, defensive end, defensive tackle and linebacker in his high school career. Fremd coach Al Ratcliff was so impressed with O'Malley's abilities that he said, "If I had to start a team and had one player in the league to start that team with, I would choose Mike O'Malley." Further acclaim need not be mentioned.

Greg Swanson was generally a line-backer for Forest View's defensive team, but the 5-11, 185 pounder was also called on to play on the line on occasion. At line-backer or middle guard, Swanson was one of the most respected hitters in the Mid-Suburban League.

Linebackers are supposed to be contact-hungry headhunters and that is what the All-Area's headhunting is — Ed Klingberg of St. Viator, Faust DeLazzer of Lake Park, Mike Ryder of Hersey and Mike Hadley of Arlington.

Klingberg, just a junior, has played on the varsity team since he was a freshman. And no wonder . . . the 194 pounder moves with the ball like a magnet and hits like a runaway garbage truck. When Klingberg makes a tackle, it can be heard all over the stadium.

DeLazzer is one of those high school athletes who is exactly that — an athlete. DeLazzer called the defensive signals for Lake Park's unit and led the way with not only leadership but with inspiring football. DeLazzer has good speed, good enough speed to play center field on the baseball team.

Ryder is not the kind of football player who inspires much enthusiasm from the fans but the opposition sure knows he's around. Ryder played a consistently good game week after week. He surprised and shocked many a quarterback with a hard-charging blitz.

Arlington's 1969 football team may not have been as good as the 1968 Cardinal squad, but Hadley was every bit as good in 1969 as he was in 1968. In the Cardinal defense the middle linebacker must cover the outside flanks on pass defense. And Hadley was the only linebacker who could possibly do it.

Fremd's defensive secondary set a record with 19 interceptions this past season and the chief cog of the Viking secondary was Larry Hanks. The 175-pound junior picked off four passes in one game and was usually assigned the opposition's top receiver every week. And Hanks did his job well.

Ron Ortwerth of Conant was overshadowed by many of his teammates on the Mid-Suburban League championship squad, but not by opponents. Ortwerth did not have the great statistics in the interception department, but, then that is not always the measure of a great deep back. Opponents simply did not throw to Ortwerth's zone on many occasions because Ron had the receiver so closely covered.

There it is — the 1969 All-Paddock football team. There may be room for argument on the above selections. But with the talent these players have, there certainly can not be much room for argument. In our opinion, these are the best 22 football players around!

Not Discouraged, Saw Progress

By CHUCK WILLOUGH

When a coach goes from an undefeated championship season one year to a losing season the next, it could almost be expected that he would be just a little discouraged.

But Arlington Coach Bob Walther, whose Cardinals rolled to nine straight victories in 1968 to claim the Mid-Suburban League football crown and then fell to a 3-4-1 mark this past season, has no bad feelings about this season or his players.

In fact, Walther is proud of his squad. "We felt that the team continued to improve all the way through the season," he said. "The kids did a real fine job. They worked harder and longer than any other group I've had."

"You know," he added, "People expected us to win every game, but saying it is a lot easier than doing it. I'll tell you, though, we may not have won many games, but after every game the other team knew they had played Arlington. We hit them harder than any team they played."

Bob Walther

When the season first began, there was room for a lot of optimism in the Cardinal camp. Although Walther had only two regulars back from the previous year, he had a horde of youngsters off the Cardinal jayvee squad that had gone undefeated the year before.

Optimism continued after the Cards' first game, when they took on and defeated a rugged Maine West squad, 10-0, in the non-league opener.

After that initial victory, though, things went downhill for Arlington. The next week the Cards fell to Palatine, 11-0, then played to a scoreless tie with Wheeling. It wasn't until the fourth week of the season that the Cards recorded their second win, 20-8, over Glenhard North.

The very next week, however, Forest View edged Arlington, 6-0, then the Cards fell to Prospect, 13-0. The third victory of the year did not materialize until the seventh week of the season when the Cards exploded for a 37-12 decision over Elk Grove. But then the Cards dropped their last game of the year, 28-0, to a fired-up Fremd unit, and the 3-4-1 record was on the books.

The problem with the Cards was a simple one. Just glancing at the statistics or the scores of the games will give you an idea. The Cards lacked offensive punch. In four of the eight games, Arlington was shut out, and only twice did the Cards score more than two touchdowns in a game.

One reason for the lack of punch, said Walther, was that the teams had to adjust to a new offense and never quite turned the corner. "We went through a physical change at quarterback," he said, "and switching from a running to a passing attack might have slowed us down for a while. We lacked that one good offensive blocking back that we needed to establish a running game, so we had to change our attack."

Another reason that the Cards lacked offensive ability was that they were defensive-oriented. "Psychologically, we pointed towards our defensive game but not our offensive game. We would go out there on defense and say we have to stop the other team, but we never told ourselves that we had to push the ball over the goal line. We never had that little extra surge we needed to push the ball across."

And, of course, there was at least one more reason why the Cards did not score too much, as any Arlington fan well remembers. Two of Arlington's games were played in driving rain storms. "Those adverse conditions we had to play in probably hurt us as much as anything," the coach stated. "We could never get our defenses unwound."

But if Arlington lacked a scoring punch, the Cards had plenty of defensive punch. For the fourth year in a row, Arlington led the league in team defense, this year allowing opponents to rack up a total of only 561 yards in MSL play, or about 140 yards per game.

Leading the defensive effort was a group of three seniors and one junior who were named to the MSL all-star team. Carl Anderson at defensive end, Mike Hadley at Linebacker, and Jack Hull at tackle were the senior standouts. Junior Tom Harris was honored at the other tackle.

And even though the team did not rack up an impressive won-lost record, there were still plenty of other heroes on the squad. Running backs Mike DeZonna and Scott Douglas did a fine job all year long. Fred Harth led the Cards to the Maine West win at quarterback and sophomore Terry Ormsbee did a great job passing in later games.

In fact, just about everybody on the team had good individual years. Kevin Elbertson complemented Hull at tackle, Pete Harth showed great promise at guard, and Jeff Selleck may have been one of the league's very best centers.

One of Arlington's problems this year may be a great asset next season, though. The Cards made quite a few mistakes through the season, but many of those might be explained by the fact that 13 of the players on the team were underclassmen.

And 13 returning lettermen gave Walther a lot to think about for next year. Coming back will be Selleck and Denny Foreman, the team's co-captains, Chuck Donchess, Harris, John Gabler, Bob McDonald, Pete Harth, Tom Sayre and Dick Wellon, plus Mike D'Angelo, Douglas, Ormsbee and Harris.

"As far as experience goes," Walther said, "we'll be in much better shape next year. And if some of our sophomores come through as juniors, we should have a pretty good team."

Looking at the prospective starters for next season, the coach then added, "We'll probably be a little faster too. Not that lightning quickness, but just good, all-around speed. And I'll tell you, next year we're going to play our games one game at a time. We're not going to talk about being champions until we are."

Lancers, Falcons Dominate Tri-County All-Star Team

Wheaton North and Lake Park, the finest football aggregations in the Tri-County Conference in 1969, dominated the league's all-conference team chosen by the league's coaches Monday night.

Both the champion Falcons and the runner-up Lancers boasted seven members of the 24-man all-star team. In an unprecedented move, Wheaton quarterback Randy Pfund (6-0, 165) and Lake Park quarterback Glenn Damato (6-0, 175) were named to the squad without a vote after Fenton coach Bob Apploby made the motion to put both men on the team.

Apploby's suggestion, based on the fact that the two quarterbacks were the best offensive performers in the league and that neither should be left off the all-star team, was unanimously approved by the other six coaches.

Damato led the league in scoring (82 points) and in touchdown passes. Pfund was second in both categories. Each quarterback also averaged 40 yards per punt during the season.

Lake Park players selected, in addition to Damato, were offensive end Dennis Moss (6-1, 190), offensive guard Faust DeLazzer (6-0, 195), center Tom Stuckey (6-1, 190), fullback Mike Goldman (6-2, 200), defensive end Bob Rithaler (5-10, 155), and defensive back Dave Falkenberg (6-3, 180).

Wheaton's all-stars included offensive end Bill Ryder (6-1, 175), offensive tackle John Quigley (6-2, 185), offensive lineman Dana Andrewson (5-11, 230), linebacker Bill Thomas (6-0, 185), and defensive backs Ryder and Jeff VanGetson (6-1, 155).

Of the 10 remaining positions, Mundelein and Ridgewood claimed three each, Fenton and Crown two apiece.

For the Mustangs it was Gary Olson (6-2, 248) at offensive and defensive tackle, Scott DeVier (6-3, 215) at defensive end; for the Rebels Mark Carlson (6-2, 190) at running back, Art Cirignani (6-0, 190) as a defensive lineman, and Bruce Ogradnik at linebacker.

Bisons honored were linebacker Ken Hartmann (6-1, 190) and offensive guard Dave King (6-0, 180); Vikings were full-back Mark Kellar (6-0, 210) and defensive lineman Tom Huffman (6-0, 210).

Pfund, Damato, Olson, DeLazzer, and Thomas were recommended by the coaches committee for all-state consideration.

Honorable mention plaquidts went to 22 players, five from Wheaton North, three each from Fenton, Crown, Elmwood Park, Ridgewood, and Mundelein, and two from Lake Park.

Falcons honored were Dave Karas, Tom Knighton, Jay Bennett, Jan Hook, and Mark Miller; Bisons, Hartmann, Eric Mychko, and Jim Hammer; Vikings, Bob Lowrenz, Rick Evans, and Jeff Boyle; Tigers John Aldridge, John Conny, and Rocco Guerriero; Rebels, Rick DeFelice, Will Vitols, and John Rogacki; Mustangs, Rich Boothe, Bob Seeds, and Murray Kelly; and Lancers Bob Dohse and Scott Snider.

Big Weekend Ahead

Paddock Women Classic Traveling League bowlers had better have their arms limbered up for this weekend, for it will be a doubly busy time for them.

In a rarity, the lady bowlers will hold two full states of matches within 24 hours — at 6:30 Saturday evening, the usual time, and again at 1 o'clock Sunday.

This could make it a very important weekend, since only four more nights of league bowling will remain in the season's first half after Sunday. Normally, a lot of changes can take place in one week of league bowling, and that is even more the case this week.

The women will get together at Des Plaines Lanes Saturday evening and at Hoffman Lanes Sunday. Sunday's bowling will take the place of the schedule originally set for Dec. 6.

Meanwhile, the men will stick to their original schedule when they gather at Hoffman Lanes Saturday evening.

The top two teams, Buick in Evanston and Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant at the Flying Carpet Motor Inn, will continue their jostling for the top spot, which Buick holds by two points at present. These two groups have been starting to put some daylight between themselves and the rest of the league recently.

Snack Time Restaurant (on a winning streak lately), Morton Pontiac, and Uncle Andy's Cow Palace are also in good position and will be looking to throw themselves back into the thick of the race.

The complete men's schedule will be: Buick in Evanston vs. Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Lenglo's Refinishing vs. Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant at the Flying Carpet Motor Inn, Gaare Oil vs. Snack Time Restaurant, and Morton Pontiac vs. Thunderbird Pro Shop.

Some very interesting matches are also in store for the ladies on both days. Sunday's card will be especially important, with the top two teams at present, Sims Bowl and Des Plaines Lanes, meeting head-on.

Sunday will also find the third and fourth-place units, Lattof Chevrolet and Kemmerly Realty, knocking heads. The other Sabbath matches will be Girard-Bruno vs. Morton Pontiac and Duchess Beauty Salon vs. Doyle's Striking Lanes.

The women's Saturday schedule is: Morton Pontiac vs. Kemmerly Realty, Doyle's Striking Lanes vs. Des Plaines Lanes, Sims Bowl vs. Duchess Beauty Salon, and Lattof Chevrolet vs. Girard-Bruno.

Aided by Former Area Grid Stars

Five players prominent in area high school football in the 1968 season helped Western Illinois University's freshman gridgers to a 4-3 record this fall.

The quintet is Rick Schachner of Wheeling and four Conant players — defensive lineman Tim Koergen, flanker Larry Sicher, linebacker Jim Faranosi and end Dennis McGlory.

Sicher and McGlory were the prime receivers in Conant's outstanding passing attack in '68. Sicher set a Mid-Suburban League record with 41 catches and had 49 for the overall season. He was the league's all-time leading pass receiver until Palatine's Chris Andriano claimed that distinction this year. McGlory grabbed 24 passes in his senior year.

Faranosi was an all-conference linebacker at Conant and Koergen also did a fine job.

Schachner was valuable to the Western frosh on the special units this year.

Free Market Included in Welfare Plan

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) —Behind President Nixon's proposal to reform the U.S. public welfare system stands a new application of an old idea—the "free market" theory.

The theory holds that the free choices individuals make about spending their incomes and managing their lives are better for themselves and society than can be made by any organization, particularly government.

Stated in that general way, the proposition probably would be embraced by Americans of all but the most extreme ideologists. But as a remedy for poverty, the idea that the government should give money to the poor and then pay no attention to how it is spent seems sure to raise hackles.

The Nixon proposal would eliminate practically all of the complex red tape and investigation that now must be completed before a poor family can get public assistance, and put much more reliance on the recipients to use their welfare benefits as they think best. There still would be advice available, but not the penny-by-penny budgeting now imposed on welfare clients by many states and localities.

There may be more controversial elements of the Nixon plan—for example, the very idea of a guaranteed income or the extension of welfare benefits to the "working poor." But it is the proposal to trust the poor to do the "right thing" with someone else's money that seems most likely to provoke liberals as well as conservatives.

Liberals whose ideas were formed by the New Deal and its successor political regimes set great store in the ability of the government to protect the public from economic exploitation.

As illustrated by the current welfare program and the more recent war on poverty, the orthodox liberal way to help the poor is to provide a heavy dose of "services"—advice and training on how to buy food, prevent disease, raise children and find jobs—along with money.

Because the Nixon income maintenance plan does not emphasize services and offers money to the poor with the single condition that they be willing to work if jobs are available, the liberals can be expected to be skeptical.

Conservative alarm about the plan may be focused on two points: It will cost a lot more than is now being spent for public assistance and it seems to provide few safeguards against irresponsible use of taxpayers' money.

The administration has said the $4 billion added cost to start the proposal is necessary because it will cover more poor people and provide an incentive—continuation of benefits—for the poor to take jobs, even if they are low-paying. But it has little more than faith in the free market theory to offer as a reply to critics who expect the poor to spend their welfare checks on liquor instead of food.

Still, there are several strong reasons advanced for switching to a welfare system that requires less supervision of the lives of its beneficiaries.

First, the cost of policing and servicing the present system is very high—some estimates place it at 25 per cent of the total. Second, the poor have become increasingly bitter about the rules and close supervision that go with welfare benefits and the more affluent cling to the belief that there is widespread cheating anyway.

Finally, the present system, even with the highest quality of services, does not seem to be reducing dependency. There is a growing feeling that it may be actually breeding a "welfare way of life" in a group of increasing size.

Changes in the welfare system do seem likely for these and other reasons. But unless Congress, which now has begun to study the Nixon plan, has an unexpected sudden burst of trust in the ability of poor people to run their own lives, there probably will be some strings attached to the free market theory before it gets a practical test.

Greek King Is Waiting

by ERNEST SAKLER

ROME (UPI)—Next month it will be two years since young King Constantine of Greece went "on strike" against the ruling military junta in Athens and chose exile.

Today, living quietly in Rome with his queen, the lovely former Princess Anne Marie of Denmark, and their three children, the 29-year-old Constantine shows no outward signs of being ready to return to his country unless on his own terms.

The terms are said to include free elections and a political climate of open and free debate.

Though they have been assiduous about shunning the limelight during their self-exile in Rome, the Greek royal couple came briefly back into the headlines on Oct. 1 when the 24-year-old Anne Marie gave birth to her third child, a son whom they have named Nicholas. In addition to the infant Prince Nicholas the children are Crown Prince Paul, 2, and Princess Alexia, 4.

Ever since they fled to Rome on Dec. 14, 1967, after Constantine tried unsuccessfully to overthrow the leaders of the army coup d'etat which took power in April that year, the Greek exiles have sought to attract as little attention to themselves as possible. Constantine wants to do nothing that will make it harder for him to return some day to the throne that is still officially his.

The Athens regime still considers Constantine the king of Greece although it has appointed a regent to discharge royal functions in his place. It put out a cautious feeler to the king earlier this year by sending Foreign Minister Panoyotis Pipinellis to meet Constantine in Switzerland.

There has been no comment on the meeting from members of Constantine's entourage in Rome, but information leaked in London at the time said the king told Pipinellis he was willing to return to Greece only if there were free general elections held after an open political campaign.

The young king has maintained quiet contacts with Athens by means of two courtiers, Court Marshal Leonidas Papagos and Marinos Ieroulanos, who commute regularly between the Greek capital and Rome.

At the same time, Constantine appears to be keeping some lines open to rightwing opposition leaders in exile, such as ex-Premier Constantine Karamanlis in Paris.

Greek political sources said the king and Karamanlis appeared to have agreed to shelve differences dating back to the times of Constantine's father, King Paul.

Constantine made world headlines when he arrived in Rome, haggard and unshaven, in the early hours of a cold December morning two years ago. For several months afterwards, if he merely stepped out on the street to buy a newspaper, photographers mobbed him.

Things have since changed. Now he and the queen live almost as recluses. When occasionally they venture out, perhaps to quiet dinners in out-of-the-way Roman restaurants, they draw little attention.

In the first weeks of their Italian stay, the royal couple lived at the Greek Embassy across the street from the Rome zoo. They then moved to a luxury hotel near the Via Veneto nightlife street and later to a secluded villa off the ancient Via Cassia 12 miles northwest of Rome. Queen Mother Frederika rented the villa from a Mexican millionaire.

About a year ago, Constantine and Anne Marie moved to another and less palatial villa on the Via di Porta Latina at the other end of Rome. Its owner is Countess Alice Paolozzi, whose daughter Christine made news several years ago by posing topless for a magazine photograph.

The royal couple share the 10-room villa with their children and a Greek and an Irish nursemaid. Queen Frederika and Constantine's sister, Princess Irene, now live in another villa on the northern outskirts of Rome.

Police assigned by the Italian government to guard the king—one uniformed Carabinieri who stands at the gate of the royal villa and two plainclothesmen who follow Constantine wherever he goes—have most of their trouble with photographers trying to take pictures of the couple.

Photographers also irritated the king during their summer vacation at Ansedonia, a Tuscan beach resort. Constantine complained to Italian authorities against camera hawks who took long lens pictures of himself and his wife in bathing suits.

Constantine and Anne Marie also spent part of the summer in Denmark with her parents, King Frederik IX and Queen Ingrid. Earlier in the year, Constantine went to Washington for the funeral of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and was received there with full royal honors.

Athens reports say the king's exile has not affected his royal allowance, which amounts to $500,000 annually. The pay is supposed to cover the king's salary, travel expenses and maintenance and operation of the royal palace and gardens. An undisclosed share of the allowance is deducted and retained in Athens to cover palace expenses, but the remainder reportedly is sent to the king in Rome each month by special courier.

Also elected were building directors Ed Kirk, Neil Hunter, Mike Graff, and Fred Hillman; and industry directors Fred DePirro, Karl Reinko, John Eilerling, Thomas Grutling, Dan Knowles, David Murphy, Richard Sanders, James Shapiro, Don Goldstein and Clifford Wall. The group's inaugural ball will be held Dec. 12.

Sales for the period were $51,193,000 versus sales of $39,729,000 last year. Earnings were $1,760,359, or $1.81 a share, compared to earnings of $1,622,104 or $1.89 a share in 1968. Jones said the firm's third quarter earnings were effected by labor strikes in the construction industry, competitive pricing and increased raw material costs. Van Dorn's product lines include containers of metal, plastic and composition metals, plastic injection molding machinery, heat treating service for steel, and metal lithographing. A Van Dorn plant is located in Itasca.

Begins Last Unit

Hoffman Rosner Corp. today announced that it is beginning work on the final unit of 60 homes it expects to build in Northwest suburban Hoffman Estates. The company created the community in 1966, and has since built more than 5,000 homes on 2,005 acres there.

The last 60 homes are to be built in the High Point section of the community and will include ranches, split-levels, and mid-levels ranging in price from $29,950 to $36,950.

"It's hard to conceive of Hoffman Estates without an active building program by Hoffman Rosner, but after these 60 homes are sold, our activities will be concentrated at Indian Oaks in Bolingbrook and at Westlake in Bloomingdale," explained Gene Kaplan, sales manager for the High Point development.

HE NOTED THAT demand for homes in Hoffman Estates has risen sharply since the recent start of construction of the Woodfield Mall regional shopping center just to the east of the village.

Billed as the world's largest enclosed mall shopping center, Woodfield Mall will have 2,000,000 square feet of covered shopping including Marshall Field, J. C. Penney, and Sears Roebuck stores.

Besides offering unexcelled shopping facilities, the center will also create thousands of employment opportunities for village residents, Kaplan noted.

The High Point area which Hoffman Rosner is now completing is a 408-acre site on which development was begun in January, 1967. Features include a 35-acre park and twin man-made lakes totaling 10 acres. Several lakefront homesites are still available.

Eight model homes are on display on Higgins Road, two miles west of Roselle Road, daily from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

To Prosecute Thieves

Goodwill Industries recently announced it will prosecute persons caught stealing materials from its clothing deposit boxes located in the Chicagoland area.

The action was announced by M. Glen Miller, board president, after Goodwill filed complaints against five persons apprehended by Evanston police for pilfering clothing and appliances from boxes in the North Shore suburb.

"Stealing from our boxes is almost like taking bread from a child's mouth," Miller said. "Materials placed in Goodwill boxes actually are 'tools' on which our handicapped workers and trainees learn job skills by repairing and renovating the discarded. If they are deprived of these necessities, it means their training programs are curtailed and fewer items are made available for sale in our retail outlets, thus reducing the money available to pay their wages."

"WE HAVE BEEN assured by police departments in areas where our boxes are located they will keep a close watch on them, and officers will not hesitate to arrest persons looting the boxes. It's a real shame some people are abusing the convenience Goodwill has provided for easily disposing of discards," Miller added.

He also issued a plea for householders to put their discarded clothing and small appliances in Goodwill boxes because the nonprofit agency has been forced by economic reasons to temporarily curtail its home pickup service.

"We need all the clothing we can get," Miller said, "and I hope the public will continue to be as generous as possible in giving us discards. If a householder wants to know where the nearest box is to his home, he can get the information by calling Goodwill at 738-3860 and asking for the Collections Department."

Need Design Flexibility

The systems approach to solving the national housing shortage was the theme of the recent 11th annual convention and exposition of the Society of American Registered Architects (SARA), Chicago.

"This technique envisions the architect as the coordinator of a group consisting of the developer, the mortgage banker, the contractor, the owner's representative, the public official, the union representative, the sociologist and appropriate suppliers so that all aspects of a project will be evaluated with relation to the intended use," Roy D. Murphy, SARA president and head of Creative Buildings, Inc. (CBI), Urbana, Illinois, said recently.

"The systems approach, coupled with the use of totally manufactured housing can provide design flexibility and reduced housing costs for the consumer," he stated, "whether that be in Chicago or any other community."

Operation Breakthrough, the Housing & Urban Development Department's program designed to add 26 million dwelling units to the nation's housing supply in 10 years is built around these concepts, he emphasized.

"HOW CAN WE possibly meet the nation's housing commitments with antiquated methods?" he asked. "At the present rate of 1.4 million housing units annually we will have only 14 million homes in 10 years. Obviously, we will be 12 million homes short of the government's goal unless we turn to mass production techniques and a systems approach that employs all our know-how in a total attack to overcome our acknowledged housing shortage."

He stressed these factors:

Mass production techniques have been available to builders for more than a decade, but only a few companies used them.

Operation Breakthrough envisions a systems approach to housing. This method has been in use by some builders for the past 15 years.

Current market conditions favor the total manufacturing and systems approach, he emphasized. In addition to HUD's indicated funding, a systems oriented organization will offer a broader base as an outlet for large real estate sales volume.

"OF THE HOUSING units being built today," he added, "less than five per cent of the multi-family dwellings are classed as being of the totally manufactured type."

Yet multi-family structures comprise 50 per cent of the market, mobile homes account for a fourth and conventional single family homes make up the remaining one-fourth.

Totally manufactured housing has replaced the pre-fab housing, the product of initial attempts to industrialize home construction. In manufactured housing each room is complete with electrical wiring, plumbing, windows and interior appointments when it leaves the factory.

He cited as examples of manufactured housing two projects now under construction by CBI. One in Pontiac, is a PHA turnkey, low income family $1 million town house complex of 12 buildings with 50 apartments and a community building. A four-bedroom unit there will rent for from $50 to $105 depending upon the renter's income. The balance will be subsidized by the government.

The second is a 72-unit $1 million garden style development in Champaign. This project is a 221(d)(3) FHA medium income development in an urban renewal area sponsored by the Mt. Olive Missionary Baptist Church. It consists of six 2½ story 12-family buildings. Rentals will be approximately $118 for a two-bedroom apartment and $135 for the three-bedroom units.

Both the developer and the single family owner can express their individuality through variations of design in exterior materials and in the choice of interior appointments.

BUILDERS OF totally manufactured homes today use quality products with which the general public is familiar so safety and durability of homes built by this method are comparable to, and in some cases better, than dwellings erected by conventional methods.

Construction costs can be reduced as much as 20 per cent because of economies in purchasing and lack of weather delays, he stated. Further, employment layoffs due to inclement weather are eliminated as the unit modules are built indoors.

Modular builders incorporate in the modules code specified products. Thus, a community's housing integrity is maintained.

"Detroit automated automotive production generations ago and provides the consumer every conceivable kind of choice. Housing can do the same, but those in the field must recognize the potential for growth and then automate their operations."

"When that occurs the public will benefit from lower costs for housing without sacrificing quality or design flexibility," he said.

Tells Withholding Conditions

Many people over age 65 are losing monthly social security payments simply because they do not know their rights under the social security law. They are not aware that they don't have to quit work completely in order to get social security payments according to Art Hutchison, district manager of the Northwest Social Security Office.

A man or woman entitled to retirement payments can earn up to $1,680 in a year and receive all his social security checks. If he earns more than that amount, one dollar in social security payments is withheld for each $2 he earns above $1,680 and up to $2,880. The most that could be withheld, based on $2,880 of earnings, is $600. It is only after a man earns $2,880 in a year that one dollar in social security payments is withheld for each dollar earned over $2,880.

THEREFORE, IF a man is entitled to $100 a month in social security payments he would receive $1,200 in benefits during the year without having any of his payments withheld and could earn, in addition, $1,680 in wages. If he earned $2,880, in the year, $600 would be withheld from his checks. He would still get $600 in social security payments.

If he earned another $600 above the $2,880, then an additional $600 would be withheld from his social security payments. This man had to earn $3,480 on his job before all social security payments would be withheld.

ALSO, CONTINUED Hutchison, no matter how much a person earns in a year no social security payments can be withheld for any month in which he earned $140 or less. In fact, a business man recently took a two month vacation trip to Europe in which he did not participate in his business in any way. He was pleasantly surprised when he was told at the social security office that he was entitled to receive benefits checks for those two months.

Another important point for workers to remember is that no matter how much they earn after age 72 they cannot lose checks for any month beginning with their 72nd birthday and thereafter.

Finally, Hutchison concluded, if a person has any questions about his social security rights he should contact the social security office for full information.

Open New Facility Scouts Now Serve One Out of Four

M. G. Electric Service Co., open in Arlington Heights since June of this year, will hold an open house for industry representatives Nov. 20-21, at its facility at 1450 E. Algonquin Road.

Refreshments will be served at the open house, according to Dominick Lentini, treasurer. The 12,000 square foot building is divided equally between office and warehouse space. In business for 27 years, the company moved to accommodate the expansion of the business.

Approximately 125 electricians, engineers and office personnel are employed by the firm, with contracts for service completed as near as Arlington Park Towers, Arlington Heights, and as far away as Jacksonville.

Electrical maintenance and construction are the specialties of the firm. The majority of its contracts are with institutional, commercial and industrial concerns, although the company also works with general contractors.

OVER 20 VEHICLES are used by M. G. Electric personnel in the installation and maintenance of electrical work. A complete shop of tools and equipment is also maintained.

Officers of the company include: Frank Parise, president; Ronald Desideri, vice president; and Lentini.

The firm is a member of the National Electrical Contractors Association.

Calling for a commitment of both money and manpower in the inner city and in suburban areas, including the Northwest Suburban Council, the Boy Scouts of America, in cooperation with the Johnson Foundation, recently sponsored a three-day conference at Wingspread, the Frank Lloyd Wright-designed headquarters of the Johnson Foundation in Racine, Wis.

Michael J. Flynn, manager of the travel department at First Arlington National Bank, Arlington Heights, chairman of the conference, noted that the Boy Scouts now serve one out of every four boys in this country. By 1976, the organization plans to serve one out of three boys. "We not only need to raise $165 million to reach these boys; we need the manpower, both voluntary and professional, to work with them," he said.

THE INNER-CITY conference, first of its kind in bringing together both volunteer and professional scouts, was attended by 70 selected participants and observers from Region 7 metropolitan areas in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Bryan S. Reid Jr., chairman of the conference, and Flynn, conference coordinator, kept the sessions flexible to permit discussions following each major presentation.

Dr. Eugene S. Callendar, executive director of the New York City Urban Coalition, challenged the conference at the outset with his presentation: Urban Poverty and its Implications for Scouting.

Kenneth Wells, director, and Conrad Fruehan, assistant director, presented excellent findings of four years of research by the national office including their presentation on Characteristics of Poverty USA.

Theodore Parker, director of special projects, and Dan Beard Council BSA Cincinnati, Ohio, who has lived in the "hard core" area, produced a session illustrating his techniques and two innovative programs: Scoutmobiles and Street Troops.

JAMES E. JOHNSON, vice chairman of the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. addressed the group on the subject:

They've Swept Into Success

One of the cleanest businesses in the area recently held a grand opening in its new quarters.

Northern Chemical Co., a sanitary maintenance supply firm at 729 E. Kensington Road, Arlington Heights, recently moved from its original location at 604 S. Busse, Elk Grove Village, to another site almost double in size. During the grand opening, refreshments were served, specials were offered and a door prize was given away.

The janitor supply business is now in the same building occupied by Beverly Lanes. Display, office and warehouse space is included in the facility.

DICK RICE, of Elk Grove, owner, said that in the seven years Northern Chemical Co. has been in business, yearly sales have more than tripled.

Everything from push brooms to large automatic sweepers and industrial shampoo machines are available at the firm. Rice said that the firm makes an estimate of a customer's needs, including waxes, cleaners, paper towels and soap. "They may not take all of our suggestions," he said, "but at least it gives them an idea of their needs."

"Most people would rather maintain carpeting than tile," according to Rice, "although neither is harder to maintain. The firm has equipment for cleaning both."

Area schools, maintenance contractors and industrial firms are among Northern Chemical's customers, although Rice attributes the growth of his business largely to the rapid industrial growth in the suburbs.

"We cover the towns in this area. We can give almost immediate service as a

Placement Close to Home

In the world of female employment, the largest group of applicants are women returning to work after an extended absence, according to Cloe Thomas, women's advisor at the Roland Employment Service office at 10 E. Campbell, Arlington Heights.

The Arlington office, opened this fall, can boast that none of the women it has placed have quit their jobs, according to Miss Thomas. "The majority of jobs we place them in are secretarial and clerical jobs, though some are qualified for professional positions," she said.

The office, which employs three counselors in addition to Miss Thomas and Mrs. Joan McCormick, head of the men's division, usually places one out of three applicants, in an average of three to four days.

"WE HAVE BEEN fortunate in the type of women who come to us," continued Miss Thomas. "They are usually well qualified for an office position. The majority of our placements are in this area. Most women want to work close to home because they still have school age children to care for." A successful job seeker usually has the certain level of skills demanded for a job, the ability to be with people, good appearance and ability as measured through testing at the office, according to Miss Thomas. Roland Employment administrators tests to the applicant, checks references and tries to match up her abilities with jobs available. The counselors are either college graduates or have had some college experience.

Temporary employment placement service will be added to the agency's services. There are now 10 Roland Employment Service offices in Chicago and the suburbs.

Doyno Dealership Moves

Victor Doyno, president of Des Plaines Volkswagen, Inc., announced that his new facility is now completed at 855 E. Rand Road, Des Plaines, replacing Doyno Motors, Inc. at 530 West Northwest Highway, Mount Prospect.

According to Doyno, the building, with 34,000 square feet of floor space, is set on a 4½-acre landscaped site. A two-story new car showroom holds eight VWs, with the customer waiting room located on a mezzanine overlooking the showroom.

The service department has 20 work stalls; and the body shop has an additional 19 work and paint stalls. A three-month supply of parts and accessories sufficient to service all VW owners in the area are maintained in a 4,200 square foot storage room. Both the 45-car used car and customer parking areas are blacktopped. The new facility represents an investment of nearly $1 million.

DES PLAINES VOLKSWAGEN also offers the recently announced diagnosis and maintenance system for all its customers. Two work stalls are outfitted with comprehensive diagnosis such as headlight testing units, hoists, wheel alignment equipment and an electronic console, allowing the diagnostician to perform up to 96 separate tests.

1970 model buyers, Doyno said, will receive four free diagnoses during the first 24 months or 24,000 miles of Volkswagen ownership.

Robert Dall, general manager, announced that the 60 employees will be headed by Albert Baumgartner, sales manager, Hans Stetka, service manager, and James Schilling, parts manager.

Doyno has been a Volkswagen dealer since 1955, and established the Mount Prospect dealership in 1958.

Sales Reported On the Upswing

Real estate sales of $9,903,600 for the first nine months of 1969, a 9.5 per cent increase over the $9,222,207 in sales for the same 1968 period, were reported today by Robert G. Walters, district sales manager of Baird & Warner, Inc.'s, Mount Prospect office at 21 E. Prospect Ave. and the Arlington Heights office at 220 E. Northwest Hwy.

Michael El Re, manager of the Mount Prospect office, reported that his sales had risen to $5,405,235 from $4,750,740 for the same period, an increase of 13.6 per cent.

The 114-year-old real estate firm as a whole had sales of $99,388,263 for the nine month period, a 5.76 per cent increase over the $93,966,858 for the same 1968 period. Baird & Warner, Inc., has 26 offices serving Chicagoland.

Walters attributed a substantial portion of the company's increased sales to the success of RESET (Real Estate Service for Employee Transfers), the firm's own cross country public relations program designed to assist families transferred into and out of the Chicago area.

Boosts Daily Supply of Gas

In a quarterly report now being mailed to its almost 100,000 shareholders, Marvin Chandler, chairman of Northern Illinois Gas Co., reported that NI-Gas revenues were at record highs.

Chandler said that for the 12-month period ended Sept. 30, revenues were $272 million — seven per cent over those of the same period a year ago. Earnings for the same period, he added, rose from $2.27 to $2.53 a share.

Chandler said "Barring adverse weather during the final quarter of 1969, it appears we will attain our earnings goal for the year, which is to exceed the $2.50 a share posted in 1967 prior to enactment of the 10 per cent surtax on federal income taxes."

THE NI-GAS chairman told shareholders of the company's recently reported coal find, with possible commercial value, in central Illinois. The coal, discovered while NI-Gas was searching for additional underground storage areas for natural gas, is now being evaluated as to quantity, quality and recoverability — all factors in determining whether it is commercially minable — and options are being acquired.

NI-Gas stockholders were also informed that the company's daily supply of gas from pipeline suppliers has been boosted by some 139 million cubic feet for the coming winter. These increased purchases — plus the utility's greater underground storage capacity — give NI-Gas a daily availability of more than 3 billion cubic feet of natural gas. This is ample to meet all the demands of NI-Gas' more than one million customers even on the coldest winter day, Chandler said.

IN DISCUSSING long-range supply, he said NI-Gas has taken a first step toward purchase of a portion of its future gas supply directly from producers. Chandler said the company's exploration subsidiary, NI-Gas Supply, Inc., owner of a one-sixteenth interest in a 22,000-foot discovery well in the Elk City area of Western Oklahoma, has entered into a preliminary agreement with the operator of the well to assist in financing certain drilling.

In exchange, the operator proposes to sell his share of the gas to NI-Gas Supply, which also is negotiating with the other owners of this well and surrounding leases to purchase their interests in any gas which may be developed. NI-Gas Supply is contracting with one of the interstate pipelines to deliver this gas to the gas company's service area.

Chandler emphasized that negotiations covering the plan are still in process. The final program, he said, may vary substantially from the one outlined initially.

Are You On the Right Track?

The Chicago and North Western Railway is urging its commuters to take special care in boarding their desired homeward bound trains in the road's Chicago terminal.

While there will be no changes in departure times, 11 late afternoon and evening rush hour suburban trains will leave on tracks other than those on which they have been normally departing for the suburbs.

H. A. Lense, director of commuter and passenger services for the North Western said the track departure changes are being made as part of the railroad's adjustment to accommodate operation of three daily arriving and departing trains of the Baltimore & Ohio-Chesapeake & Ohio railroads transferred to the North Western's terminal from Grand Central Terminal.

"NORMALLY THE North Western, as a convenience to its commuters, attempts to have its commuter trains depart from the same tracks every day," said Lense. "Unfortunately, for this very reason, when a change in track departure does take place there is always a possibility that some commuter will not even look at the train indicator boards before boarding a train which may turn out to be the wrong one for him. Where changes take place, each train will be correctly posted with its new departure track; all we ask is that our commuters check the train departure indicator boards to make sure they get on their desired trains."

Lense said changes in departure tracks will apply to the following trains: West Line, trains departing at 3:40, 5:11, 5:34 and 5:37 p.m.; Northwest Line, trains departing at 4:42, 5:20, 5:26, 5:30 and 5:45 p.m.; and North Line, trains departing at 5:35 and 6 p.m.

Sees Beginning of Reversal

People in the United States would be better off living with wage and price controls or with inflation than with aggravated unemployment, a University of Illinois research economist said recently.

"Policies that are ineffective against the wage-price spiral but aggravate unemployment will grow increasingly dangerous," Professor V. Lewis Bassie said. "Passing the burden to a segment of the population least able to carry it will bring strong reactions."

Bassie, director of the Bureau of Economic and Business Research of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, noted that unemployment jumped to 4 per cent in September.

"Whatever doubts may be raised about the size of the increase, it would be unwise to interpret it as anything but the beginning of a real reversal," Bassie said in an editorial in the October issue of the Illinois Business Review. "The question is, how far will it go?"

"THE QUESTION arises in that form because in this situation no definite controls are available to put any particular limit on the unemployment that may develop," he said.

Bassie said prices are likely to continue upward for a year or more while unemployment is rising. This is due in part to the delayed effects of labor contracts already made or soon to be made that will last for two or three years, and in part to the short supply of some essential services, he said.

"In the early stages of a decline, the direct effects of unemployment help to sustain demand and therefore prices," Bassie said. "Consumer purchases are sustained by the dissaving of those who have become unemployed as well as by the unemployment compensation and other government spending which is undertaken on behalf of the idled workers."

THE ADMINISTRATION is cutting back expenditures and insisting on extension of the surtax, and the Federal Reserve Board is displaying a determination reminiscent of 1929 to keep money tight until the threat of inflation is eliminated," he said. "This steadfast orientation to the wrong goal — to price stability rather than production, employment and well-being — drives from the fear that any easing will restimulate inflationary expectations."

"When the rate of increase in the value of output is something like twice the rise in prices and the gains are widely distributed through growth in employment — as was the case in this country up to this year — both consumer welfare and the growth of real wealth are enhanced," he said.

"What hurts is when all of the increase is taken by higher prices," Bassie said. "That is what has been happening recently. In the first half of 1969, the real gains were only a third of the price increases, and they are dwindling to nothing at all."

BASSIE SAID THE nation is faced with a conflict of important and threatening economic instabilities.

"The liquidity squeeze on the corporations is tightening; profits and retained earnings are falling; lagging capital programs require heavy outlays; rising inventories tie up working capital, and new security issues are unattractive in depressed markets," he said. "Liquidation is seemingly in order."

"But the probabilities of international and social disturbances are high enough so that the course of economic events may not work out in any dependable pattern," Bassie concluded.

Curbs Pandering Advertisers

"The alarming increase in the amount of sexually-offensive materials flooding the mails" prompted Postmaster General Winton M. Blount recently to remind mail customers that they can take steps to curb the flow of offensive advertisements into their homes under the provisions of the Pandering Advertisements Law that became effective in April 1968.

"Despite a vigorous promotional program and the wide distribution of informational materials," Mr. Blount noted, "many families apparently still are unaware they can have mailers legally forbidden from sending them such offensive materials and have their names removed from all of the firm's mailing lists. Consequently, the post office is expanding its efforts to inform the public of this law."

The postmaster general revealed that posters informing the public "You can prohibit pandering advertisers from mailing to you" have been distributed to nearly 40,000 postal installations across the nation. Also, one-and-a-half million additional copies of the Department's informational leaflet "How You Can Curb Pandering Advertisements" have been printed and made available for distribution at local post offices.

The leaflet explains how the law works and also contains a request form the customer can use in sending a complaint to his postmaster. Under the law, each addressee has the sole right to decide for himself whether an ad is offensive. If a person receives an advertisement which is, in his opinion, "erotically arousing or sexually provocative," he should send the ad, its envelope and a proper notice to his postmaster with the words, "Request for Prohibitory Order," on the face of the envelope. The notice also may include the names of all children under 18 living at the same address.

When the patron's request is received by the Post Office Department, a "Prohibitory Order" is sent to the mailer directing him to remove the complaining patron's name from all of his mailing lists. If the mailer fails to respect the order, the postmaster general asks the attorney general to apply for a federal court order commanding compliance. Failure to observe the court order may be punishable by a fine or imprisonment.

Nearly 275,000 Prohibitory Orders have been issued by the Post Office since enactment of the Pandering Advertisements Act. Over 1,800 violation cases have been referred to the Department of Justice for federal court action. Crowded court calendars, however, have slowed the issuance of orders directing those mailers to comply.

At the same time, Blount renewed his support of the administration's pending

Randhurst Head Featured on Panel

Harold J. Carlson, vice president and general manager of Randhurst, will be a featured participant at the First National Conference on "Developing Shopping Centers in the Inner-City" to be held at the Ambassador Hotel, Chicago, Nov. 23 through 25.

Harold J. Carlson

Carlson, a certified shopping center manager of the International Council of Shopping Centers, sponsors of the conference, will participate in a panel discussion on problems of operation.

Among the topics to be discussed by Carlson are promotion and the merchants association, common area maintenance, leasing vacant space, tenants, general management and administration.

Co-panelists with Carlson will be Elmer Young, manager of the Progress Plaza, Philadelphia; and Selma Friedman of Sedma Friedman Promotions, New York.

THE ENTIRE CONFERENCE will study in depth the new inner-city shopping center now under development at Harrisburg, Pa., a "pilot" project planned by the National Progress Association for Economic Development as a model for other inner-city centers.

Prior to the panel discussion on operation problems will be panels on "pre-construction" and "construction."

Panelists on the pre-construction program will include Howard I. Abrams, of Strouss, Greenberg and Co. of Philadelphia; Isadore Frank of Frank Properties, New York; Sidney Morris, A.I.A. of the architectural firm Sidney Morris and Associates, Chicago; John Melaniphy of the Real Estate Research Corp., Chicago; and Kenneth Tucker of Kenroy, Inc., Chicago.

Participants in the construction phase panel will be E. M. Abrams of A. R. Abrams, Inc., Atlanta; Howard I. Abrams and Sidney Morris, mentioned above; Erwin A. Salk of Salk, Ward and Salk, Chicago; and Winston A. Burnett of the Winston A. Burnett Construction Co., New York.

THE KEYNOTE ADDRESS will be given by Albert Sussman, executive vice-president of the International Conference of Shopping Centers.

Registration for the complete conference of for seminar sessions only will be taken at the Ambassador Hotel Nov. 23 from 4 to 6 p.m. or Nov. 24, from 7 to 9 a.m.

Among the agencies to be represented at the Conference are the Small Business Administration, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the National Association of Real Estate Developers.

Taxpayers Need Proof to Win

Latest statistics indicate that among average tax returns only one out of 20 is selected for audit by the Internal Revenue Service, according to R. Neal Fulk, president of the Illinois Society of CPAs, and partner in charge of the Chicago office of Ernst & Ernst.

The odds come down sharply, however, when the return covers an above-average income or income from several sources, or when substantial deductions have been claimed.

Usually the taxpayer is asked to substantiate specific items in his return by mailing the IRS copies of cancelled checks, receipts and other documents. Sometimes this is difficult to do, and it may be wiser for the taxpayer to ask immediately for a conference with an examiner at a local IRS office, according to Fulk.

"IF IT'S A matter of simply showing proof, the taxpayer normally does not need to take along a CPA or lawyer to speak for him," Fulk said recently. "This may not be the case, however, if a technical tax question is involved."

In the event the taxpayer can substantiate only a portion of the deductions being challenged, the examiner may not allow any of the balance. When it comes to business travel and entertainment expenses, a diary listing all the details demanded by the IRS will usually be accepted for individual items under $25.

Illinois taxpayers should have the same kind of documented substantiation for deductions claimed on their state income tax returns, Fulk pointed out. Although deductions are not all identical with the federal provisions, many of the same expenditure records will prove useful.

WHEN THERE IS a technical question (that is, whether the item itself is deductible) the taxpayer should be prepared to refer to a tax precedent or authority. If the examiner remains unconvinced, it is within the taxpayer's rights to ask him to consult his supervisor as a higher authority.

Most office audits end in an amicable settlement, according to the IRS. However, in case the taxpayer feels the examiner has acted in an arbitrary manner or is in outright error, there are at least two options open to him, according to Fulk.

He can ask to talk to the supervisor himself or he can request a "district conference" where his case will be reviewed by a district conferee with long familiarity with tax laws and procedures.

If it is still impossible to reach a satisfactory settlement, the taxpayer can appeal to the Appellate Division and finally, to the Tax Court.

However, Fulk advised that every effort should be made first to reach agreement with the office examiner "since the costs — in time, money and worry — of appealing to higher authority may be greater than the actual tax saved."

Realtors Celebrate Charter

The Barrington Board of Realtors had been recently held their charter banquet at the Barrington Hills Country Club. Frank Burke, president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, formally presented the charter. Anthony Downs, nationally known real estate economist and forecaster, addressed the members.

Realtors from other boards as well as members of the business and professional communities participated in the celebration, arranged by Herbert Walbaum, Chairman, Eloise Gooch, Frances Skogh and Robert Farman.

Independent jurisdiction over the Barrington area was granted to the Barrington Realtors by the National Association of Real Estate Boards May 13, 1969. Prior to this date the Barrington Realtors had been members of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, whose jurisdiction now extends from Park Ridge to Palatine.

The decision culminated a two-year period of hearings at both state and national levels of Realtor organizations. Membership of Realtors, sales associates and affiliates in the new board includes more than 90 persons.

The elected officers are: Lydia Franz, president; Donald Schroeder, vice president; Katherine Watson, secretary; Herbert Walbaum, treasurer; Richard Lacy, Eloise Gooch, Dayton Nance; and John Walbaum, directors. Executive officer of the board is Charlotte Miller.

Station Hatches An Unusual Offer

The first of a chain of Chicago area gas stations is now open in Arlington Heights, with the unusual offer of a dozen eggs with the purchase of 10 gallons of gasoline.

Lunar Oil Co., Inc., has opened a station at 1001 E. Algonquin Road at Busse. Customers also have a choice of a regular box of Tide, two boxes of Scotties tissues, two coffee mugs or three glasses with the 10 gallon purchase. For those persons with smaller cars, a seven gallon purchase of gasoline will entitle the owner to a small box of Tide or one box of Scotties.

The station also offers cigarettes and milk. During November, the owners of Lunar Oil will give away one-half pint of chocolate milk with the purchase of a gallon of milk, according to Don Huber of Wilmette, manager.

Owners of Lunar Oil Co., Inc., with plans to open at least two more stations early in 1970, are Nick Schnettler, president; and O. E. Siebenmann, both of Northbrook. "We sell quality products for less money," said Schnettler, "and we employ local personnel when possible." There are eight employees at the Arlington Heights station.

The Lunar Oil facility is open 24 hours a day and features a service island with free air hose and car vacuum use available.

New Booklet Fills a Gap

To fill a gap in the assistance given to Junior Achievement youngsters by their adult sponsors from cooperating Chicago firms, a new "How" booklet has been produced and distributed by the Sales-Marketing Executives of Chicago.

The 20-page booklet selling for $1 a copy, is a sales training manual illustrating a step-by-step selling procedure, tailored to the needs of JA youngsters who do most of their selling door to door.

THE SALES-MARKETING Executives of Chicago is a non-profit organization of more than 500 sales executives from 350 Chicago firms. It was founded in 1936 and is dedicated to the development of managerial and marketing skills. The current president of SME-Chicago is Philip H.

Bowers, general manager, New York Life Insurance Co.

Junior Achievement is the program that puts high school students in business for themselves. In J.A. young people gain business experience and a practical understanding of private enterprise by organizing and managing small businesses under the guidance of adult advisers from local business firms. An expanded 1969 program in the Chicago Area began last week, with more than 350 J.A. business enterprises operated by 7,500 teenage boys and girls throughout metropolitan Chicago. It is the largest area activity in the national Junior Achievement program, which this year celebrates its 50th anniversary.

New Approach To Meetings

Michael J. Del Re, Matthew R. Thornoy-Croft and Robert G. Walters, sales managers of the Baird & Warner, Inc. offices in Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Arlington Heights, offices, respectively, recently toured Chicago's western suburbs served by the firm's LaGrange, Hinsdale and Downers Grove offices.

This was the second such tour in the company's new approach to monthly sales meetings. In August sales managers toured communities served by the firm's Glen Ellyn, Wheaton, Naperville and Geneva offices.

Following a breakfast at Henri's restaurant in Oakbrook, the group made the tour, according to John L. Hall, senior vice president and general sales manager.

Stops were made at local Baird & Warner sales offices as well as major buildings managed by the company, to become acquainted with prices and features of real estate in areas other than those in which they usually work, according to Hall.

Counters Listing Objections

Refusal to list a home for sale with a Realtor will not save money for the seller, but, in fact, may cost him money.

Realtor Arthur Godi, Stockton, Calif., pointed this out in the current issue of Real Estate TODAY, quarterly publication of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, an affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The objections to listing can be whittled down to what Godi calls "Listing's Deadly Dozen," each of which can be countered with several reasons why listing with a Realtor can save money or be of advantage to the owner.

One of the most often heard objections is, "If I sell it myself, I'll save the commission."

In this instance, the only person who's going to save the commission is the buyer, because he knows the appraiser includes the commission in the fair market value, and he will assume he can deduct the amount of the commission from the sales price, Godi stated.

Then too, he continues, most owners as non-professionals lack essential knowledge like where the lowest FHA point charges are today, specifics on the various policies of title insurance and the requirements of the structural pest control laws.

"There are no simple ways to overcome all these objections in all cases," Godi said, but there should be no doubt that the Realtor is the means to the fairest transaction possible for both the buyer and seller.

Another common objection is, "If I list, I will be bothered by a lot of people."

"The average person has a natural fear of unknown things, such as multiple listing services, tours, appraisers, escrows, structural pest controllers — and sales people."

The listing procedure should be explained and outlined in clear language. There will be fewer people since the Realtor will screen, prequalify, and coordinate all showings, according to Godi.

Many owners just don't know all that is involved in selling real property. They don't understand why it is difficult for a friend or relative to be objective about the property, Realtor Godi noted.

They don't realize that their property is on the market 24 hours a day when listed with a Realtor and only a few hours a week when sold by the owner, he concluded.

Families Can Buy More Food Dominated by Animal Kingdom

Over 180,000 persons in all 102 Illinois counties received food assistance through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Stamp Program during September, according to Dennis M. Doyle, Midwest regional director of Food and Nutrition Service.

The total included 162,406 on public aid and 17,599 other low-income persons.

During September Illinois participants received over $3.6 million worth of food coupons of which around $954,000 were bonus coupons. This was a bonus average of $5.30 a person.

IN 575 MIDWEST projects, around 798,000 persons were in the program during September. Total value of coupons was nearly $15.5 million of which 31 percent was in bonus coupons. The regional bonus average was $6.00 a person.

By participating in the Food Stamp Program, low-income families can buy more food by exchanging the amount of money they normally spend on food for coupons worth more than they paid.

Recipients spend coupons just like cash, at authorized retail food stores, for any domestic food. They cannot purchase items like household cleansers, tobacco or liquor with the coupons.

Doyle urged families not getting enough food to look into the program by contacting the local welfare office.

The Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows, serving Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Barrington, Hanover and Wheeling townships, handles this program as well as Operation Nutrition, a food distribution service for those qualifying under poverty guidelines.

Five model townhouses are displayed in Elk Grove Estates, a Centex Corp. development, all furnished by Richard Honquest Interior Decorators of Addison.

An entry court leads through a foyer to the living room of the three-bedroom, 2½-bath Bordeaux model. Two plexiglass tables are placed in front of a rust velvet sofa, accompanied by two black leather chairs. The color scheme is rust, black and beige throughout the unit. Opposite the sofa is a Parson's table in mandarin color with two paisley print skirted ottomans placed under the table. Separating the living room and dining room is a 3-paneled screen-type divider covered in the same paisley print.

HONQUEST HAS designed a cube-like dining room table base covered with a foil wallpaper. Two layers of soft smoked glass form the table top as well as the buffet serving area which is also supported by a custom designed base covered in the same foil.

The 12 by 18 foot master bedroom displays a printed spread in brown, black, gold and white with a matching upholstered bedboard and cornice. Foil wallpaper of complementing colors is used in the dressing room and master bath.

A vignette, consisting of two Brentwood chairs, a small game table and chess set, is placed in front of the picture window.

The animal kingdom dominates the boys' bedroom. A leopard-patterned couch, variety of stuffed birds, two black chairs covered in zebra skin, create an environment that would intrigue any boy.

The third bedroom shows twin beds displayed as a corner unit with brown-gold-white spreads and matching Roman-style drapes. The accents are mod, according to Honquest.

"WHILE THE OTHER townhouse models are furnished in the traditional design, this particular unit displays our more contemporary effort," explained Honquest. "The interior of this particular unit is designed for the jet set who enjoys the more contemporary, quick stepping spaces of today."

Elk Grove Estates townhouses have been drawing high praise, according to Robert C. Winkle, Centex sales director for the project. "They appreciate ownership without the chores; the tax advantages; and community benefits. These seem to be the reasons why 50 townhouses have been sold; 120 are under construction."

All the two- and three-bedroom, 1½ to 3-bath townhouses in Elk Grove Estates — in the $10,400 to $12,500 price range — feature central air conditioning and garages with Genie automatic garage door openers.

The model townhouses are open every day from 10 to dusk.

Firm Affiliated With New Agency

Leigh Jensen and Associates, Inc., of Libertyville has affiliated with Quinlan and Tyson, Inc. 15-year old North Shore and northwest real estate firm, Richard G. Rutledge, vice president and general manager-real estate sales announced recently, becoming the ninth Quinlan and Tyson Area sales office and the fourth acquired since June 1 of this year, bringing the firm's total sales staff to over 125.

"We are pleased with this affiliation," Rutledge stated. Mrs. Leigh C. Jensen and her associates plan to remain with our firm, with Mrs. Jensen becoming manager of the newly-designated Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., Libertyville-Mundelein area office. Her associates Marge Moran, Norma Strother, Adeline McIntire, Bud Moran and Dorothy Burns will become Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., real estate sales representatives.

The Jensen office, located at 422 South Milwaukee Avenue in Libertyville, opened early this year, and Mrs. Jensen has had more than 10 years of local and Chicago real estate experience, Rutledge noted.

He indicated that Quinlan and Tyson's executive offices in Evanston are reviewing other expansion opportunities at the present time.

Evans Enjoys Record Sales

Roger H. Evans

Don Farris

Roger Evans, of Roger H. Evans, Realtors, has announced that Don Farris has joined the firm's sales staff in the Prospect Heights office.

Farris, formerly with Peters and Evans Realtors in Arlington Heights, entered the real estate field after almost 20 years in the technical field.

He has a supervisory background in data and information retrieval systems, and worked for 13 years for the Hallcrafters Co., Rolling Meadows. He has also been employed as an engineer by the Western Electric Co. in Cicero.

A NAVY VETERAN, Farris attended the college of engineering at the University of Kentucky and has taken courses at Northwestern and Roosevelt universities. He recently completed a management course at the University of Wisconsin.

Evans, a subscriber to the Realtor Computer Service, said Farris' background in systems will be helpful in the use of the IBM 360-40 computer of the Realtor multiple listing service.

By dialing the device, the real estate salesman can obtain immediate information on the listings in the area meeting the requirements of a specific buyer. The computer can also analyze investments and figure depreciation schedules and monthly payments.

Evans also announced that he negotiated more than $400,000 worth of real estate sales during the month of September, setting a record for the firm. Included in the figures were single family residences, farms, commercial and industrial properties.

Hammond Studios Holds Open House

Every organ styling available through Hammond will be on display at the studio. Showroom space has been doubled at the new location, and teaching space increased by 60 per cent. Office and warehouse space is also included in the facility.

Hammond Organ Studios of Elgin has been in business for 11 years. Its former location was 809 Dundee Ave., Elgin.

The firm's expanded lines now include Hammond organs, Fisher stereos, Kawai pianos and Sony tape recorders. Music lessons and service are available for all instruments.

BOXES, WOOD AND METAL are being crushed at the landfill site in the Ajax Sand and Gravel Pit. The landfill operation, being conducted on a small portion of the 40 acre site, will be expanded, according to Joseph Krass, the owner. Residents of Roselle to the north, have testified in court Krass is violating an order prohibiting him to dump garbage at the landfill.

Nottke May Run Against Knuepfer

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Wilbert H. Nottke, mayor of Itasca, said Wednesday he is "giving strong consideration" to opposing State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th District in the March Republican primary election.

In an exclusive interview, Nottke confirmed interest in running for the job. He has been meeting with precinct committeemen and other elected officials, sounding out the possibilities of challenging the Elmhurst conservative.

"I'd like to give it a real go if it's at all possible," Nottke said Wednesday, "but I haven't asked anyone for sponsorship."

Asked about the current split in DuPage Republican ranks, Nottke said that he is getting the impression that Knuepfer does not have strong support among either faction.

"I DON'T THINK I'll get the backing of Elmer Hoffman," Nottke said. Hoffman is the chairman of the GOP County Central Committee, and in years past it was Hoffman's stamp of approval that usually led to a position on the ballot.

Times change, however, and Hoffman is currently being challenged by a group known as "The Young Turks" for county political leadership.

That group includes Congressman John Erlenborn, State Sen. Harris Fawell, R-40th Dist., and State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

While Knuepfer is listed as an Erlenborn supporter, Nottke said he believed it was in name only.

"I also have reason to believe that Knuepfer no longer has the support of

WILBERT NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, confirmed Wednesday he has intent of seeking a state senate seat now held by Jack Knuepfer of Elmhurst.

York Township committeemen," Nottke said.

KNUEPFER WAS elected in 1966, defeating Democrat Michael Butler of Oak Brook, who recently gained fame for being the producer of the Broadway musical "Hair."

As to position on major state issues, Nottke told the Register that he strongly supports tax reform, increased home rule, improved state recreation areas, judicial reform, consolidation of the state's 6,500 taxing districts, increased aid to senior citizens, and a full-time general assembly.

"I completely support Gov. Richard Ogilvie and his program," Nottke said. "Under that program, more has been done for municipalities and home rule than ever before."

Nottke pointed out that he has 11 years of experience in government. In addition to being a full-time mayor of Itasca, he is president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference, actively involved in the Illinois Municipal League and the National League of Cities.

THE MAYOR WHO is independently wealthy, finds his outside income to be an advantage in that it provides valuable time for governmental work.

Asked why he was interested in seeking a state office, Nottke said that he has long had an interest in state government. "I'm not getting any younger," he said, "so I figured this would be the best time as any."

Nottke said that he began giving the idea consideration "about a month ago" and has since formed up serious intent of seeking the position.

The mayor, however, did not formally announce that he would run, citing time between now and the filing deadline of Dec. 15.

He said he has not yet obtained petitions to get on the March 17 primary ballot.

Krass Declares Cooperation

Joseph Krass, operator of the Ajax Sand and Gravel Co., said Wednesday he is "open to any negotiations with the Bloomington Park District concerning the donation of my land."

Krass, who is conducting a landfill operation in the depleted mined areas of his property, north of Lake Street and west of Circle Avenue, said he is willing to donate the land to the park district when he is finished with the landfill. As a service to the park district, Krass said he would contour the land in whatever manner it designates.

This is the same offer made by Krass in March to the park district commissioners. Since then neither side has taken any action.

KRASS SAID HE gave the commissioners two maps, one showing the topographical features of the area and another showing how the land would look after the landfill was completed.

Krass told the commissioners to advise him how they wanted the 40 acre area graded. If they wanted the land, he would comply.

Currently Krass has to proceed grading the land according to the map showing how the land would look after the operation is completed. The county sanitary landfill ordinance requires all operators of landfills to submit a final plat with all the proposed grading. The contours of the land must conform to the map when the project is finished.

"If the park district wants to make use of it, we could start planning now," Krass said.

HE ALSO SAID plans to beautify the north end of his property as a favor to the residents will be started soon, "before the cold weather sets in."

Roselle residents, living on Foster Avenue directly north of Krass's property, have been the most vocal in registering a variety of complaints about the property.

Residents are complaining about the digging Krass is doing behind their homes.

Krass met with village officials and residents Oct. 20, and they agreed upon a plan to shield the mining and landfill operations from their view. The plan, if completed, will also facilitate the drainage of storm water from the homes north of the Krass property into Springbrook Creek.

According to Krass, the digging is part of his plan to rechannel the storm drainage and create a pleasant view for the residents.

John Shanley, 133 E. Foster Ave., told park commissioners Monday night that residents had planted trees to obstruct the view and Krass tore them down when he started his digging.

SEVERAL ROSELLE residents have recently testified in circuit court that Krass is violating a court order prohibiting him to dump garbage at the landfill which is currently going on at the southern end of the pit.

Based on the testimony and evidence submitted by an attorney, Stewart H. Diamond, hired by the villages of Roselle and Bloomington to investigate the entire pit situation, Judge William C. Atten ruled there was sufficient cause for a formal hearing regarding the pit operation.

A special joint committee meeting between the Roselle and Bloomington village boards to discuss the final investigation report by Diamond will be held Monday night at the Roselle village hall at 8 p.m.

KRASS CONTENTS HIS landfill is legal and conforms to the court order. "We had to stop taking trucks from some companies because they had garbage mixed in with the construction materials," Krass said.

Krass said the mining operation could end in two years, "if we could get agreements all down the line from the villages, park district and residents."

Based on the present business done by the landfill site, Krass estimated it would take 10 years for the entire area to be filled.

Sidewalks Go To Court

The sidewalks controversy in Roselle will soon be brought to the courts. A preliminary hearing to set a date for a trial was held yesterday, but no decision was made before the Register went to print.

An earlier court ruling dictated that the village could not enforce its sidewalks ordinances until further court action was taken.

Two cases confront Roselle. The Saccomanno case takes issue with village ordinance No. 267-69 which requires residents to install sidewalks in front of their homes at their own expense. Saccomanno argues that the sidewalks system is not continuous, and therefore the ordinance cannot cover the separate sections of pavement ordered.

THE CHLAPATY case contends that ordinance No. 267-69 unfairly revokes the promises made in an earlier ordinance that no sidewalks would be required in "forested areas." Chlapaty maintains that residents with "forested areas" should not have to destroy their scenery to build sidewalks.

Along with the court action, a minor dissension arose among members of the village board during their last meeting over the details of a sidewalks agreement.

Part of Roselle's program to encourage installation of sidewalks is a provision for reimbursement of half the costs of installation under certain conditions.

TRUSTEE KENNETH Kummer moved that the board reimburse a Roselle resident who had recently put in sidewalks. However, other board members argued that the payment did not conform with requirements for reimbursement.

The resident belonged to a B-4 zone, and the agreement provided for reimbursement only in residential areas.

"I'm sure the sidewalks committee acted in good faith in promising the reimbursement," said Trustee Joseph Devlin, "but we can't set a precedent for other cases."

All members of the board except the sidewalks committee, Kummer and

Trustee Betty Lou Mann, voted nay to the proposal.

Rejection of the proposal, explained Mayor Robert Frantz, was not a move to discriminate against any specific resident. It was a measure intended to treat all residents in business zones equally and to avoid a precedent whereby the village paid half the cost of sidewalks located anywhere near residential areas.

Claim Youth Week

November 15-22 has been proclaimed Youth Week by the Bloomington Village Pres. Robert Meyers.

The village, however, will not sponsor any official activities during the week, Meyers said. The proclamation was made in conjunction with the youth program started by Police Chief Harold Rivkin.

"It will be an annual thing," Meyers said, explaining this year's youth week will provide a special time for the Youth Organization to plan any activities they might want.

The Bloomington Youth Organization is currently recruiting new members.

May Send Messages

Families with relatives in the service will be able to send free messages to the servicemen thanks to the efforts of the Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS).

John Petrikas of 122 N. Elmwood in Wood Dale has announced that all families of servicemen may call at 756-0320 to leave messages which will be transmitted either in the states or overseas. Petrikas said the service is always available but is especially important during the holiday season.

The service is strictly on a volunteer basis, with amateur radio operators donating time to the project.

Answers Development Queries

by SYD JAMESON

This week Itasca planning commission members heard more from Tony Bonavolonta, architect for Avtech, Inc., developer of a proposed planned multi-family development of 431 apartments in the northwest sector of Itasca bordering the industrial park of Central Manufacturing District (CMD).

Bonavolonta appeared before the commission to report on questions which the advisory body had presented to the Itasca Village Board of Trustees, following a public hearing last August on apportionment agreement.

The commission had given favorable endorsement to the proposed $14 million development, but had qualified its recommendation "subject to review by other advisory bodies concerned with sewer and water facilities, police and fire protection and school and park districts."

BONAVOLONTA, who also serves as a Roselle village trustee, read from a letter he had forwarded to Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke, responding to the various points raised by the commission.

Commission members had not seen the reply which was dated Sept. 22, but Bonavolonta promised copies of the response would be forwarded to the commission this week.

What the commission wanted to hear from Avtech was information on proposed street and traffic design, what effect the development would have on the recently completed sewage treatment plant expansion program in Itasca, and the Prospect-Thorndale sanitary sewer stretching north to Thorndale and west beyond Route 53 to CMD.

Other areas of consideration were directed to snow removal operations and a firm commitment by the developer for a completion date geared to a three-year building program.

ACCORDING TO Bonavolonta, CMD will build a new street, Hilltop Road, immediately east of the development which is expected to divert traffic away from the proposed residential complex.

Commission members were also informed that initial plans to use an existent street, Circle Terrace, has been dropped and that there would not be vehicular access to the cul-de-sac from the development.

Design of the multifamily complex of five-story apartment buildings and garden-type units will only involve some 10 to 15 per cent of the land with ample space for recreational uses, he said.

As to police protection, Bonavolonta said he had met with Itasca police chief Stanley Rossol and that the estimated $10,500 levy against the assessed valuation of the project would support additional police personnel and a squad car to service the area.

HE ESTIMATED THAT when the complex is completed and occupied, it would have a population of 862 adults and 123 children. It has been recommended that for every 750 residents there should be at least one police officer assigned, Bonavolonta explained.

With reference to fire protection, the planned development lies within the Roselle Fire Protection District, he said, adding that he had been informed that Roselle maintained adequate equipment to service the area.

Other items answered by Bonavolonta included reports on engineering studies relative to a proposed six-acre lake which will be used as a water retention basin and recreation area, snow removal operations, and sewer and water availability.

Construction of the first 72 units would begin upon completion of the Prospect-Thorndale sanitary sewer (late 1970) with final building estimated four years later.

The project lies within the Medinah elementary school district and Lake Park High School Dist. 100.

Julian Appointed Building Commissioner

by VIRGINIA KUCMERZ
Bloomington's village board, acting on the recommendation of the building, planning and zoning committee, appointed Joseph Julian building commissioner for a 30-day trial period at its meeting Wednesday.

The appointment was effective immediately.

Julian, was recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the job in May. The appointment was placed in committee for approval.

Since June both Julian and August Fessler, the former building commissioner, have been appointed for 30 day periods. Fessler as the building commissioner was receiving $900 a month and Julian as assistant commissioner was receiving no salary.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT, the board accepted the committee's recommendation and appointed Julian as commissioner at a wage of $5 an hour, but not to exceed $600 for the month.

Julian is responsible for issuing all new building applications and for inspections on the permits issued after Nov. 12.

Fessler is being retained as inspector, responsible for all permits issued prior to the 12th.

"The arrangement creates an orderly transition," Meyers said.

He explained Fessler "was considering retiring and with the tremendous workload we needed a new man."

TRUSTEES ALSO voted to purchase a 1969 demonstration squad car for the police department for $2,375 which includes a trade-in on one of the 1968 cars.

Trustee J. Stewart May told the board both 1968 cars in the department were having electrical problems. The older of the two, and the one with more mileage was currently inoperative according to May. He advised the board to trade it in rather than attempt to repair it.

In other business the board referred to committee suggestion by Trustee Wallace Geils concerning correspondence to the state sanitary water board.

Geils wanted a resolution passed asking the sanitary water board to correspond directly with the board, and not any one member or village official. His intent was to "make a record of all actions so we don't get caught short on any decisions."

MRS. GRACE JACOBS, 101 First St., Bloomington, who applied for the position of village clerk in September appeared before the board, requesting a clarification of the procedure she was to follow.

The board informed Mrs. Jacobs she was expected to present a petition signed by no less than 5 per cent of the voters in the last general election to them.

To date there has been one petition presented to the board from Mrs. Fortune LoPresi.

QUESTION TO ISSUE

$125,000.00 PARKING LOT BONDS

(Instructions to Voters: Place a cross (X) in the square opposite the word indicating the way you desire to vote on the following proposition:)

Shall bonds in the amount of $125,000.00 be issued by the Village of Roselle, DuPage and Cook Counties, Illinois, for the purpose of paying the cost of acquiring, constructing, equipping and improving motor vehicle parking lots, public off-street parking facilities for motor vehicles, and other parking facilities necessary or incidental to the regulation, control and parking of motor vehicles, in the general area east of where Irving Park Road passes under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, the bonds to bear interest at the rate of not to exceed 6% per annum?	YES
	NO

A regular feature of the Wood Dale Village Council meetings has been a running attack on the ability of another and completely independent governmental unit: the Wood Dale Park District, which in area is twice the size of the municipality.

Every other Thursday, a couple of commissioners take it upon themselves to demonstrate publicly an irresponsibility which amazes observers. They pull the cork out of the temper bottle and do their best to spray invective all over a group which takes its job more seriously than the village council apparently thinks.

WHETHER IT IS out of jealousy for efficient, responsible government, or perhaps the ability to control oneself in public is a matter of debate.

Nonetheless, park board Pres. William McDowell and his fellow commissioners have been subjected to verbal abuse which reflects negatively in the village council. Park officials keeping calm under childish fire reflect well on their very young governmental agency.

Much of the credit has to go to McDowell, who has been quietly giving the indication — and properly so — that the park board is not a committee of the village council.

This week, McDowell laid it out for all to see. Reporting on the latest encounter, he said simply that the park district will not be pressured by "one person, one group or one governmental body" in the conduct of its responsibilities to 14,000 people.

THE ISSUE AT STAKE is a community swimming pool, in which the council would like a piece of the action. Progress hasn't been as rapid as the council would like, for two reasons: the park district couldn't legally take action in some respects until the village council provided information it obligated itself to supply, and the park district has been working hard on the necessary groundwork.

Ripped for not yet having an architect last Thursday, the park board hired one Tuesday after 35 meetings to study a variety of swimming pool options and to interview potential architects.

It seems curious for the village council to rap the knuckles of the park district for taking its job seriously, particularly at the same time the council is opposing a county-wide sewage treatment plan without having done any research on the matter.

ON THAT ISSUE, the complaint by the council was lack of information. Extensive discussion and research has been conducted by the DuPage Mayors and Manager's Conference, of which Wood Dale is a member but never seems to attend.

It is curious, too, to attack the park district for alleged dragging of heels when the council can't even find a village administrator and exhibits a lack of decisiveness in operating its own police department.

To harass a park district for not signing an incomplete swimming pool contract, is one thing, but for the village to delay executing its obligations on that contract provides poor rationalization for complaint.

A lot of people are beginning to think that Wood Dale's swimming pool would be well along the road of progress if the park district was completely in charge of the operation. The die of legality, however, has already been cast. A contract is the only way in which a pool can be built by the park district and the village council.

WHAT'S BEEN DONE? Wood Dale's young park board has taken the time and effort to become expert in swimming pool planning. The council, therefore, can and should bury the intergovernmental hatchet by leaving the park district alone and permitting the job to get done quickly.

Perhaps with the strain of recreational business removed from its agenda, the village council can turn proper attention to municipal business.

Nottke May Run Against Knuepfer

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Wilbert H. Nottke, mayor of Itasca, said Wednesday he is "giving strong consideration" to opposing State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-39th District in the March Republican primary election.

In an exclusive interview, Nottke confirmed interest in running for the job. He has been meeting with precinct committeemen and other elected officials, sounding out the possibilities of challenging the Elmhurst conservative.

"I'd like to give it a real go if it's at all possible," Nottke said Wednesday, "but I haven't asked anyone for sponsorship."

Asked about the current split in DuPage Republican ranks, Nottke said that he is getting the impression that Knuepfer does not have strong support among either faction.

"I DON'T THINK I'll get the backing of Elmer Hoffman," Nottke said Hoffman is the chairman of the GOP County Central Committee, and in years past it was Hoffman's stamp of approval that usually led to a position on the ballot.

Times change, however, and Hoffman is currently being challenged by a group known as "The Young Turks" for county political leadership.

That group includes Congressman John Erlenborn, State Sen. Harris Fawell, R-40th Dist., and State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

While Knuepfer is listed as an Erlenborn supporter, Nottke said he believed it was in name only.

"I also have reason to believe that Knuepfer no longer has the support of

WILBERT NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, confirmed Wednesday he has intent of seeking a state senate seat now held by Jack Knuepfer of Elmhurst.

York Township committeemen," Nottke said.

KNUEPFER WAS elected in 1968, defeating Democrat Michael Butler of Oak Brook, who recently gained fame for being the producer of the Broadway musical "Hair."

As to position on major state issues, Nottke told the Register that he strongly supports tax reform, increased home rule, improved state recreation areas, judicial reform, consolidation of the state's 6,500 taxing districts, increased aid to senior citizens, and a full-time general assembly.

"I completely support Gov. Richard Ogilvie and his program," Nottke said. "Under that program, more has been done for municipalities and home rule than ever before."

Nottke pointed out that he has 11 years of experience in government. In addition to being a full-time mayor of Itasca, he is president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference, actively involved in the Illinois Municipal League and the National League of Cities.

THE MAYOR WHO is independently wealthy, finds his outside income to be an advantage in that it provides valuable time for governmental work.

Asked why he was interested in seeking a state office, Nottke said that he has long had an interest in state government. "I'm not getting any younger," he said, "so I figured this would be the best time as any."

Nottke said that he began giving the idea consideration "about a month ago" and has since formed up serious intent of seeking the position.

The mayor, however, did not formally announce that he would run, citing time between now and the filing deadline of Dec. 15.

He said he has not yet obtained petitions to get on the March 17 primary ballot.

Sidewalks Go To Court

The sidewalks controversy in Roselle will soon be brought to the courts. A preliminary hearing to set a date for a trial was held yesterday, but no decision was made before the Register went to print.

An earlier court ruling dictated that the village could not enforce its sidewalks ordinances until further court action was taken.

Two cases confront Roselle. The Saccomanno case takes issue with village ordinance No. 267-69 which requires residents to install sidewalks in front of their homes at their own expense. Saccomanno argues that the sidewalks system is not continuous, and therefore the ordinance cannot cover the separate sections of pavement ordered.

THE CHLAPATY case contends that ordinance No. 267-69 unfairly revokes the promises made in an earlier ordinance that no sidewalks would be required in "forested areas." Chlapaty maintains that residents with "forested areas" should not have to destroy their scenery to build sidewalks.

Along with the court action, a minor dissension arose among members of the village board during their last meeting over the details of a sidewalks agreement.

Part of Roselle's program to encourage installation of sidewalks is a provision for reimbursement of half the costs of installation under certain conditions.

TRUSTEE KENNETH Kummer moved that the board reimburse a Roselle resident who had recently put in sidewalks. However, other board members argued that the payment did not conform with requirements for reimbursement.

The resident belonged to a B-4 zone, and the agreement provided for reimbursement only in residential areas.

"I'm sure the sidewalks committee acted in good faith in promising the reimbursement," said Trustee Joseph Devlin, "but we can't set a precedent for other cases."

All members of the board except the sidewalks committee, Kummer and

Trustee Betty Lou Mann, voted nay to the proposal.

Rejection of the proposal, explained Mayor Robert Frantz, was not a move to discriminate against any specific resident. It was a measure intended to treat all residents in business zones equally and to avoid a precedent whereby the village paid half the cost of sidewalks located anywhere near residential areas.

Claim Youth Week

November 15-22 has been proclaimed Youth Week by the Bloomington Village Pres. Robert Meyers.

The village, however, will not sponsor any official activities during the week, Meyers said. The proclamation was made in conjunction with the youth program started by Police Chief Harold Rivkin.

"It will be an annual thing," Meyers said, explaining this year's youth week will provide a special time for the Youth Organization to plan any activities they might want.

The Bloomington Youth Organization is currently recruiting new members.

May Send Messages

Families with relatives in the service will be able to send free messages to the servicemen thanks to the efforts of the Military Affiliated Radio System. (MARS)

John Petrikas of 122 N. Elmwood in Wood Dale has announced that all families of servicemen may call at 766-0320 to leave messages which will be transmitted either in the states or overseas. Petrikas said the service is always available but is especially important during the holiday season.

The service is strictly on a volunteer basis, with amateur radio operators donating time to the project.

BOXES, WOOD AND METAL are being crushed at the landfill site in the Ajax Sand and Gravel Pit. The landfill operation, being conducted on a small portion of the 40 acre site, will be expanded, according to Joseph Krass, the owner. Residents of Roselle to the north, have testified in court Krass is violating an order prohibiting him to dump garbage at the landfill.

Krass Declares Cooperation

Joseph Krass, operator of the Ajax Sand and Gravel Co., said Wednesday he is "open to any negotiations with the Bloomington Park District concerning the donation of my land."

Krass, who is conducting a landfill operation in the depleted mined areas of his property, north of Lake Street and west of Circle Avenue, said he is willing to donate the land to the park district when he is finished with the landfill. As a service to the park district, Krass said he would contour the land in whatever manner it designates.

This is the same offer made by Krass in March to the park district commissioners. Since then neither side has taken any action.

KRASS SAID HE gave the commissioners two maps, one showing the topographical features of the area and another showing how the land would look after the landfill was completed.

Krass told the commissioners to advise him how they wanted the 40 acre area graded. If they wanted the land, he would comply.

Currently Krass has to proceed grading the land according to the map showing how the land would look after the operation is completed. The county sanitary landfill ordinance requires all operators of landfills to submit a final plat with all the proposed grading. The contours of the land must conform to the map when the project is finished.

"If the park district wants to make use of it, we could start planning now," Krass said.

HE ALSO SAID plans to beautify the north end of his property as a favor to the residents will be started soon, "before the cold weather sets in."

Roselle residents, living on Foster Avenue directly north of Krass's property, have been the most vocal in registering a variety of complaints about the property.

Residents are complaining about the digging Krass is doing behind their homes.

Krass met with village officials and residents Oct. 20, and they agreed upon a plan to shield the mining and landfill operations from their view. The plan, if completed, will also facilitate the drainage of storm water from the homes north of the Krass property into Springbrook Creek.

According to Krass, the digging is part of his plan to rechannel the storm drainage and create a pleasant view for the residents.

John Shanley, 133 E. Foster Ave., told park commissioners Monday night that residents had planted trees to obstruct the view and Krass tore them down when he started his digging.

SEVERAL ROSELLE residents have recently testified in circuit court that Krass is violating a court order prohibiting him to dump garbage at the landfill which is currently going on at the southern end of the pit.

Based on the testimony and evidence submitted by an attorney, Stewart H. Diamond, hired by the villages of Roselle and Bloomington to investigate the entire pit situation, Judge William C. Allen ruled there was sufficient cause for a formal hearing regarding the pit operation.

A special joint committee meeting between the Roselle and Bloomington village boards to discuss the final investigatory report by Diamond will be held Monday night at the Roselle village hall at 8 p.m.

KRASS CONTENTS HIS landfill is legal and conforms to the court order. "We had to stop taking trucks from some companies because they had garbage mixed in with the construction materials," Krass said.

Krass said the mining operation could end in two years, "if we could get agreements all down the line from the villages, park district and residents."

Based on the present business done by the landfill site, Krass estimated it would take 10 years for the entire area to be filled.

Answers Development Queries

by SYD JAMESON

This week Itasca planning commission members heard more from Tony Bonavolonta, architect for Avtech, Inc., developer of a proposed planned multi-family development of 431 apartments in the northwest sector of Itasca bordering the industrial park of Central Manufacturing District (CMD).

Bonavolonta appeared before the commission to report on questions which the advisory body had presented to the Itasca Village Board of Trustees, following a public hearing last August on a pre-annexation agreement.

The commission had given favorable endorsement to the proposed $14 million development, but had qualified its recommendation "subject to review by other advisory bodies concerned with sewer and water facilities, police and fire protection and school and park districts."

BONAVOLONTA, who also serves as a Roselle village trustee, read from a letter he had forwarded to Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke, responding to the various points raised by the commission.

Commission members had not seen the reply which was dated Sept. 22, but Bonavolonta promised copies of the response would be forwarded to the commission this week.

What the commission wanted to hear from Avtech was information on proposed street and traffic design, what effect the development would have on the recently completed sewage treatment plant expansion program in Itasca, and the Prospect-Thorndale sanitary sewer stretching north to Thorndale and west beyond Route 53 to CMD.

Other areas of consideration were directed to snow removal operations and a firm commitment by the developer for a completion date geared to a three-year building program.

ACCORDING TO Bonavolonta, CMD will build a new street, Hilltop Road, immediately east of the development which is expected to divert traffic away from the proposed residential complex.

Commission members were also informed that initial plans to use an existing street, Circle Terrace, has been dropped and that there would not be vehicular access to the cul-de-sac from the development.

Construction of the first 72 units would begin upon completion of the Prospect-Thorndale sanitary sewer (late 1970) with final building estimated four years later.

The project lies within the Medinah elementary school district and Lake Park High School Dist. 108.

A regular feature of the Wood Dale Village Council meetings has been a running attack on the ability of another and completely independent governmental unit: the Wood Dale Park District, which in area is twice the size of the municipality.

Every other Thursday, a couple of commissioners take it upon themselves to demonstrate publicly an irresponsibility which amazes observers. They pull the cork out of the temper bottle and do their best to spray invective all over a group which takes its job more seriously than the village council apparently thinks.

WHETHER IT IS out of jealousy for efficient, responsible government, or perhaps the ability to control oneself in public is a matter of debate.

Nonetheless, park board Pres. William McDowell and his fellow commissioners have been subjected to verbal abuse which reflects negatively in the village council. Park officials keeping calm under childish fire reflect well on their very young governmental agency.

Much of the credit has to go to McDowell, who has been quietly giving the indication — and properly so — that the park board is not a committee of the village council.

This week, McDowell laid it out for all to see. Reporting on the latest encounter, he said simply that the park district will not be pressured by "one person, one group or one governmental body" in the conduct of its responsibilities to 14,000 people.

THE ISSUE AT STAKE is a community swimming pool, in which the council would like a piece of the action. Progress hasn't been as rapid as the council would like, for two reasons: the park district couldn't legally take action in some respects until the village council provided information it obligated itself to supply, and the park district has been working hard on the necessary groundwork.

Ripped for not yet having an architect last Thursday, the park board hired one Tuesday after 35 meetings to study a variety of swimming pool options and to interview potential architects.

It seems curious for the village council to rap the knuckles of the park district for taking its job seriously, particularly at the same time the council is opposing a county-wide sewage treatment plan without having done any research on the matter.

ON THAT ISSUE, the complaint by the council was lack of information. Extensive discussion and research has been conducted by the DuPage Mayors and Manager's Conference, of which Wood Dale is a member but never seems to attend.

It is curious, too, to attack the park district for alleged dragging of heels when the council can't even find a village administrator and exhibits a lack of decisiveness in operating its own police department.

To harass a park district for not signing an incomplete swimming pool contract, is one thing, but for the village to delay executing its obligations on that contract provides poor rationalization for complaint.

A lot of people are beginning to think that Wood Dale's swimming pool would be well along the road of progress if the park district was completely in charge of the operation. The die of legality, however, has already been cast. A contract is the only way in which a pool can be built by the park district and the village council.

WHAT'S BEEN DONE? Wood Dale's young park board has taken the time and effort to become expert in swimming pool planning. The council, therefore, can and should bury the intergovernmental hatchet by leaving the park district alone and permitting the job to get done quickly.

Perhaps with the strain of recreational business removed from its agenda, the village council can turn proper attention to municipal business.

AT LAST — A plat of survey of land to be used for a swimming pool was finally conveyed by the Wood Dale Village Council to the Wood Dale Park District, clearing the way for final planning on the project. Park board members Dr. John Parkinson and Mrs. Josephine Kuffel, left, study the plat with council members Hilbert Gehrke and Dino Janis.

McDowell Rebukes Pool Pressures

Strong rebuttal to comments by Wood Dale Village Council members to the Wood Dale Park District was issued Tuesday night by William McDowell, park board president.

He said his board would not be "pressured" by any "one person, one group or one governmental body," particularly on the issue of a community swimming pool.

The reference apparently was directed to Councilman Dino Janis, although McDowell did not mention any names.

Last Thursday, the park board was under the verbal gun of Janis about the pool, in which the village has a $220,000 stake.

"WE HAVE AN obligation to 14,000 people living in an area twice the size of the village," McDowell said Tuesday. "We have gone all out to represent our people."

During recent months, he added, the park board has conducted exhaustive studies of swimming pools and pool architects. He said there have been 35 meetings of the park board on the topic.

"We haven't delayed the project at all," he said, in an apparent reference to charges by the village that the park district has been dragging its heels.

"In the past three months, we have evolved a good concept for building a pool, new and different, which will save a considerable sum of money," the board president said.

"THIS BOARD won't make hasty decisions or be pressured into quick decisions to satisfy any one person, group or governmental body," McDowell asserted.

He added that "my board has been criticized because of a commissioner making a statement about a referendum. No park commissioner has ever made such a statement to the council," he said, "and it's not fair to criticize without the facts."

That was apparent reference to comments by Janis that a park board member who was not named, allegedly said that funds provided by the park district for the pool project would come from a $500,000 bond issue referendum.

With that, McDowell said that from the 35 meetings held on the topic of the pool, "we have found an architectural firm to suit our needs."

HE THEN ASKED the board to retain the firm of Laz and Edwards, of Champaign, Ill., to design the pool. The board concurred.

"The reason for hiring this firm is that their ideas and thoughts are the same as ours. We communicate well, and that's the basic ingredient to a good project," McDowell said.

He noted that of the architects sought, the Laz and Edwards firm will cost $17,000 less than the highest applicant.

Park board officials noted that it is not required to obtain bids on professional aides such as architects or attorneys.

"THE RESULT OF this," McDowell said "is that the park district is getting enormous savings right at the start."

The board also outlined several proposed ideas which would eliminate the need for a general contractor, and result in more favorable bidding. Though not yet accepted as final, the proposals provide for "open space bidding" on the pool.

Laz and Edwards would design the bathhouse and related facilities, and prepare rough specifications for the pool.

"It would then be up to the bidders to submit a design, saving us architectural fees," McDowell said.

McDOWELL ADDED, "We are not in a position to build an indoor pool. We'd be cheating ourselves on land acquisition and development of parks."

He added however, that the pool will be constructed in such a way to permit the installation of a bubble-type cover at some time in the future. This would result in an indoor facility for use during winter months.

The park board president added that a comment attributed to him regarding bidding was not correct.

"We won't have bids in 30 to 45 days," he said. "We should have preliminary plans finished by then, with bidding probably taking place in January."

McDOWELL ALSO directed that the board meet informally for the next six weeks on Thursday evenings to work on details of the plans and specifications with the architect.

Board meetings are held on the fourth Tuesday of the month, and village council sessions which have been the repeated scene of verbal attack on the park district are on Thursdays.

The result will be that park board members will go into virtual hibernation on the pool project until they are ready to seek construction bids.

Nottke Might Run for State Senate

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Wilbert H. Nottke, mayor of Itasca, said Wednesday he is "giving strong consideration" to opposing State Sen. Jack Kneuper, R-39th District in the March Republican primary election.

In an exclusive interview, Nottke confirmed interest in running for the job. He has been meeting with precinct committeemen and other elected officials, sounding out the possibilities of challenging the Elmhurst conservative.

"I'd like to give it a real go if it's at all possible," Nottke said Wednesday, "but I haven't asked anyone for sponsorship."

Asked about the current split in DuPage Republican ranks, Nottke said that he is getting the impression that Kneuper does not have strong support among either faction.

"I DON'T THINK I'll get the backing of Elmer Hoffman," Nottke said. Hoffman is the chairman of the GOP County Central Committee, and in years past it was Hoffman's stamp of approval that usually led to a position on the ballot.

Times change, however, and Hoffman is currently being challenged by a group known as "The Young Turks" for county political leadership.

That group includes Congressman John Erlenborn, State Sen. Harris Fawell, R-40th Dist., and State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

While Kneuper is listed as an Erlenborn supporter, Nottke said he believed it was in name only.

"I also have reason to believe that Kneuper no longer has the support of York Township committeemen," Nottke said.

KNUEPFER WAS elected in 1956, defeating Democrat Michael Butler of Oak Brook, who recently gained fame for being

WILBERT NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, confirmed Wednesday he has intent of seeking a state senate seat now held by Jack Kneuper of Elmhurst.

the producer of the Broadway musical "Hair."

As to position on major state issues, Nottke told the Register that he strongly supports tax reform, increased home rule, improved state recreation areas, judicial reform, consolidation of the state's 6,500 taxing districts, increased aid to senior citizens, and a full-time general assembly.

"I completely support Gov. Richard Ogilvie and his program," Nottke said. "Under that program, more has been done for municipalities and home rule than ever before."

Nottke pointed out that he has 11 years of experience in government. In addition to being a full-time mayor of Itasca, he is president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference, actively involved in the Illinois Municipal League and the National League of Cities.

THE MAYOR WHO is independently wealthy, finds his outside income to be an advantage in that it provides valuable time for governmental work.

Asked why he was interested in seeking a state office, Nottke said that he has long had an interest in state government. "I'm not getting any younger," he said, "so I figured this would be the best time as any."

Nottke said that he began giving the idea consideration "about a month ago" and has since firmed up serious intent of seeking the position.

The mayor, however, did not formally announce that he would run, citing time between now and the filing deadline of Dec. 15.

He said he has not yet obtained petitions to get on the March 17 primary ballot.

Praise Addison Schools

Addison schools recently received a high grade by state educational inspectors who visited the school district early last month.

A report was received this week from the Office of Ray Page, superintendent of public instruction. The two-day visitation report, together with the district's annual application for recognition and the recommendation of Merrill Gates, DuPage County superintendent of schools, will be considered in determining the status of the district by Page.

THE REPORT COMMENDED all aspects of the school system from the superintendent, Dr. Lester Przewlocki, to the janitorial service and most of the facilities. Constructive criticism was also contained as suggestions for even further rising of educational standards.

In the administration and supervision section, the investigating team said the administrative physical facilities were not adequate. An administrative building should be planned and considered, the report urged.

Warren D. Kuster, author of the report, said Indian Trail Junior High School should have an assistant principal as soon as a qualified person could be found.

THE DISTRICT HAS an assessed valuation of $87,489,000 or slightly less than $18,000 per student. Although, the assessed valuation has increased each year, so has the student population resulting in a per student valuation fairly constant. The educational rate is $1.54, and the building rate is 25 cents per hundred dollars of assessed valuation.

It was necessary to borrow $450,000 last year. Increased state aid may reduce the district's debt somewhat this year but with the per capita cost estimated at $100 more this year than last, it appears that deficit financing will need to be continued.

THE JUNIOR HIGH school of seventh and eighth grades, the report said, with over 1,000 students is overcrowded. As a result, the students' schedules are staggered, however, all students are in school more than five hours a day.

Junior high school activities are some-

GOOD REPORT on the condition of Addison schools received from state reviewers brought smiles to Supt. Lester Przewlocki.

what limited, the report said, and consist of student council, sports, choral and band activities. When another junior high school is available (possibly within the next three years), club programs should be considered, it said.

Other junior high school problems were the lack of bulletin boards and the lack of storage space.

Kuster saw a lack of personnel in the school libraries as one of the weaknesses, and said a district library coordinator with a library clerk in each library were needed.

THE NUMBER OF school buildings has increased from one in 1949 to nine at present. The enrollment has increased from about 300 in 1953 to 5,365 in 1959. Presently, this year's enrollment increased 400 over 1958. Several mobile classrooms are being used and point to the need for additional room construction.

Buildings were found in generally satisfactory to excellent condition. The Oak School, the oldest at 20-year-old, is undergoing renovations to comply with the state's life safety code. The two classrooms in the basement of this building were found undesirable when students must remain in them all day.

The Ardmore School has some incandescent lighting which the school board of education said recently will be replaced with more modern lighting.

THE LINCOLN AND Lake Park Manor schools need further landscaping and hard-surfaced areas, Kuster said.

The final recommendations were:

—An administrative center should be provided.

—An assistant principal should be hired for the junior high school.

—Curriculum guides should be developed.

—A district library coordinator should be hired along with a library clerk in each of the grade schools rather than volunteers.

—Libraries and the school learning centers should be arranged to be near each other for better use.

—ALL OF THE children should be given physical education every day or health. The middle grades are falling far short of this requirement, Kuster said, and the primary grades are only partially meeting the requirement.

—The board of education should continue hiring special teachers in art, music, and physical education.

—Plans should be made to comply with the school lunch law by the required 1970 deadline.

Gordon Seminary Names Alumnus

At a recent annual alumni homecoming banquet at Gordon College and Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, Joseph Bedell Bubar of 120 E. Natoma Ave., Addison, was honored as the "Gordon Alumnus of the Year."

This award is given each year to an outstanding graduate who has been an alumnus for at least 10 years and who shows doctrinal faithfulness, service to the Lord, and consistent sympathy with and support of Gordon's standards.

Bubar earned a bachelor of arts degree at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, and a bachelor of divinity degree at Gordon Divinity School. After being graduated from Gordon he pastored the Highland Baptist Church in Fitchburg, Mass., while acting as the New England representative for Christian Service Brigade (CSB) and director of Brigade Camp.

Five years later the board of directors of CSB asked Bubar to be general director at the international headquarters in Chicago. He served in that capacity until this past June.

Julian Appointed Building Commissioner

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ
Bloomington's village board, acting on the recommendation of the building, planning and zoning committee, appointed Joseph Julian building commissioner for a 30-day trial period at its meeting Wednesday.

The appointment was effective immediately.

Julian, was recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the job in May. The appointment was placed in committee for approval.

Since June both Julian and August Fessler, the former building commissioner, have been appointed for 30 day periods. Fessler as the building commissioner was receiving $900 a month and Julian as assistant commissioner was receiving no salary.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT, the board accepted the committee's recommendation and appointed Julian as commissioner at a wage of $5 an hour, but not to exceed $900 for the month.

Julian is responsible for issuing all new building applications and for inspections on the permits issued after Nov. 12.

Fessler is being retained as inspector, responsible for all permits issued prior to the 12th.

"The arrangement creates an orderly transition," Meyers said.

He explained Fessler "was considering retiring and with the tremendous workload we needed a new man."

TRUSTEES ALSO voted to purchase a 1969 demonstration squad car for the police department for $2,375 which includes a trade-in on one of the 1968 cars.

Trustee J. Stewart May told the board both 1968 cars in the department were having electrical problems. The older of the two, and the one with more mileage was currently inoperative according to May. He advised the board to trade it in rather than attempt to repair it.

In other business the board referred to committee suggestion by Trustee Wallace Geils concerning correspondence to the state sanitary water board.

Geils wanted a resolution passed asking the sanitary water board to correspond directly with the board, and not any member or village official. His intent was to "make a record of all actions so we don't get caught short on any decisions."

MRS. GRACE JACOBS, 101 First St., Bloomington, who applied for the position of village clerk in September appeared before the board, requesting a clarification of the procedure she was to follow.

The board informed Mrs. Jacobs she was expected to present a petition signed by no less than 5 per cent of the voters in the last general election to them.

To date there has been one petition presented to the board from Mrs. Fortune LoPresti.

Last Thursday, the park board was under the verbal gun of Janis about the pool, in which the village has a $220,000 stake.

"WE HAVE AN obligation to 14,000 people living in an area twice the size of the village," McDowell said Tuesday. "We have gone all out to represent our people."

During recent months, he added, the park board has conducted exhaustive studies of swimming pools and pool architects. He said there have been 35 meetings of the park board on the topic.

"We haven't delayed the project at all," he said, in an apparent reference to charges by the village that the park district has been dragging its heels.

"In the past three months, we have evolved a good concept for building a pool, new and different, which will save a considerable sum of money," the board president said.

"THIS BOARD won't make hasty decisions or be pressured into quick decisions to satisfy any one person, group or governmental body," McDowell asserted.

He added that "my board has been criticized because of a commissioner making a statement about a referendum. No park commissioner has ever made such a statement to the council," he said, "and it's not fair to criticize without the facts."

That was apparent reference to comments by Janis that a park board member who was not named, allegedly said that funds provided by the park district for the pool project would come from a $500,000 bond issue referendum.

With that, McDowell said that from the 35 meetings held on the topic of the pool, "we have found an architectural firm to suit our needs."

HE THEN ASKED the board to retain the firm of Laz and Edwards, of Champaign, Ill., to design the pool. The board concurred.

"The reason for hiring this firm is that their ideas and thoughts are the same as ours. We communicate well, and that's the basic ingredient to a good project," McDowell said.

He noted that of the architects sought, the Laz and Edwards firm will cost $17,000 less than the highest applicant.

Park board officials noted that it is not required to obtain bids on professional aides such as architects or attorneys.

"THE RESULT OF this," McDowell said "is that the park district is getting enormous savings right at the start."

The board also outlined several proposed ideas which would eliminate the need for a general contractor, and result in more favorable bidding.

Though not yet accepted as final, the proposals provide for "open space bidding" on the pool.

Laz and Edwards would design the bathhouse and related facilities, and prepare rough specifications for the pool.

"It would then be up to the bidders to submit a design, saving us architectural fees," McDowell said.

McDOWELL ADDED, "We are not in a position to build an indoor pool. We'd be cheating ourselves on land acquisition and development of parks."

He added however, that the pool will be constructed in such a way to permit the installation of a bubble-type cover at some time in the future. This would result in an indoor facility for use during winter months.

The park board president added that a comment attributed to him regarding bidding was not correct.

"We won't have bids in 30 to 45 days," he said. "We should have preliminary plans finished by then, with bidding probably taking place in January."

McDOWELL ALSO directed that the board meet informally for the next six weeks on Thursday evenings to work on details of the plans and specifications with the architect.

Board meetings are held on the fourth Tuesday of the month, and village council sessions which have been the repeated scene of verbal attack on the park district are on Thursdays.

The result will be that park board members will go into virtual hibernation on the pool project until they are ready to seek construction bids.

Nottke Might Run for State Senate

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Wilbert H. Nottke, mayor of Itasca, said Wednesday he is "giving strong consideration" to opposing State Sen. Jack Knuepfer, R-40th District in the March Republican primary election.

In an exclusive interview, Nottke confirmed interest in running for the job. He has been meeting with precinct committeemen and other elected officials, sounding out the possibilities of challenging the Elmhurst conservative.

"I'd like to give it a real go if it's at all possible," Nottke said Wednesday, "but I haven't asked anyone for sponsorship."

Asked about the current split in DuPage Republican ranks, Nottke said that he is getting the impression that Knuepfer does not have strong support among either faction.

"I DON'T THINK I'll get the backing of Elmer Hoffman," Nottke said. Hoffman is the chairman of the GOP County Central Committee, and in years past it was Hoffman's stamp of approval that usually led to a position on the ballot.

Times change, however, and Hoffman is currently being challenged by a group known as "The Young Turks" for county political leadership.

That group includes Congressman John Erlenborn, State Sen. Harris Pawell, R-40th Dist., and State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

While Knuepfer is listed as an Erlenborn supporter, Nottke said he believed it was in name only.

"I also have reason to believe that Knuepfer no longer has the support of York Township committeemen," Nottke said.

KNUEPFER WAS elected in 1966, defeating Democrat Michael Butler of Oak Brook, who recently gained fame for being

WILBERT NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, confirmed Wednesday he has intent of seeking a state senate seat now held by Jack Knuepfer of Elmhurst.

the producer of the Broadway musical "Hair."

As to position on major state issues, Nottke told the Register that he strongly supports tax reform, increased home rule, improved state recreation areas, judicial reform, consolidation of the state's 6,300 taxing districts, increased aid to senior citizens, and a full-time general assembly.

"I completely support Gov. Richard Ogilvie and his program," Nottke said. "Under that program, more has been done for municipalities and home rule than ever before."

Nottke pointed out that he has 11 years of experience in government. In addition to being a full-time mayor of Itasca, he is president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference, actively involved in the Illinois Municipal League and the National League of Cities.

THE MAYOR WHO is independently wealthy, finds his outside income to be an advantage in that it provides valuable time for governmental work.

Asked why he was interested in seeking a state office, Nottke said that he has long had an interest in state government. "I'm not getting any younger," he said, "so I figured this would be the best time as any."

Nottke said that he began giving the idea consideration "about a month ago" and has since formed up serious intent of seeking the position.

The mayor, however, did not formally announce that he would run, citing time between now and the filing deadline of Dec. 15.

He said he has not yet obtained petitions to get on the March 17 primary ballot.

Praise Addison Schools

Addison schools recently received a high grade by state educational inspectors who visited the school district early last month.

A report was received this week from the Office of Ray Page, superintendent of public instruction. The two-day visitation report, together with the district's annual application for recognition and the recommendation of Merrill Gates, DuPage County superintendent of schools, will be considered in determining the status of the district by Page.

THE REPORT COMMENDED all aspects of the school system from the superintendent, Dr. Lester Przewlocki, to the janitorial service and most of the facilities. Constructive criticism was also contained as suggestions for even further rising of educational standards.

In the administrative and supervision section, the investigating team said the administrative physical facilities were not adequate. An administrative building should be planned and considered, the report urged.

Warren D. Kuster, author of the report, said Indian Trail Junior High School should have an assistant principal as soon as a qualified person could be found.

THE DISTRICT HAS an assessed valuation of $97,489,000 or slightly less than $18,000 per student. Although, the assessed valuation has increased each year, so has the student population resulting in a per student valuation fairly constant. The educational rate is $1.54, and the building rate is 25 cents per hundred dollars of assessed valuation.

It was necessary to borrow $450,000 last year. Increased state aid may reduce the district's debt somewhat this year but with the per capita cost estimated at $100 more this year than last, it appears that deficit financing will need to be continued.

THE JUNIOR HIGH school of seventh and eighth grades, the report said, with over 1,000 students is overcrowded. As a result, the students' schedules are staggered, however, all students are in school more than five hours a day.

Junior high school activities are somewhat limited, the report said, and consist of student council, sports, choral and band activities. When another junior high school is available (possibly within the next three years), club programs should be considered, it said.

Other junior high school problems were the lack of bulletin boards and the lack of storage space.

Kuster saw a lack of personnel in the school libraries as one of the weaknesses, and said a district library coordinator with a library clerk in each library were needed.

THE NUMBER OF school buildings has increased from one in 1949 to nine at present. The enrollment has increased from about 300 in 1953 to 5,365 in 1969. Presently, this year's enrollment increased 400 over 1968. Several mobile classrooms are being used and point to the need for additional room construction.

Buildings were found in generally satisfactory to excellent condition. The Oak School, the oldest at 20-year-old, is undergoing renovations to comply with the state's life safety code. The two classrooms in the basement of this building were found undesirable when students must remain in them all day.

The Ardmore School has some incandescent lighting which the school board of education said recently will be replaced with more modern lighting.

THE LINCOLN AND Lake Park Manor schools need further landscaping and hard-surfaced areas, Kuster said.

The final recommendations were:

—An administrative center should be provided.

—An assistant principal should be hired for the junior high school.

—Curriculum guides should be developed.

—A district library coordinator should be hired along with a library clerk in each of the grade schools rather than volunteers.

—Libraries and the school learning centers should be arranged to be near each other for better use.

—ALL OF THE children should be given physical education every day or health.

The middle grades are falling far short of this requirement, Kuster said, and the primary grades are only partially meeting the requirement.

—The board of education should continue hiring special teachers in art, music, and physical education.

—Plans should be made to comply with the school lunch law by the required 1970 deadline.

John Petrikas of 122 N. Elmwood in Wood Dale has announced that all families of servicemen may call at 766-0320 to leave messages which will be transmitted either in the states or overseas. Petrikas said the service is always available but is especially important during the holiday season.

The service is strictly on a volunteer basis, with amateur radio operators donating time to the project.

Girls to Play Basketball

Registration is regular recreation office hours from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30-5:30 p.m. in the village hall Monday through Friday.

The program starts Nov. 22 and runs through March 15 at Indian Trail Junior High School. Plans are to organize a four-team league with men and women coaches. The meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. It is open to both public and parochial school children. Fundamentals will be taught to participants.

There will be two games each evening with the first one starting at 6:30 p.m. and the second at 7:30 p.m.

Gordon Seminary Names Alumnus

At a recent annual alumni homecoming banquet at Gordon College and Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, Joseph Bedell Bubar of 120 E. Natoma Ave., Addison, was honored as the "Gordon Alumnus of the Year."

This award is given each year to an outstanding graduate who has been an alumnus for at least 10 years and who shows doctrinal faithfulness, service to the Lord, and consistent sympathy with and support of Gordon's standards.

Bubar earned a bachelor of arts degree at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, and a bachelor of divinity degree at Gordon Divinity School. After being graduated from Gordon he pastored the Highland Baptist Church in Fitchburg, Mass. while acting as the New England representative for Christian Service Brigade (CSB) and director of Brigade Camp.

Five years later the board of directors of CSB asked Bubar to be general director at the international headquarters in Chicago. He served in that capacity until this past June.

Julian Appointed Building Commissioner

by VIRGINIA KUCMERZ
Bloomington's village board, acting on the recommendation of the building, planning and zoning committee, appointed Joseph Julian building commissioner for a 30-day trial period at its meeting Wednesday.

The appointment was effective immediately.

Julian, was recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the job in May. The appointment was placed in committee for approval.

Since June both Julian and August Fessler, the former building commissioner, have been appointed for 30 day periods. Fessler as the building commissioner was receiving $900 a month and Julian as assistant commissioner was receiving no salary.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT, the board accepted the committee's recommendation and appointed Julian as commissioner at a wage of $5 an hour, but not to exceed $900 for the month.

Julian is responsible for issuing all new building applications and for inspections on the permits issued after Nov. 12.

Fessler is being retained as inspector, responsible for all permits issued prior to the 12th.

"The arrangement creates an orderly transition," Meyers said.

He explained Fessler "was considering retiring and with the tremendous work load we needed a new man."

TRUSTEES ALSO voted to purchase a 1969 demonstration squad car for the police department for $2,375 which includes a trade-in on one of the 1968 cars.

Trustee J. Stewart May told the board both 1968 cars in the department were having electrical problems. The older of the two, and the one with more mileage was currently inoperative according to May. He advised the board to trade it in rather than attempt to repair it.

In other business the board referred to committee suggestion by Trustee Wallace Geills concerning correspondence to the state sanitary water board.

Geills wanted a resolution passed asking the sanitary water board to correspond directly with the board, and not any one member or village official. His intent was to "make a record of all actions so we don't get caught short on any decisions."

MRS. GRACE JACOBS, 101 First St., Bloomington, who applied for the position of village clerk in September appeared before the board, requesting a clarification of the procedure she was to follow.

The board informed Mrs. Jacobs she was expected to present a petition signed by no less than 5 per cent of the voters in the last general election to them.

To date there has been one petition presented to the board from Mrs. Fortune LoPresi.

A regular feature of the Wood Dale Village Council meetings has been a running attack on the ability of another and completely independent governmental unit: the Wood Dale Park District, which in area is twice the size of the municipality.

Every other Thursday, a couple of commissioners take it upon themselves to demonstrate publicly an irresponsibility which amazes observers. They pull the cork out of the temper bottle and do their best to spray invective all over a group which takes its job more seriously, than the village council apparently thinks.

WHETHER IT IS out of jealousy for efficient, responsible government, or perhaps the ability to control oneself in public is a matter of debate.

Nonetheless, park board Pres. William McDowell and his fellow commissioners have been subjected to verbal abuse which reflects negatively in the village council. Park officials keeping calm under childish fire reflect well on their very young governmental agency.

Much of the credit has to go to McDowell, who has been quietly giving the indication — and properly so — that the park board is not a committee of the village council.

This week, McDowell laid it out for all to see. Reporting on the latest encounter, he said simply that the park district will not be pressured by "one person, one group or one governmental body" in the conduct of its responsibilities to 14,000 people.

THE ISSUE AT STAKE is a community swimming pool, in which the council would like a piece of the action. Progress hasn't been as rapid as the council would like, for two reasons: the park district couldn't legally take action in some respects until the village council provided information it obligated itself to supply, and the park district has been working hard on the necessary groundwork.

Ripped for not yet having an architect last Thursday, the park board hired one Tuesday after 35 meetings to study a variety of swimming pool options and to interview potential architects.

It seems curious for the village council to rap the knuckles of the park district for taking its job seriously, particularly at the same time the council is opposing a county-wide sewage treatment plan without having done any research on the matter.

ON THAT ISSUE, the complaint by the council was lack of information. Extensive discussion and research has been conducted by the DuPage Mayors and Manager's Conference, of which Wood Dale is a member but never seems to attend.

It is curious, too, to attack the park district for alleged dragging of heels when the council can't even find a village administrator and exhibits a lack of decisiveness in operating its own police department.

To harass a park district for not signing an incomplete swimming pool contract, is one thing, but for the village to delay executing its obligations on that contract provides poor rationalization for complaint.

A lot of people are beginning to think that Wood Dale's swimming pool would be well along the road of progress if the park district was completely in charge of the operation. The die of legality, however, has already been cast. A contract is the only way in which a pool can be built by the park district and the village council.

WHAT'S BEEN DONE? Wood Dale's young park board has taken the time and effort to become expert in swimming pool planning. The council, therefore, can and should bury the intergovernmental hatchet by leaving the park district alone and permitting the job to be done quickly.

Perhaps with the strain of recreational business removed from its agenda, the village council can turn proper attention to municipal business.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $350 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 16 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

Ask Archives Records

CHICAGO—Attorney for the "Chicago Seven" said yesterday they will seek to obtain from the National Archives the records on which a government study team based its controversial report on street violence before and during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like these were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

Ball Joints Aid in Moonshot

by STEVE NOVICK

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception.

Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates. A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962, when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was, easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Libby-Owens-Ford wholly owns Aeroquip, of which Barco is a division.

Landmarks Gone with Time

Historical landmarks are a rare breed in the Elk Grove Village area.

Other than the township cemetery on Arlington Heights Road and some old homes in the township there just aren't any.

Landmarks are not the highest and best use of the land, and for that reason they have fallen victims to the bulldozers.

Nevertheless, Elk Grove does have a past and Mrs. A. Robertson, of 152 Essex Road, is in charge of recording it.

SHE HAS BEEN in the process for the last several years of collecting notes on the village for a book she hopes will be completed next spring.

While the book will be a history of the 13-year-old village there will be a large reference to the township out of which Elk Grove Village emerged and was named.

Some of the information found by Mrs. Robertson discloses that the name "Elk Grove" originated from the fact that a large herd of Elk once roamed the area which had many trees. The name was believed to have been used by the Potawatomi Indians.

The area, settled in 1834, was generally described as being east of Salt Creek in sections 16-21 on a surveyor's map.

MRS. ROBERTSON has found a wealth of information in her search for knowledge about early Elk Grove. Her search has led to trips to libraries in Chicago and Springfield, as well as many interesting interviews with older residents.

Old newspapers have been helpful in finding information about the village's past. Current newspapers have helped too by appealing to residents with historical information to send it to Mrs. Robertson.

Here's some of the information that the local historian has dug up through the years.

The first church in the township was believed to be of Methodist origin and located on the north side of Higgins Road, west of Arlington Heights Road.

The first white child born here was Anna Barnes in 1834 and the first school was built in section 16 in 1840.

Stolen Truck Found

A delivery truck stolen recently from the Follath Delivery Service of Chicago, was found Wednesday at the rear of the Devon Avenue Market in Elk Grove Village.

The contents of the truck, estimated at $10,000, were missing when the truck was discovered.

Heads C.D. Unit

Elk Grove Village's civil defense unit not only received Fire Chief Allen Hulet as its new director at the village board meeting Wednesday, but changed hands from the police to the fire department.

According to Hulet his appointment to replace Police Chief Harry Jenkins was based on their common feeling that civil defense belongs with the emergency services of the fire department rather than the police department, and the fact that Jenkins has been director for four years and has other work to do.

"I'll take the responsibility for a while now," he said.

HULETT HAS HAD extensive background in the area of civil defense before coming to Elk Grove as fire chief last January. He was chief of fire and rescue for the State Bureau Civil Defense in Wisconsin, in which he covered all major disasters in the state.

In 1967 he was in charge of civil defense during the Oak Lawn tornado in April in which he said he gained a great deal of experience.

As former fire chief in Wisconsin, he was civil defense, fire and rescue director for Waukesha County. He was also fire rescue coordinator for the Milwaukee Metropolitan Target Area. He was fire chief in Oak Lawn prior to coming to the village.

In other action the board authorized Village Mgr. Charles Willis, "to enter into and sign agreements in behalf of the village which are in the best interest of the village and which serve to foster and improve intergovernmental relations."

IT WAS EXPLAINED that the village has some formal external relationship with other governmental agencies and it was recommended "that the village manager be authorized to officially and formally execute agreements from time to time in order that the village may benefit from improved services at reduced costs at such time as opportunities become available."

In another area centered on past discussion involving Trustee Eugene Keith's reasons for staying on the board, trustees reconsidered approval of minutes including the discussion. They later approved the original minutes of Oct. 14 which had omitted the discussion.

Trustee Tom Ullmann, who had asked that the transcription of the discussion be included in the minutes, said that he realized the verbatim transcript was lengthy, but that "the discussion was of no value and served no purpose" and similar discussions could not be tolerated.

HE SAID: "We cannot tolerate a call to order being ignored." Trustee Charles Zetek, who opposed including the discussion in the minutes, said that he agreed it was difficult to tolerate, but that such things will happen.

In other areas the board authorized payment of $5,000 to Centex Corp. for the widening of Bismar Road in front of the Four Seasons Nursing Home, and received a report from Irv Helford, Community Services board member, on the formation of a committee to study outside funding of the program.

Community Services, which is financed by the village, was requested earlier by board members to research the possibility of outside funding. Helford said that the committee has found that it would be feasible to obtain funds through civic groups and as funds are acquired they would reduce village funds proportionately.

Fined $200

A Blue Island vending firm operating in Elk Grove Village was fined $200 Thursday by Magistrate Simon Porter in Circuit Court.

George F. Mueller & Sons, Inc., was fined for not having its 10 vending machines licensed as required by village ordinance.

In addition to paying the fine, the firm's attorney, J. Edward Jones, agreed to pay $20 for village licenses.

Porter told Jones he could have been fined much more.

"You wouldn't do that to a couple of country guys like us," said Jones rather jokingly.

Under village ordinance the firm could have been fined a maximum of $200 a day or a minimum of $25 a day for every day following the serving of the summons. The summons was served 33 days ago.

Seek To Solve Health, Welfare Problems

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and nonpublic schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

Moratorium Action Here Uneventful

by TOM WELLMAN

It was business as usual yesterday in High School Dist. 214's six high schools.

With the exception of a few armbands and an after-school discussion at Arlington High School, the first of two Vietnam Moratorium days were quiet, orderly and uneventful.

At Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, a group calling itself Students Supporting the President's Policies (SSPP) handed out American Flag buttons before school. At the same time another group handed out Moratorium buttons.

AT ELK GROVE High School it was a normal day, according to a school spokesman. A handful of students wore the increasingly familiar Moratorium arm-bands.

Arlington High School students scheduled a discussion after school. Ronald Kaufman, a teacher at Arlington, was to address students, and the students would then state their own positions on the war.

District officials said it would be difficult to determine how many students would miss classes today, when an afternoon student rally against the war will be held in the Grant Park bandshell in downtown Chicago.

IN A RELATED action, an Arlington Heights resident notified Dist. 214 board president Arthur Aronson that a legal attempt to block Moratorium-related activities was being dropped.

J. O. Roeser of Arlington Heights is chairman of a group that announced last month it would seek an injunction to block Moratorium activities in the high schools.

The letter stated that Roeser's group concurred with the board's decision last Monday to limit Moratorium activities in the schools. It praised board members for discussing the issue at length.

At Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine, no unusual activities were reported. A spokesman said that one student would be traveling to Washington, D.C., this weekend to participate in war protests there.

AT HARPER, 30 faculty members have banded together to sponsor a teach-in from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today.

Seven faculty members will speak during three one-hour sessions to be held in Room E-106 and E-108 in the Lecture/Demonstration Center.

The program will be held from 11 to 2 so that it will not conflict with scheduled classes, according to a spokesman at the college.

AT 11 A.M., ROBERT Lokatos, an instructor in psychology, will moderate a program in E-106 that will feature Michael Bartos, associate professor of English and Robert Powell, chairman of the communications division.

At noon Willard Williamson, an instructor in philosophy, will moderate a discussion in E-106 that will include Sharon Alter, an instructor in history, and Angela D'Aversa, an instructor in political science.

At 1 p.m. in E-108 Williamson will moderate a program featuring Lokatos and Karen Kares, an English instructor.

Police Follow Murder Leads

by BARRY SIGALE

Arlington Heights Police are following up several leads in the combined murder and robbery of a gas station attendant early Tuesday, one of which may be that the slayer didn't act alone.

Fred Tailion, 60, of 661 N. Wilke Road, Arlington Heights, was stabbed 13 times by a killer who attacked the night manager at the Arlington Park Shell service station, Euclid and Wilke roads.

Police are investigating whether the killer was aided by another person who might have circled around the area in an auto until the robbery was completed and then picked up the man minutes later for the getaway.

"WE DON'T KNOW yet, if this involves only one guy," said Lt. George Ekblad, chief detective. "There is a similarity in what occurred when the station was robbed earlier in the year when two men were involved."

Tailion was the victim of a robbery Jan. 2, in which he was slashed in the face with a knife by one of two robbers. The men escaped with $1,900 in cash and were never captured.

"Our investigation will take into account that these two incidents may have been related," said Ekblad, "especially if there were two men involved this time. We are going to see if there is a link."

EKBLAD ALSO theorized that the killer might have been criminally insane, that he might not have been a drug addict, that he might not have intended to kill Tailion but felt he was recognized by the victim and afraid of being caught or that he could have previously been employed at the gas station.

Indications are that Tailion didn't run away from his attacker at first, said Ekblad, leading us to believe he may have known the slayer and tried to talk him out of robbing the station. Police said $87 in cash was reported missing.

Even though the murder weapon has not been found by police, they said they have other clues they are now checking out, including a composite picture of the suspected slayer.

TWO AUTOS WERE reported in the area where the murder took place about 3:15 a.m. and descriptions of the man sought were recorded. Police said he was at least 5 feet, 11 inches and that he towered over Tailion, who stood at least four inches shorter.

Police said Tailion might have survived his ordeal with the killer were it not for the 13th and final knife wound in the chest.

They said he probably suffered two wounds in the station itself, then jumped through a glass window to escape his attacker and fled down the street with the killer in pursuit.

Lindstrom Claims Families Notified

Families of the 97 Americans reported by the Rev. Paul Lindstrom to be held captive in North Korea and North Vietnam are being contacted by the U.S. Defense Department Lindstrom claimed yesterday.

Lindstrom is the head of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee. The purpose of that group, according to Lindstrom, is to gain the release of all U.S. citizens now held in foreign countries.

Late Wednesday afternoon, Lindstrom, pastor of the Prospect Heights Christian Liberty Church, delivered the list of names of prisoners to Maj. Lawrence Markham, deputy chief of staff of the Fifth Army Headquarters, at Ft. Sheridan.

Lindstrom said a woman living in Illinois called him Wednesday night, several hours after he delivered the list of names to Ft. Sheridan. She said she had been contacted by the Defense Department and told a relative was on the list.

On learning of the woman's call to Lindstrom, an Army spokesman at Ft. Sheridan said that he had no information on calls made by the Defense Department. He said the original plan was to thoroughly check the names to determine whether they matched service records and if they had already been released.

Wingspread Head Talks In Dist. 59

Project Wingspread, a voluntary cooperative educational program administered by the Chicago Board of Education and participating suburban schools was discussed at Wednesday's meeting of the Dist. 59 school community council at Holmes Junior High School.

Lloyd J. Mendelson, director of the project, told approximately 40 persons that the schools today "tend to overlook broad social problems."

"There is a polarization of the races today that is manifested in the high schools and increasing in junior high schools," Mendelson said. "It is high time we make an effort to reverse this trend."

"There is a mandate for change that is demanded of the ghetto schools as well as the suburban schools. The two should go hand in hand."

Don Bauer Heads Hockey Program

Bensonville's Park District has announced that Don Bauer of 202 E. Lincoln will head this year's hockey program. Bauer was assistant instructor last season and now coaches the Bensonville Blades at the Polar Dome.

The park district has three rinks and hopes to run the program in three leagues. The Midgets will be 9-11 years old, juveniles 12-14 and juniors 15-17. All will be under the direction of Bauer.

A $2 fee for residents and a $3 fee for nonresidents will be charged to help defray expenses and maintenance of the rink and provide supervision.

A STARTING DATE is difficult to project since there must be four days of continuously cold weather, at least 15 degrees above zero.

Registration begins Monday at the park district building located at 161 N. Church Road, opposite the village hall. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or registration forms available at the schools may be mailed. Registration closes Dec. 12.

Tentative plans call for Saturday practices with the Midgets from 10 a.m. to noon, the juveniles from 1 to 3 p.m. and the Juniors from 10 a.m. to noon.

Boys must furnish their own skates, mouthguards and hockey sticks. Figure skates may be used but hockey skates should be purchased as the season progresses. Helmets and goalie equipment be provided by the Park District.

For further information call the Bensonville Park District at 766-4334.

Nottke May Run

by GEOFFREY MEHL

Wilbert H. Nottke, mayor of Itasca, said Wednesday he is "giving strong consideration" to opposing State Sen. Jack Kneuper, R-30th District in the March Republican primary election.

WILBERT NOTTKE, mayor of Itasca, confirmed Wednesday he has intent of seeking a state senate seat now held by Jack Kneuper of Elmhurst.

In an exclusive interview, Nottke confirmed interest in running for the job. He has been meeting with precinct committeemen and other elected officials, sounding out the possibilities of challenging the Elmhurst conservative.

"I'd like to give it a real go if it's at all possible," Nottke said Wednesday, "but I haven't asked anyone for sponsorship."

Asked about the current split in DuPage Republican ranks, Nottke said that he is getting the impression that Kneuper does not have strong support among either faction.

"I DON'T THINK I'll get the backing of Elmer Hoffman," Nottke said. Hoffman is the chairman of the GOP County Central Committee, and in years past it was Hoffman's stamp of approval that usually led to a position on the ballot.

Times change, however, and Hoffman is currently being challenged by a group known as "The Young Turks" for county political leadership.

That group includes Congressman John Erlenborn, State Sen. Harris Fawell, R-40th Dist., and State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

While Kneuper is listed as an Erlenborn supporter, Nottke said he believed it was in name only.

"I also have reason to believe that Kneuper no longer has the support of York Township committeemen," Nottke said.

KNEUPER WAS elected in 1968, defeating Democrat Michael Butler of Oak Brook, who recently gained fame for being the producer of the Broadway musical "Hair."

As to position on major state issues, Nottke told the Register that he strongly supports tax reform, increased home rule, improved state recreation areas, judicial reform, consolidation of the state's 6,500 taxing districts, increased aid to senior citizens, and a full-time general assembly.

"I completely support Gov. Richard Ogilvie and his program," Nottke said. "Under that program, more has been done for municipalities and home rule than ever before."

Nottke pointed out that he has 11 years of experience in government. In addition to being a full-time mayor of Itasca, he is president of the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference, actively involved in the Illinois Municipal League and the National League of Cities.

THE MAYOR WHO is independently wealthy, finds his outside income to be an advantage in that it provides valuable time for governmental work.

Asked why he was interested in seeking a state office, Nottke said that he has long had an interest in state government. "I'm not getting any younger," he said, "so I figured this would be the best time as any."

Nottke said that he began giving the idea consideration "about a month ago" and has since firmed up serious intent of seeking the position.

The mayor, however, did not formally announce that he would run, citing time between now and the filing deadline of Dec. 15.

He said he has not yet obtained petitions to get on the March 17 primary ballot.

The five-piece Chicago Brass Ensemble will be presenting concerts today at Mark Hopkins and Ridge schools, Elk Grove Village.

The concerts are brought to the schools through the Young Audiences Program, which is part of the University of Illinois extension in music. Part of the concert cost is subsidized by the Illinois Arts Council and Young Audiences Inc.

THE MARK HOPKINS concert is part of the student enrichment programs sponsored by the Parent Teacher Society. After the program at Mark Hopkins, 231 Shadywood Lane, at 10 a.m., the ensemble will go to Ridge School, 650 Ridge Ave.

The Chicago Brass Ensemble includes: Robert Rushford, trumpet; Charles Stine, trumpet; Paul Ondracek, horn; Ardash Marderosian, trombone; and John Pyska, tuba. All have experienced backgrounds through participation in several Chicago orchestras.

For further information call the Bensonville Park District at 766-4334.

According to the plan, the Defense Department would transmit the information to the next of kin, if they found it to be accurate, said the Army spokesman.

Lindstrom reported he secured the list in Canada this week, after working for three months to develop an underground line of communication into several parts of the world. He said he found the list in an airline flight bag in a pew at the St. Joseph Oratory church, on the outskirts of Montreal.

The list of names came from informants in North Korea and North Vietnam, via underground contacts Lindstrom set up in July. "These informants have acted out of religious conviction, rather than monetary gain."

Concerning the outcome of publicizing the list, Lindstrom said he didn't think there would be any punitive action against the prisoners if only the relatives were contacted. He added a public revelation of all of the names might jeopardize the prisoners.

"I don't think exposure of the list will affect our underground lines of communication either," said Lindstrom. "The system is too intricate and involved."

One of the main reasons Lindstrom is acting, he says, is because he believes the U.S. government is not taking enough initiative to release prisoners of war. "I don't want the problems of the prisoners in North Vietnam and North Korea to deteriorate as they did when the USS Pueblo crew was held captive."

What our committee is asking, and what the woman who called me asked, is, "What will happen to the prisoners of war if we pull out and South Vietnam takes over? Are they to be left to rot as many were after the Korean war?"

Give Information on Freeway

An informational meeting on the proposed Fox Valley Freeway was held Wednesday night in Barrington Hills. The freeway is planned to be in service by 1980.

The Fox Valley Freeway is planned as a part of the Chicago Metropolitan Freeway System and will be located within a corridor four miles wide and 65 miles long extending from McCullom Lake in McHenry County south to Lockport, along existing Route 59. It would be near or go through Bartlett, Streamwood, Western Hoffman Estates and Barrington Hills.

A LOCATION STUDY for the Fox Valley Freeway is being conducted by H. W. Lochner, Inc., a Chicago consulting engineering firm. And several community meetings have been held to indicate proposed routes for the freeway and to obtain the opinions of local citizens regarding the proposed routes.

A public meeting to assess the opinions of residents in the northern part of the freeway corridor — from East Dundee to McCullom Lake — will be Dec. 9 at Crystal Lake High School. Meetings will also be Dec. 10 and 11 in the other sections of the proposed corridor.

The Lochner firm has devised a group of mini-corridors within the four-mile-wide corridor for possible use as the freeway route. These mini-corridors are from 300 to 500 yards wide and include seven basic alternatives, 14 probable alternatives and 26 possible alternatives. The freeway to eventually be built will be 300 feet wide as a minimum.

According to Richard S. Beebe, director of planning for H. W. Lochner, Inc., another series of community meetings will be held in 10 or 13 months in the corridor communities to indicate a more precise route location for the Fox Valley Freeway after the preferred mini-corridors are selected.

AS PROPOSED BY the Lochner firm, suitable mini-corridors for the freeway are grouped together in a band on the eastern side of the Fox River until a point north of Algonquin Road (Route 62). From there northward, three possible directions are possible for the mini-corridor — a western path, a central path, or an eastern path. The eastern path would follow the power lines of Commonwealth Edison and would go between Fox River Grove and Cary.

Ralph Wehner, district engineer for District One of the Illinois Division of Highways, said the freeway is needed on the east side of the Fox River "because that's where the people are."

An estimated 1.5 million persons will reside within the corridor of the Fox Valley Freeway in 1980. The limited access highway is planned to relieve traffic on Route 25 and Route 59.

Within the proposed corridor, interchanges are proposed for Route 62, Route 14, and the I-90 tollway.

The Fox Valley Freeway is expected to be financed with bonds sold by the Illinois Highway Trust Authority. Legislation creating the state highway trust authority is now being tested in a friendly suit filed in DuPage County.

THE ILLINOIS Division of Highways will make a recommendation on an approximate location for the Fox Valley Freeway about Feb. 1, according to Wehner. Public opinion expressed at community meetings will first be evaluated before any recommendation is given, the engineer said.

"The state division of highways can either accept, reject, or modify the Lochner report," Wehner said.

Wehner stated that the state plans to build 1,950 miles of freeway between now and 1980, and that 250 miles of limited access routes will be built in District One at a cost of approximately $500 million.

Bonds sold by the Illinois Highway Trust Authority are expected to provide $200 million a year for freeway construction in the state.

The Fox Valley Freeway is one element of the overall transportation system found necessary by the Chicago Area Transportation Study.

Team Suggests Further Study on Atlanta

by TOM WELLMAN

The 13-man team from High School Dist. 214 and 211 which journeyed to Atlanta last month will recommend to the Dist. 214 board that the four-quarter program deserves further study.

Members of the team met Wednesday night at the Dist. 214 offices, and after culling through a report of members of the team, agreed on that recommendation.

The recommendation passed easily, even though Martin Hering, a member of the Dist. 214, lay citizen's committee, said it should include a recommendation for a further study committee composed of board members, teachers, administrators, area citizens and students.

However, it is apparent that Dist. 214 administrators will make the same recommendation when the committee's action is considered by the full seven-man Dist. 214 board in a few weeks.

PERHAPS THE MOST significant point in the meeting was that the group was not concerned about a "yes" or "no" for the four-quarter program; all of the members present agreed that it deserved further study. The only question was a method of presenting such a proposal to the Dist. 214 board.

Board member Richard Baehuber, one of the two board members who made the trip, suggested a general recommendation. Hering called for specifically mentioning a study committee in the recommendation. However, Hering was the only "nay" vote when the recommendation was approved.

During the first half of the meeting, the 10 members present ironed out details in the report. They first agreed to print at least 500 copies of the 36-page report, as they all indicated that districts throughout Illinois are interested in examining the group's findings.

In the first portion of the report, several individual members of the team submitted their reactions to the trip. Early in the meeting it was agreed that those reactions would represent the opinions of individual groups within the overall committee. For example, the report from the Dist. 211 board members represents the thinking of Carolyn Mullins and James Humphrey, both of whom made the trip.

IN ADDITION, Dennis Olenik, a librarian at Hersey High School, and Herbert Laubenstein, a counselor at Prospect High School, will submit reports to be included. The 36-page report was submitted by Dr. Roderick McLennan, assistant superintendent for instruction in Dist. 214. He compiled the reports, wrote an introduction, and edited the remarks of the Atlanta personnel.

In the introduction, McLennan reports that "this mission was deemed a success by the team," due primarily to the cooperation in Atlanta.

Then, in the individual reports, the "cautious enthusiasm" about the Atlanta year-round program appears. However, several of the reports stress once again that a year-round program would not save money; at least based on what the Atlanta program has shown.

FOR EXAMPLE, the two members of the lay citizens' scheduling committee stated, "It may not be economically possible to go into a program of this type at the present time. However, it should not be put on the shelf and forgotten."

They report that the overall cost of education has increased in Atlanta, primarily because the summer quarter is tuition-free. Also, the need for additional facilities has not been slowed, as the same number of students are attending the fall quarter as before.

They pointed out two merits. First, they said that school buildings can be used more efficiently, since the buildings are used for the full year. Second, more education can be offered per dollar spent, as the curriculum can offer more and shorter courses.

They said that preliminary work on the program should be done, in case money should become available for the year-round plan. And they reported that a pilot plan could be a possibility at a new high school.

The Dist. 214 board members' report points out that "the biggest change has been brought about by adding courses, rewriting and revising the curriculum, and by providing the impetus for change and improvement."

IT CONCLUDED that involvement and communication with teachers, community and students must be complete and continuous during development of a year-round plan.

Reuben Conrad, a Dist. 214 instructional coordinator, reacting from the administrator's standpoint, repeats the remark that the four-quarter system is not cheaper. "Perhaps each dollar would produce more education, but it costs more dollars," he reports.

He said that new legislation would be necessary to aid a four-quarter plan, but that "there are great opportunities" to revise the curriculum under such a plan. All groups and individuals affected by a possible change should be involved in the process.

Finally, he said that a first step for Dist. 214 would be an "immediate improvement and enlargement" of the summer school program. The tuition system could be continued or a state plan not requiring a large subsidy could be used, he comments.

"By keeping the summer school relatively inexpensive, we would eliminate most of the possible opposition to change, provided various individuals are involved in the planning of this change," said Conrad.

NORMAN PATBERG, assistant principal at Hersey, representing the building administrator's view to Atlanta, reported this reaction by Atlanta personnel: "The advantages of the four-quarter system far outweigh the disadvantages and it is better than what we had; therefore, let us give it the opportunity to work and at the same time work out some of its bugs."

The reactions from the three-man Dist. 211 team include the fact that the Atlanta trip did not produce a system more economical in terms of cutting operating costs or housing more students.

However, they view the program as it works in Atlanta "as one that provides vast opportunity for enrichment, practical vocational experience and, where needed, compensatory education."

Assets also include an "open attendance" policy, full use of buildings, year-round employment for faculty and staff and a drop in school vandalism.

LIABILITIES INCLUDE costs, difficulty in voluntarily phasing students into a program to even out attendance each quarter, scheduling and extensive maintenance.

The Dist. 211 report concluded, "Based on what was seen in Atlanta, we believe that perhaps we are 'ripening' for such a move and that there is no reason not to begin selling the wheels in motion for such a changeover, provided that the wheels are turned very, very slowly."

Later in the report, various teams of members of the 13-man squad have submitted reports on the personnel that they talked to in Atlanta. Here are some of their findings, in summary form.

Budget: The report states that the discussions revealed that "most positively there have been significantly increased costs involved." However, in conclusion the report states that the pattern of higher costs "may be reversed with time."

Building maintenance: Costs of maintenance have not been increased by the four-quarter system. The report concluded that, if Dist. 214 should go to the four-quarter plan, additional money for labor would be necessary.

Athletics: The Atlanta director of athletics has warmly endorsed the plan. The program has increased the length of the spring sports season, and it allows fuller participation for boys with job conflicts.

Teachers associations: The report lists a number of complaints obtained from two teachers in the Atlanta system. These include lack of information about the system, lack of teacher association involvement in planning curriculum changes, more discipline problems and, in general, a lack of preparation to cope with problems teachers face.

HOWEVER, THE report stated that the two women interviewed did not necessarily represent the views of the teacher associations in Atlanta.

Police: Members of the Atlanta Police Department said that vandalism and burglaries in the schools had dropped by 40 per cent in the fourth quarter of this year.

Most of the police officials contacted were optimistic about the four-quarter plan, the report states.

Press coverage: Education editors on the Atlanta Constitution and Journal reported that there was no particular public reaction to the shift to the four-quarter plan, although there was a general feeling that school conditions were improving.

Both papers backed the plan; no opposition to the plan developed among the public.

This report will be revised slightly, additional reports from Olenik and Laubenstein will be included, the final report will be printed and then submitted to the Dist. 214 board for consideration and possible action.

Democrats Have GOP Beat on The Party Level

by MARTHA MOSER
In the predominantly Republican 13th Congressional District, Democrats may not win many elections, but they have the Republicans beat on how a party should party.
In Mount Prospect Wednesday night, Democrats wound up four hours of jesting and jousting over tipped glasses with the epithet that the last guffaw will be on Republicans Nov. 25.
The occasion was a dinner given for Edward Warman, Democratic candidate for 13th District congressman, and attended by some 400 representatives of organized labor. The Warman campaign is not too silent in its strategy to attract Republicans to their "moderate" camp.

"REPUBLICANS FOR Warman" banners pound home a theme that the self-described conservative Philip Crane does not represent the majority of district residents, either Republican or Democratic.
Two Democratic committeemen from the area declared from the podium that Warman's political philosophy is more aligned with district feeling than the far-right Crane.

Warman himself, committed to two prior engagements, did not appear at the Old Orchard County Club until 9:30 p.m. and was not given the microphone until 10:30 p.m.
His address on the health of the nation was trimmed severely in the interest of time.
IN THE DEMOCRATIC from-the-gut manner, the audience had been alternately primed and wearied with introductions, telegrams, spontaneous speeches and prepared remarks.

A lobbyist for the International Association of Garment Workers made a lengthy plea to fellow laborers to send Warman to Congress. She said even Republicans in Washington, D.C., do not want to see Crane elected.
Platform speakers almost crashed head-on with a noisy and heckling Ford Motor Co. group during the program. Ford people present for another meeting shared the same bar and did not regard the speakers with the same quiet respect.
SENDING REGRETS for their dinner absence were Illinois Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and First District State Rep. Harold Katz.

In aside interest, Evanston Township Democratic Committeeman Ed Disch, on his party's slatemaking committee, said Simon is his candidate for U. S. Senator. Salty language flavored his editorial comment on a statement of Warman's opponent that a student should have a 115 IQ before entering college.
"Who the . . . knows what his IQ is," Disch said.
Wheeling Township Committeeman James McCabe, in a welcome address, spoke on the Warman campaign strategy of attracting enough Republicans voters to elect the first Democrat to the post of 13th District congressman.

Losers for Mrs. Schroeder

Independent Con-Con candidate Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights has six runners-up in the September Constitutional Convention primary working for her election next Tuesday.
That puts her second only to John G. Woods, Arlington Heights former village president, in the number of endorsements received from Con-Con candidates who didn't survive the September primary.
Mrs. Schroeder, the only candidate without party backing to survive the September delegate primary, was endorsed early by Mrs. Mary Carlson of Prospect Heights.
Mrs. Carlson, who placed fifth — just behind Mrs. Schroeder — in the September election, brought with her the endorsement of the American Association of University Women which she serves as a state officer.

SINCE THEN, Mrs. Schroeder has been endorsed by five other Con-Con primary candidates — Eugene Griffin of Arlington Heights, "Win" Davidson of Palatine, Wilfred Robbins of Mount Prospect, Lester Bonaguro of Arlington Heights and Samuel LaSusa of Barrington.
LaSusa told Mrs. Schroeder that he has written all his campaign workers and asked them to work in her behalf.
Griffin said Wednesday night he is backing both Woods and Mrs. Schroeder because he is convinced the two "would have a freer hand at the constitutional convention."

Mrs. Carlson, who also backed Woods, urged fellow AAUW members to work for independent candidates if they didn't want to see a new Illinois constitution defeated by partisan party differences.
THE OTHER two Con-Con candidates on the ballot are Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights and William Engelhardt of Inverness, a school attorney. The two were endorsed early in the primary campaign by the county Republican central committee and every Third District township GOP organization except Wheeling.
Wheeling Republicans voted to support Woods and Mrs. Macdonald. After Woods finished first in the Con-Con primary election, the Cook County Republican central committee added his name to their Con-Con endorsement list.
Woods has been endorsed by eight runners-up in the Con-Con primary, two more than Mrs. Schroeder.
Both share Better Government Association approval and strong newspaper support. Mrs. Schroeder was endorsed before the primary campaign by every Chicago newspaper and every local newspaper that made recommendations. Woods missed the Chicago Tribune endorsement in the primary but picked up their support for Tuesday's Con-Con general election.
MRS. SCHROEDER said Friday she is "heartened by the endorsement given me by so many of my fellow candidates in the Con-Con primary."
"It will give hope to Third District citizens who want to see us represented at the Illinois constitutional convention by delegates who owe their allegiance to the people, not a party," she asserted.

Faith Celebrates

Members of the Baha'i faith throughout the world gathered in their houses of worship this week to celebrate the birth of the faith's founder, Baha'u'llah.
In the Chicago area, members of the Baha'i Faith celebrated Baha'u'llah's birthday at services Tuesday at the Baha'i House of Worship in Wilmette.
A spokesman for the Baha'i faith said there are about 700 members in Chicago and its surrounding suburbs.
THE RULES OF the faith forbid any formation of tradition, ritual or ceremony. Thus it is up to a devotion committee to determine what form the worship at the services takes.
Tuesday's service consisted of readings from the scriptures of several world religions, as well as certain choir pieces sung with instrumental accompaniment.
The Wilmette house of worship will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. through tomorrow in observance of the prophet's birthday.
The man whose birthday Baha'is celebrated this week was born in what is now Iran in 1817. When he was 27 he first heard of the teaching of a young descendant of Muhammad, called the Bab. The Bab had proclaimed that he was to prepare the way for a person who would found a universal religion.
Baha'u'llah became a follower of Bab and was later imprisoned for his belief.
WHILE IN PRISON Baha'u'llah reported that he received an "intimation of the mission (as a prophet) that was to be his."
Upon his release from prison, Baha'u'llah and his family were exiled to Baghdad. He then went to Constantinople and then to Adrianople where he continued to proclaim his mission of prophecy.
His final years were spent as a prisoner near the city of Acca. There he died in 1892.

His teachings are based on the unity of mankind. They urge humanity to fulfill worship of God in service to all men regardless of race or creed.
BAHA'U'LLAH MAINTAINED that science and religion are both parts of a greater truth. Education, according to Baha'u'llah, should open to all, and women must be given an equal opportunity to develop their talents.
Baha'u'llah called for a world government, a common currency, a universal system of weights and measures and a world court.
Members of the Baha'i faith believe that Baha'u'llah was God's prophet for his age, just as they say, Jesus was the prophet for his age. They attribute divinity neither to Baha'u'llah nor to Jesus.

Ellertson Pedals But Who Notices?

Carthage College is having such a banner year in sports this fall that a superb individual athlete on campus hasn't even been noticed because he doesn't compete for the Redmen. The athlete is bicycle racer Dennis Ellertson of Arlington Heights, Ill. — a champion track cyclist, road-racing titlist and bike 'Rider of the Year' in Illinois for 1968.

Ellertson's accomplishments haven't been noticed much on the Carthage campus because of the Redmen's success in football and cross-country this autumn. In addition to a Jayvee grid squad which finished unbeaten (2-0) for the second year in a row, Carthage's varsity football team is undefeated (7-0) and leading the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin.

In cross-country, the Redmen just finished their fourth straight undefeated dual-meet season (5-0) and now have a dual win string of 18 in a row. The Carthage harriers haven't lost a dual meet since 1965.

Small wonder that cyclist Ellertson has been pumping away unnoticed by Carthage sports followers from April through October. Ellertson was Illinois Road Champion in 1965, '66 and '68. In 1967 he was Illinois 10-mile track champion, and in 1968 he copped 'Illinois Rider of the Year' honors.

A senior business major at Carthage, Ellertson has been racing since 1963. He starts his racing grind in April and usually wraps up competition around the final week of October. His racing finale this year was the Playboy Club Invitational Race at Lake Geneva, Wis., last month, where he finished sixth in a field of 26 riders over the 30-mile route. He paid his own expenses to get to the meet, and his only prizes included a bike tire and a set of cocktail glasses.

Some of the cities he has competed in this year are Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and the Illinois communities of Moline and Sterling. He is a regular track racer during the summer at Northbrook, Ill., on Thursday nights. Ellertson also makes the Tuesday evening circuit at the local Kenosha, Wis., bike-racing oval.

The Carthage collegian trains far more rigorously than any Redman griddier or cross-country runner. During the actual racing season, Ellertson bikes on the average of 250 miles per week. He has ridden as much as 350 to 400 miles in one week, but doesn't believe that putting in extensive mileage is the best training method.

Dennis claims quality (speed spurts of varied length with short rest periods) combined with steady riding are the best way to prepare for his goals in racing. He prefers road racing to track racing, which accounts for the high mileage he turns in every week during the spring and summer.

Before the 1969 season got underway for Ellertson last spring, he estimated that he had pumped 9,000 miles over a six-season span.

St. Joseph Wins Two Cage Games

St. Joseph of Wheeling posted two victories in three levels of competition in non-conference basketball action last Sunday.

On a sixth grade level St. Joseph rolled to a 33-17 triumph over St. Mary's with John Muno tossing in 21 points.

At Lyne had 14 as the seventh grade Wheeling entry won 42-21, but the eighth grade lost 30-25.

In action this Sunday St. Joseph of Libertyville will visit Holmes Jr. High for games starting at 1 p.m.

BIKE RACING CHAMP — One of the top athletes on Carthage College's Kenosha, Wis. campus is track and road cyclist Dennis Ellertson of Arlington Heights.

Getting in Shape For Ski Season

(First in a series of columns by Al Saier, director of the Pro Sport Dry Land Ski School, 281 E. Northwest Highway, Palatine. Questions should be directed to Saier in care of Pro Sport Center.)

QUESTION: What type of exercise do you recommend for getting into shape and how important is it to be in shape for skiing?

ANSWER: This same question probably confronts many of us as the ski season approaches. There are all types of exercises, isometrics, weight lifting, aerobics, just to name a few.

An exercise program is important for several reasons. First, the chance of an accident is cut down considerably because good muscle tone gives additional support to the bone structure. Second, your response to learning is enhanced because you're not spending time trying to get into shape while learning. Third, you won't be nursing so many bruises and sore muscles. Fourth, you'll have more fun skiing.

Before you start your exercise program, make sure it has been okayed by your physician.

Here are three methods one can use to start a program: jogging, ropeskiing, bicycling. You'll notice they all have something in common, building up your endurance by increasing the capacity of your heart and lungs and develop better muscle tone.

After setting up your program, go about it with discretion and gradually build yourself up to the maximum.

The first few days will be the most difficult but thereafter it will become routine, like brushing your teeth or combing your hair.

QUESTION: What type of exercise program could one set up and use in every-day routine?

ANSWER: An exercise program can go as far as your imagination allows it. Here are a few exercises you can inter-relate with your job: Climbing stairs, deep breathing, muscle constriction, isometrics, and extension flexion.

Whenever possible, climb a few flights of stairs instead of riding the elevator. When climbing the stairs, take two steps at a time and when coming back down, also take two steps at a time. This greatly improves your depth perception which is necessary for skiing.

When walking to lunch or to the parking area, do deep breathing exercises and take long strides. When sitting at your desk, push the sides of the desk with your legs or push the palms of your hands together.

Do any exercise where muscles oppose one another to develop muscle tone. This is known as isometrics. While sitting in a chair work on extension-flexion of your legs by extending your legs. Then, for the over weight, exercise those unused muscles with a weighted tone-o-matic belt.

All these exercises and more can be done WHEREVER YOU ARE... Housewives can do moderate knee bends, stand on one leg while doing dishes, or raise and lower the groceries while carrying them. With IMAGINATION, you can set up a personal, daily exercise program. Remember, moderation at the start will prevent needless muscle aches the following day.

Al

QUESTION: Every year a greater variety of better designed skis are marketed. Could you give me a guideline for the selection of skis?

ANSWER: Believe me this will only be a guideline for the topic is too extensive. If you think they look all alike, you'll be greatly surprised. In selecting a ski it is important to see a reliable ski shop and let them help you narrow the field for a final selection.

Each ski manufacturer has a pair that suits your particular ability, age, and weight.

Here's a simple guide line to find the best ski suited for you. Ask yourself these questions: (1) What is my skiing ability? (2) What is my physical capabilities? (3) What can I afford?

Your skiing ability will affect the length of ski you choose, as well as your weight. Heavy people should be on longer skis to give better distribution of weight on the running surface of the ski. Physical attributes also play an important role. Stronger and more aggressive people may want longer skis. Last but not least price always dictates the quality and performance of the ski you choose.

A good rule of thumb to follow is to allow 40% of your total equipment for price of skis.

Hope the above enhances your enjoyment of ski selection.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $250 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like these were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

Ball Joints Aid in Moonshot

by STEVE NOVICK

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception.

Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates. A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower, the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Village Requests New Building Deal

Des Plaines Manor apartment developers were told to reshuffle and deal again on their offer to provide Hoffman Estates with a municipal building site.

Located off the northwest corner of Bode Road and Grand Canyon Parkway, five acres have been offered by Des Plaines Manor in exchange for a go-ahead on eight four-story apartment buildings. The apartments would be built on the remaining 15 acres at the site.

Testimony was heard that a retention pond taking up over two acres of the property would cost between $30,000 and $40,000 to construct. Richard Regan, plan commission chairman, told the Des Plaines Manor architect to make a different offer.

THE REMAINING land, less than three acres, does not appear to be large enough for a municipal building, Regan added. This does not mean that some other arrangement will not be agreeable, Regan told the Herald yesterday.

Harold Wilner, the property owner, is a taxpayer in the village and no final decision will be made until he gets a public hearing, Regan said.

Special reports are due at the Nov. 26 plan commission meeting covering needs the Des Plaines Manor apartments would require of different areas of the village. Elmer Landen will report on schools, Roger Bergstrom on traffic, Fred Weaver on parks, and Ed Kalasa for the fire department.

ZONING FOR THE Des Plaines Manor apartments was approved by the old administration last April. The new administration believes the zoning was granted under improper conditions.

The developers feel they have a right to go ahead with their plans. Rather than settle the matter in court, both parties are attempting to work out an arrangement that would be to the best interests of the village.

Hopefully a suitable municipal building site will be provided in the deal.

To Award Contract for Pool

A nearly $161,000 contract for construction of Hanover Park's first swimming pool will be awarded to Jensen Pool Co., Barrington, pending annexation of a 590-acre tract by the village next week.

According to Park Pres. Harold T. Humphreys, tentative plans call for construction of the pool complex at Ahlstrand Park with actual work slated to begin as early as possible next spring.

Total cost of the pool is being underwritten by Larwin-Illinois, developer of the large area in the DuPage County section of Hanover Park. The recreational facility is being installed by the builder in line with terms of a pre-annexation agreement.

In an interview this week, Humphreys said that completion of the pool is anticipated sometime late in June so that the complex will be operational during the 1970 swim season.

IT WILL CONSIST of one olympic size pool plus a smaller training area and a wading pond for small children.

He indicated that the existing fieldhouse at Ahlstrand Park will be remodeled and an almost identical structure will be built at a right angle to it.

Since the pool complex is being paid for by the builder, it is unnecessary to obtain additional bids or estimates.

Park Atty. William Davies also told the

Apt. Plan Hit

by MARY REIFSCHNEIDER

A standing-room crowd at Wednesday's Schaumburg Village Board meeting expressed displeasure at a request by Campanelli Brothers to build 70 per cent three-bedroom condominiums on a 40-acre tract.

More than 125 residents attended the meeting to urge trustees not to approve Campanelli's petition, but since three board members were absent, action was delayed until the next board meeting at 8 p.m. Nov. 24.

Campanelli is the largest builder in Schaumburg and the developer of Weatherfield. The developer submitted a petition to rezone 190 acres at the northwest corner of Roselle and Wise roads and 40 acres on the south side of Schaumburg Road, east and south of the fire station, from residential to planned development, E2.

THE 190-ACRE tract will have only one and two-bedroom apartments and some commercial development. The 40-acre tract will have 380 units, including 260 three-bedroom units. The developer is not donating a school site on the 40-acre tract.

Campanelli submitted one petition for both tracts, even though the parcels aren't adjacent. Thus the proposal does not violate the 15 per cent limit on three-bedroom units.

School Dist. 54, however, doesn't see it that way, and, through efforts organized by PTA units, the hundred-plus residents attended along with the school board to oppose the three-bedroom units.

The discussion began with Mayor Robert O. Atcher telling residents that Campanelli has given six school sites in Weatherfield to Dist. 54. The developer also built and donated Campanelli School to Dist. 54.

ACCORDING to an Illinois Supreme Court decision, developers can't be forced to make donations, but Schaumburg developers have voluntarily done so, the mayor said. Campanelli will donate another school site in a parcel west of Schaumburg Road.

Dist. 54 Supt. Wayne Schaible said the 40-acre high density site is of concern because schools in the vicinity are filled to capacity. The condominiums to be built on that site will bring an estimated 300 children into the district.

The 40-acre site was originally sold at $800 an acre to High School Dist. 211 for Schaumburg High School. It would not support a three-story building and two years ago Campanelli agreed to swap it for the present 40-acre site the school is being built on now.

James Humphreys, a Dist. 211 board member, said Campanelli cooperated with the district in the trade, but added, "We oppose this petition."

"I'M NOT aware of any monetary losses to Campanelli in making the trade. The value in the trade went up per acre. The opinion of our district is that high density apartments are detrimental to the school district. We hope that the board denies this petition and that the developer puts in something more meaningful to the school district," Humphreys said.

Atcher, surprised by Humphreys' statement, said, "I'm sure Mr. Campanelli would be amazed to hear the report you just gave. Campanelli gave up 40 of the best 160 acres in the tract and the only 40 acres buildable without redrawing the land because Dist. 211 said it was in dire need."

Seek To Solve Health, Welfare Problems

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take."

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and nonpublic schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

Palatine High To Hear 4 on Vietnam

Students at Palatine High School will have an opportunity to hear four speakers on "What Our Policy Should Be in Vietnam" at an after-school symposium today.

Ed Warnian, Democratic candidate in the 13th Congressional District, will be one of the speakers at the student-sponsored discussion.

Palatine High School is the only Dist. 211 school which will have November Moratorium activities. Conant and Fremd high schools had programs during the October Moratorium, but have scheduled none for this month.

JERRY KYKISC, a Palatine High School graduate and decorated Vietnam war veteran, will represent a local group called the Citizens for True Representation in the hour-long symposium. Doug Cannon, former Con-Con candidate from Mount Prospect and member of Young Americans for Freedom, will also be on the program. Fourth speaker in the hour-long program will be a representative from the Chicago Moratorium Committee.

A late bus has been scheduled by the Dist. 211 transportation department to take students home after the symposium.

Students in Dist. 211 who are absent from school to participate in Moratorium Day activities outside school must have pre-arranged parent permission. The absence will be an unexcused absence.

Those who are absent from school without parent permission will be truant. A parent conference is necessary before the students can be readmitted to school.

Stores Are Evacuated Following Bomb Call

Schaumburg police said yesterday the Jewel Food Store in the Weatherfield Commons Shopping Center received a phone call yesterday saying a bomb was placed somewhere in the store.

Martin Conroy, police chief, said the manager of the store was instructed to take all the money in the cash registers and safe and deposit it in a telephone booth on Mannheim Road, near O'Hare International Airport.

In turn, Conroy said, the caller said he would phone the manager and tell him where the bomb was located. But the manager called police instead and they searched the store with an assist from the Schaumburg Fire Department and state and county police.

About 100 persons were evacuated from the 12 stores in the shopping center at about 7 p.m., according to Conroy. They gave up their search at about 8:30 p.m.

3-Bedroom Plan Criticized

Involved in the land swap were former Dist. 211 business manager James Lawrence and former Dist. 211 board president Donald Truitt.

ATCHER reminded residents that Campanelli has built only one and two-bedroom apartments in the past and denying the three-bedroom units would not be fair. He also said that the condominiums will have much higher value and will have more assessed valuation per child than single-family homes.

The residents said condominiums have more children per unit than single-family homes.

Residents said that if Schaumburg approves the three-bedroom units, it will be like Hoffman Estates approving 40 per cent three-bedrooms in one apartment complex last year.

"There is no way to compare municipalities," Atcher said. He pointed out that Schaumburg will have Centex Industrial Park, Motorola, Woodfield Shopping Center to add to the tax base.

"The grade school board has bought sites for children in Hoffman Estates. They haven't had to purchase one site in Schaumburg," Atcher said.

THE RESIDENTS suggested that approval for housing units that burden the school district be held up until the industrial parks and shopping centers are built.

"People have to come before commerce and industry comes. Schools will always be in a catch-up position while Schaumburg is in its development stage," Atcher said.

Joseph Sharkey, Campanelli representative, said the condominiums won't be completed for five to eight years and that a commercial district will be developed on Roselle Road simultaneously to add to the tax base.

One resident said, "This decision is of such magnitude that the few men sitting on the board shouldn't decide. A referendum should be held." Atcher rejected that idea.

Another resident hinted that there might be graft involving the village and developer. "We don't have to take those kind of insults," Atcher said.

SHARKEY, defending the village board, said, "In 10 years, this board has always worked in behalf of the residents."

Trustee James Guthrie said, "We welcome your honest concern. Your concern makes it possible for our work to go forth."

The zoning board recommended approval of the Campanelli petition following a hearing Oct. 29. Russell Parker, chairman, said about 20 persons attended that hearing and none protested. A representative of Dist. 211 did not attend that hearing and a representative of Dist. 54 only commented that the condominiums would mean more busing.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 19-day, $330 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 jet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

Discuss Health, Poverty Snags

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

View Park Apts.

Buffalo Grove's plan commission got its first look Wednesday at a new apartment complex and small shopping center planned for 8.8 acres west of Highway 83 and due east of St. Mary's Catholic Church property.

On the apartment portion of the property are planned between 82 and 84 apartment units. The complex would be known as the Buffalo Park Apartments.

An attorney, Mark Beaubien, and a Realtor, Ed Matus, represented the owners of the property at the hearing.

They did not reveal the names of the owners, who they said, also planned to develop the land, but instead promised to make that information public at a pre-annexation hearing with the village board next week.

BEAUBIEN TOLD the plan commission that the location and shape of the land and the proximity of the planned Lake-Cook Road made it suited for development as a buffer zone of commercial and apartment development.

He explained that based on the two plans for the extension of Lake-Cook Road, the south section of the property, planned for commercial development will "either be nicked by the road or split in half by it."

He said that the owners of the land would agree to a stipulation that no buildings would be put on the southern portion of the land until the location of the road is established.

The attorney explained that the land is currently zoned for "highway commercial" use by Lake County and that the development of the southern portion would include such things as a gasoline service station, a neighborhood grocery store or a franchise restaurant.

Beaubien said that the owners of the property would agree to return to the plan commission for approval on the development of both the complex and the shopping center after zoning is approved and annexation to the village is accomplished.

THE REPRESENTATIVES of the developers said they would also agree not to exceed 16 units per acre in the apartment development.

No three-bedroom apartments are planned, and not more than 50 per cent of the apartment units would have two bedrooms.

The complex would be set back from Highway 83 with a roadway extending to the thoroughfare from the complex.

Michael Krugly, plan commission chairman, pointed out that according to the plans, the business portion of the development was not big enough for the zoning that was requested. Beaubien suggested that the roadway from the highway to the apartments could be included in the commercially zoned portion.

THE REALTOR, Ed Matus, told the plan commissioners that rents on the apartments would vary from $170 to $180 for the one-bedroom units and from $175 to $200 for the two-bedroom units.

He said the owners hoped to start construction of the apartments in January.

The developers would also donate $100 per unit to the village with 50 per cent of the amount earmarked for the school district. No lands would be donated for public use, but the roadway would be turned over to the village.

The attorney responded to a plan commission question that the developers would also covenant not to put any residences above the businesses in the southern part of the property.

M-Days Quiet Here

by TOM WELLMAN

It was business as usual yesterday in High School Dist. 214's six high schools.

With the exception of a few armbands and an after-school discussion at Arlington High School, the first of two Vietnam Moratorium days were quiet, orderly and uneventful.

At Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, a group calling itself Students

Supporting the President's Policies (SSPP) handed out American Flag buttons before school. At the same time another group handed out Moratorium buttons.

AT ELK GROVE High School it was a normal day, according to a school spokesman. A handful of students wore the increasingly familiar Moratorium armbands.

Arlington High School students scheduled a discussion after school. Ronald Kaufman, a teacher at Arlington, was to address students, and the students would then state their own positions on the war.

District officials said it would be difficult to determine how many students would miss classes today, when an afternoon student rally against the war will be held in the Grant Park bandshell in downtown Chicago.

IN A RELATED action, an Arlington Heights resident notified Dist. 214 board president Arthur Aronson that a legal attempt to block Moratorium-related activities was being dropped.

J. O. Roeger of Arlington Heights is chairman of a group that announced last

Whittenberg Funeral Held

by GERRY DEZONNA

Funeral services for George Whittenberg were held yesterday.

Relatives, friends and village officials paid their last respects to the former Mount Prospect police chief during services held at Lautenberg and Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights and Ridgewood Cemetery in Des Plaines.

Whittenberg, who residents remember as the man on the motorcycle, died Monday at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. He was 69.

THERE WAS A time during Whittenberg's 33 years of service with the department when he knew virtually everyone in town. "I remember I could see a man on the street and call him by his first name. I knew what kind of a car he drove, where he lived and how many kids he had. But the village has grown much too large for that today," he said last spring.

But many people remembered him and they came silently yesterday in final tribute.

Members of the Mount Prospect Police Department, men Whittenberg hired for the force, served as pallbearers and joined officers of communities from Niles to Arlington Heights in the honor guard.

Lt. John Homola, Lt. John Savage, Sgt. Gerald Glascock, Sgt. Ralph Doney and Patrolmen Edwin Hachmeister and Ken Zschach were pallbearers.

WHITTENBERG retired from the police force in 1965, more than 33 years after he began his career with the department. He served as chief of police from 1937 until the day he left.

Whittenberg, who was born in Chicago Aug. 1, 1900, lived at 4 S. Edward St. with his wife, Irma. The Whittenbergs moved to Mount Prospect in 1924, when the man on the motorcycle was the one-man police department for 350 residents.

"He was an excellent police chief, and I just can't say enough about George Whittenberg. He had great respect for the community and its residents, and they had great respect for him. George helped the department grow from one policeman, himself, to a department staffed by 28 men," Newell Esmond, chief of police, said.

WHITTENBERG PREDICTED the day of the common policeman, such as he was, will soon be over and the gumshoe on a beat will be replaced by police specialists.

George Whittenberg. A common cop, he thought.

"But to those who knew him, he was by no means common. He paved the way for Mount Prospect.

Wheeling Going with Apollo

When the Apollo 12 spacecraft lifts off its launching pad, a small part of Wheeling will go along.

The part is the 10-pound central timing device for the spacecraft, the one that triggers the ignition of the rocket's stages operates the complicated machinery in the spacecraft according to schedule.

The "clock," which General Time produces, automatically controls all the programmed functions of the spacecraft.

There are two identical units in the spacecraft so that if one should fail the other takes over automatically. Composed of transistorized and integrated circuitry, the unit is sealed in an environmental chamber to insure its operation.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Defense Contract Administration Services Region inspects the units as they are completed at the Wheeling plant. Lucian Cressler, the representative, sees spaceships somewhat differently than the average American.

"I view each shot with the feeling of actually being a part of the crew; unseen, weightless, but doing what was assigned, through the equipment we have indicated was perfect for the shot," he said.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like those were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

Ball Joints Aid in Moonshot

by STEVE NOVICK

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception.

Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates.

A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Libby-Owens-Ford wholly owns Aeroquip, of which Barco is a division.

Computer System Up in Air Again

The question of a computer financial reporting system for Buffalo Grove, once thought to have been settled, is up for consideration again.

Though the village trustees awarded a contract to Honeywell Inc. for the computer system in September, they have decided to reconsider the matter at the request of Richard Decker, the village manager.

Decker plans to review the village's financial reporting requirements and, from that, draw up a new list of specifications for a reporting system.

The village board awarded a contract for the computer system to Honeywell prior to hiring Decker as the manager, however.

THE QUESTION OF a computer monitoring system for the village has been a long-standing and somewhat controversial one.

Last April the village board approved the start of negotiations with Worldwide Timesharing Inc., for a computer system to handle the village's financial records.

However when three new trustees were elected to the board last April, the question was raised of which kind of computer system to buy.

The village had planned to use an on-line system. However some trustees questioned whether an off-line system might be more feasible. Essentially the differences between the two are that while the on-line system results in the village's receiving reports faster, the off-line system is considerably cheaper.

Little progress was made through last spring on determining which system the village preferred.

THEN AT A BOARD meeting last summer a dispute arose among trustees over the fact the village's 1969-70 budget was not ready. Trustee Robert Gleason, who was responsible for the budget, maintained that without the computer reporting system the budget was "meaningless."

He charged certain of the other trustees with procrastination in deciding which computer system they preferred. He said the lack of a computer system was the main reason he had not completed the budget.

Bids were finally opened for an off-line system Sept. 15. Honeywell's bid won out over a bid submitted by Worldwide. An advisory committee set up by the village had recommended acceptance of the Honeywell bid.

Seek Red Car in Murder Case

by BARRY SIGALE

Arlington Heights police said yesterday that a delivery truck driver saw a red auto parked next to a gasoline pump at the exact time the attendant, Fred Tallon, 70, was robbed and brutally murdered.

Lt. George Ekblad, chief detective, said the unidentified driver passed by the Arlington Park Shell service station at about 3:15 a.m., the same time Tallon was repeatedly stabbed by an unknown assailant.

Wednesday, Ekblad theorized that the killer may have not acted alone. He said another person probably drove his car around the area and picked up the attacker after he left Tallon lying in front of a nearby house, where he sought help.

THE TRUCK DRIVER TOLD police he drove by the intersection of Euclid and Wilke roads and turned around about two blocks away and headed back to the station.

When he got to the station, Ekblad said, the red car was gone.

Police spent most of the day yesterday checking into the past records and background of about 30 persons formerly employed at the station.

"We spent all day backtracking and investigating what we have," said Ekblad. "We checked out the backgrounds of almost all the former employees and we contacted 15 of them personally. But we haven't come up with anything yet."

In addition, Mundelein police told Ekblad they were looking for a man who is wanted in connection with a bank robbery in their town in which the robber wielded a knife and threatened bank employees. So far, the two incidents have not been connected.

MRS. MARJE EVERETT, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, operator of Arlington Park and owners of the gas station where Tallon was murdered, yesterday offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest or conviction of the person or persons involved in the murder.

Also, police said, they expect other individuals and companies to offer a money reward in a further attempt to find Tallon's assailant.

Police said a squad car visited Tallon at the station about 10 minutes before the murder occurred. They said policemen sometimes visit the station five times a night during the midnight shift and that a squad car would have probably visited the station at about 3:30 a.m.

Ekblad said the station was the only one in Arlington Heights open 24 hours a day and that fairly heavy business probably would be handled between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. He said it isn't too busy after that and that is one of the reasons police occasionally visit the station.

Night Racing Hearing Set

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.

A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.

The major hassle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.

THE VOTE, WHICH includes ballots from horse owners and trainers, was 402 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.

About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry, appeared at a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-night racing experiment.

ARLINGTON PARK'S application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 30-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970. Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.

While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,288,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

month it would seek an injunction to block Moratorium activities in the high schools.

The letter stated that Roeser's group concurred with the board's decision last Monday to limit Moratorium activities in the schools. It praised board members for discussing the issue at length.

At Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine, no unusual activities were reported. A spokesman said that one student would be traveling to Washington, D.C., this weekend to participate in war protests there.

AT HARPER, 30 faculty members have banded together to sponsor a teach-in from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today.

Seven faculty members will speak during three one-hour sessions to be held in Room E-106 and E-103 in the Lecture/Demonstration Center.

The program will be held from 11 to 2 so that it will not conflict with scheduled classes, according to a spokesman at the college.

AT 11 A.M., ROBERT Lokatos, an instructor in psychology, will moderate a program in E-106 that will feature Michael Bartos, associate professor of English and Robert Powell, chairman of the communications division.

At noon William Williamson, an instructor in philosophy, will moderate a discussion in E-106 that will include Sharon Alter, an instructor in history, and Angela D'Aversa, an instructor in political science.

At 1 p.m. in E-103 Williamson will moderate a program featuring Lokatos and Karen Kares, an English instructor

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $350 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

Discuss Health, Poverty Snags

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature."

She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

Slate Book Review

A review of Lovat Dickson's "H. G. Wells His Turbulent Life and Times," will be presented each Sunday in November at the Washburn Congregational Church, Route 22, Half Day.

The Rev. Herbert H. Duenow will review the book at a matinee performance at 4 p.m. this Sunday. Reviews on the last three Sunday's of the month will be presented at 7:30 p.m.

Mothers Visit Eisenhower

"The whole philosophy of education is changing. We are steadily moving back to the concept of the 'little red school house,'" according to Edward Grodsky, Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 superintendent.

"In the next 10 to 15 years, we will probably see more of the ungraded system and open classrooms used in our elementary schools," Grodsky told an audience of mothers visiting Eisenhower School Wednesday.

The mothers were the first to visit the new Eisenhower School as part of the parent visitation program. The program was developed last year by Grodsky to inform the community on "what's going on in the schools."

"ALL DISTRICT PARENTS are welcome to participate in the visitation program," said Grodsky. "They can join one of the bimonthly tours by contacting their local PTA."

The mothers were greeted Wednesday by the principal, Mrs. Mary Hyrczyk, and ushered into the resource center. Forming a pit, around which the first and second floors are arranged, this center is the focal point of the school.

The visitation program began with a series of slides showing children at work in the classrooms. As the first slide hit the screen, a mother in the audience exclaimed, "That's my daughter."

A luncheon scene came on next, looking almost like a birthday party.

A CHUCKLE CAME from the audience

when a shot of the kindergarten class revealed a stack of coats piled on the floor. Mrs. Hyrczyk said new coat racks had arrived at the school after the picture was taken.

Rows of plants spilling out of jars, rocks and other treasures were shown stacked neatly on a line of chairs. "It is amazing what you can get by with when you don't have all of your shelving yet," Mrs. Hyrczyk told the mothers.

The most comment came when a picture was shown of a double-sized classroom with two classes of children working together. The class is part of the new "team teaching" being used throughout the area. "When are you going to put up the wall between the classes?" asked one mother.

"We aren't," answered Mrs. Hyrczyk. "But isn't that too messy and distracting for the children?" asked one mother.

"THE ROOM IS BUILT that way on purpose," said Mrs. Hyrczyk. "While one teacher helps the children in a reading group, the other teacher can help them in independent study. It makes it easier for everyone."

Following the presentation, Grodsky remarked on the progress of the school and said it was finished sooner than he had expected. "Mrs. Hyrczyk has told me that it is like Christmas every day. They have new equipment and supplies coming in all of the time."

M-Days Quiet Here

by TOM WELLMAN

It was business as usual yesterday in High School Dist. 214's six high schools.

With the exception of a few armbands and an after-school discussion at Arlington High School, the first of two Vietnam Moratorium days were quiet, orderly and uneventful.

At Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, a group calling itself Students

Supporting the President's Policies (SSPP) handed out American Flag buttons before school. At the same time another group handed out Moratorium buttons.

AT ELK GROVE High School it was a normal day, according to a school spokesman. A handful of students wore the increasingly familiar Moratorium arm-bands.

Arlington High School students scheduled a discussion after school. Ronald Kaufman, a teacher at Arlington, was to address students, and the students would then state their own positions on the war.

District officials said it would be difficult to determine how many students would miss classes today, when an afternoon student rally against the war will be held in the Grant Park bandshell in downtown Chicago.

IN A RELATED action, an Arlington Heights resident notified Dist. 214 board president Arthur Aronson that a legal attempt to block Moratorium-related activities was being dropped.

J. O. Roeser of Arlington Heights is chairman of a group that announced last

Whittenberg Funeral Held

by GERRY DEZONNA

Funeral services for George Whittenberg were held yesterday.

Relatives, friends and village officials paid their last respects to the former Mount Prospect police chief during services held at Lautenberg and Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights and Ridge-wood Cemetery in Des Plaines.

Whittenberg, who residents remember as the man on the motorcycle, died Monday at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. He was 69.

THERE WAS A time during Whittenberg's 33 years of service with the department when he knew virtually everyone in town. "I remember I could see a man on the street and call him by his first name. I knew what kind of a car he drove, where he lived and how many kids he had. But the village has grown much too large for that today," he said last spring.

But many people remembered him and they came silently yesterday in final tribute.

Members of the Mount Prospect Police Department, men Whittenberg hired for the force, served as pallbearers and joined officers of communities from Niles to Arlington Heights in the honor guard.

Lt. John Homola, Lt. John Savage, Sgt. Gerald Glascock, Sgt. Ralph Doney and Patrolmen Edwin Hachmeister and Ken Zschach were pallbearers.

WHITTENBERG retired from the police force in 1965, more than 33 years after he began his career with the department. He served as chief of police from 1937 until the day he left.

Whittenberg, who was born in Chicago Aug. 1, 1900, lived at 4 S. Edward St. with his wife, Irma. The Whittenbergs moved to Mount Prospect in 1924, when the man on the motorcycle was the one-man police department for 350 residents.

"He was an excellent police chief, and I just can't say enough about George Whittenberg. He had great respect for the community and its residents, and they had great respect for him. George helped the department grow from one policeman, himself, to a department staffed by 23 men," Newell Esmond, chief of police, said.

WHITTENBERG PREDICTED the day of the common policeman, such as he was, will soon be over and the gumshoe on a beat will be replaced by police specialists.

George Whittenberg. A common cop, he thought.

"But to those who knew him, he was by no means common. He paved the way for Mount Prospect.

And yesterday the people came to thank him.

View Park Apts.

Buffalo Grove's plan commission got its first look Wednesday at a new apartment complex and small shopping center planned for 8.3 acres west of Highway 83 and due east of St. Mary's Catholic Church property.

On the apartment portion of the property are planned between 82 and 84 apartment units. The complex would be known as the Buffalo Park Apartments.

An attorney, Mark Beaubien, and a Realtor, Ed Matus, represented the owners of the property at the hearing.

They did not reveal the names of the owners, who they said, also planned to develop the land, but instead promised to make that information public at a pre-annexation hearing with the village board next week.

BEAUBIEN TOLD the plan commission that the location and shape of the land and the proximity of the planned Lake-Cook Road made it suited for development as a buffer zone of commercial and apartment development.

He explained that based on the two plans for the extension of Lake-Cook Road, the south section of the property, planned for commercial development will "either be nicked by the road or split in half by it."

He said that the owners of the land would agree to a stipulation that no buildings would be put on the southern portion of the land until the location of the road is established.

The attorney explained that the land is currently zoned for "highway commercial" use by Lake County and that the development of the southern portion would include such things as a gasoline service station, a neighborhood grocery store or a franchise restaurant.

Beaubien said that the owners of the property would agree to return to the plan commission for approval on the development of both the complex and the shopping center after zoning is approved and annexation to the village is accomplished.

THE REPRESENTATIVES of the developers said they would also agree not to exceed 16 units per acre in the apartment development.

No three-bedroom apartments are planned, and not more than 50 per cent of the apartment units would have two bedrooms.

The complex would be set back from Highway 83 with a roadway extending to the thoroughfare from the complex.

Michael Krugly, plan commission chairman, pointed out that according to the plans, the business portion of the development was not big enough for the zoning that was requested. Beaubien suggested that the roadway from the highway to the apartments could be included in the commercially zoned portion.

THE REALTOR, Ed Matus, told the plan commissioners that rents on the apartments would vary from $170 to $180 for the one-bedroom units and from $175 to $200 for the two-bedroom units.

He said the owners hoped to start construction of the apartments in January.

The developers would also donate $100 per unit to the village with 50 per cent of the amount earmarked for the school district. No lands would be donated for public use, but the roadway would be turned over to the village.

The attorney responded to a plan commission question that the developers would also covenant not to put any residences above the businesses in the southern part of the property.

Wheeling Going with Apollo

When the Apollo 12 spacecraft lifts off its launching pad, a small part of Wheeling will go along.

The part is the 10-pound central timing device for the spacecraft, the one that triggers the ignition of the rocket's stages operates the complicated machinery in the spacecraft according to schedule.

The "clock," which General Time produces, automatically controls all the programmed functions of the spacecraft.

There are two identical units in the spacecraft so that if one should fail the other takes over automatically. Composed of transistorized and integrated circuitry, the unit is sealed in an environmental chamber to insure its operation.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Defense Contract Administration Services Reg. inspects the units as they are completed at the Wheeling plant. Lucian Cressler, the representative, sees spaceshots somewhat differently than the average American.

"I view each shot with the feeling of actually being a part of the crew; unseen, weightless, but doing what was assigned, through the equipment we have indicated was perfect for the shot," he said.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like these were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

Ball Joints Aid in Moonshot

by STEVE NOVICK
Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception.
Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.
"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lohman of Hoffman Estates.

A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.
"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.
The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.
The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.
The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.
Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."
There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.
Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.
Libby-Owens-Ford wholly owns Aeroquip, of which Barco is a division.

Computer System Up in Air Again

The question of a computer financial reporting system for Buffalo Grove, once thought to have been settled, is up for consideration again.

Though the village trustees awarded a contract to Honeywell Inc. for the computer system in September, they have decided to reconsider the matter at the request of Richard Decker, the village manager.

Decker plans to review the village's financial reporting requirements and, from that, draw up a new list of specifications for a reporting system.

The village board awarded a contract for the computer system to Honeywell prior to hiring Decker as the manager, however.

Seek Red Car in Murder Case

by BARRY SIGALE
Arlington Heights police said yesterday that a delivery truck driver saw a red auto parked next to a gasoline pump at the exact time the attendant, Fred Tallon, 70, was robbed and brutally murdered.
Lt. George Ekblad, chief detective, said the unidentified driver passed by the Arlington Park Shell service station at about 3:15 a.m., the same time Tallon was repeatedly stabbed by an unknown assailant.
Wednesday, Ekblad theorized that the killer may have not acted alone. He said another person probably drove his car around the area and picked up the attacker after he left Tallon lying in front of a nearby house, where he sought help.
THE TRUCK DRIVER TOLD police he drove by the intersection of Euclid and Wilke roads and turned around about two blocks away and headed back to the station.

When he got to the station, Ekblad said, the red car was gone.
Police spent most of the day yesterday checking into the past records and background of about 30 persons formerly employed at the station.
"We spent all day backtracking and investigating what we have," said Ekblad. "We checked out the backgrounds of almost all the former employees and we contacted 15 of them personally. But we haven't come up with anything yet."
In addition, Mundelein police told Ekblad they were looking for a man who was wanted in connection with a bank robbery in their town in which the robber wielded a knife and threatened bank employees. So far, the two incidents have not been connected.
MRS. MARJE EVERETT, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, operator of Arlington Park and owners of the gas station where Tallon was murdered, yesterday offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest or conviction of the person or persons involved in the murder.

Also, police said, they expect other individuals and companies to offer a money reward in a further attempt to find Tallon's assailant.
Police said a squad car visited Tallon at the station about 10 minutes before the murder occurred. They said policeman sometimes visit the station five times a night during the midnight shift and that a squad car would have probably visited the station at about 3:30 a.m.
Ekblad said the station was the only one in Arlington Heights open 24 hours a day and that fairly heavy business probably would be handled between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. He said it isn't too busy after that and that is one of the reasons police occasionally visit the station.

Night Racing Hearing Set

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.
A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.
The major hassle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.
THE VOTE, WHICH includes ballots from horse owners and trainers, was 492 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.
About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry appeared at a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-night racing experiment.
ARLINGTON PARK'S application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 30-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970.
Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.
While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,288,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

month it would seek an injunction to block Moratorium activities in the high schools.
The letter stated that Roeser's group concurred with the board's decision last Monday to limit Moratorium activities in the schools. It praised board members for discussing the issue at length.
At Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine, no unusual activities were reported. A spokesman said that one student would be traveling to Washington, D.C., this weekend to participate in war protests there.
AT HARPER, 30 faculty members have banded together to sponsor a teach-in from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today.
Seven faculty members will speak during three one-hour sessions to be held in Room E-106 and E-108 in the Lecture/Demonstration Center.

The program will be held from 11 to 2 so that it will not conflict with scheduled classes, according to a spokesman at the college.
AT 11 A.M., ROBERT Lokatos, an instructor in psychology, will moderate a program in E-106 that will feature Michael Barlos, associate professor of English and Robert Powell, chairman of the communications division.
At noon Willard Williamson, an instructor in philosophy, will moderate a discussion in E-106 that will include Sharon Alter, an instructor in history, and Angela D'Aversa, an instructor in political science.
At 1 p.m. in E-106 Williamson will moderate a program featuring Lokatos and Karen Kares, an English instructor.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $330 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 jet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted—12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

Discuss Health, Poverty Snags

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

M-Days Quiet Here

by TOM WELLMAN

It was business as usual yesterday in High School Dist. 214's six high schools.

With the exception of a few armbands and an after-school discussion at Arlington High School, the first of two Vietnam Moratorium days were quiet, orderly and uneventful.

At Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, a group calling itself Students

Supporting the President's Policies (SSPP) handed out American Flag buttons before school. At the same time another group handed out Moratorium buttons.

AT ELK GROVE High School it was a normal day, according to a school spokesman. A handful of students wore the increasingly familiar Moratorium armbands.

Arlington High School students scheduled a discussion after school. Ronald Kaufman, a teacher at Arlington, was to address students, and the students would then state their own positions on the war.

District officials said it would be difficult to determine how many students would miss classes today, when an afternoon student rally against the war will be held in the Grant Park bandshell in downtown Chicago.

IN A RELATED action, an Arlington Heights resident notified Dist. 214 board president Arthur Aronson that a legal attempt to block Moratorium-related activities was being dropped.

Whittenberg Funeral Held

by GERRY DEZONNA

Funeral services for George Whittenberg were held yesterday.

Relatives, friends and village officials paid their last respects to the former Mount Prospect police chief during services held at Lauterberg and Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights and Ridgewood Cemetery in Des Plaines.

Whittenberg, who residents remember as the man on the motorcycle, died Monday at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. He was 69.

THERE WAS A time during Whittenberg's 33 years of service with the department when he knew virtually everyone in town. "I remember I could see a man on the street and call him by his first name. I knew what kind of a car he drove, where he lived and how many kids he had. But the village has grown much too large for that today," he said last spring.

But many people remembered him and they came silently yesterday in final tribute.

Members of the Mount Prospect Police Department, men Whittenberg hired for the force, served as pallbearers and joined officers of communities from Niles to Arlington Heights in the honor guard.

Lt. John Homola, Lt. John Savage, Sgt. Gerald Glascock, Sgt. Ralph Doney and Patrolmen Edwin Hachmeister and Ken Zschach were pallbearers.

WHITTENBERG retired from the police force in 1965, more than 33 years after he began his career with the department. He served as chief of police from 1937 until the day he left.

Whittenberg, who was born in Chicago Aug. 1, 1900, lived at 4 S. Edward St. with his wife, Irma. The Whittenbergs moved to Mount Prospect in 1924, when the man on the motorcycle was the one-man police department for 350 residents.

"He was an excellent police chief, and I just can't say enough about George Whittenberg. He had great respect for the community and its residents, and they had great respect for him. George helped the department grow from one policeman, himself, to a department staffed by 28 men," Newell Esmond, chief of police, said.

WHITTENBERG PREDICTED the day of the common policeman, such as he was, will soon be over and the gumshoe on a beat will be replaced by police specialists.

George Whittenberg. A common cop, he thought.

"But to those who knew him, he was by no means common. He paved the way for Mount Prospect.

And yesterday the people came to thank him.

View Park Apts.

Buffalo Grove's plan commission got its first look Wednesday at a new apartment complex and small shopping center planned for 8.3 acres west of Highway 83 and due east of St. Mary's Catholic Church property.

On the apartment portion of the property are planned between 82 and 84 apartment units. The complex would be known as the Buffalo Park Apartments.

An attorney, Mark Beaubien, and a Realtor, Ed Matus, represented the owners of the property at the hearing.

They did not reveal the names of the owners, who they said, also planned to develop the land, but instead promised to make that information public at a pre-annexation hearing with the village board next week.

BEAUBIEN TOLD the plan commission that the location and shape of the land and the proximity of the planned Lake-Cook Road made it suited for development as a buffer zone of commercial and apartment development.

He explained that based on the two plans for the extension of Lake-Cook Road, the south section of the property, planned for commercial development will "either be nicked by the road or split in half by it."

He said that the owners of the land would agree to a stipulation that no buildings would be put on the southern portion of the land until the location of the road is established.

The attorney explained that the land is currently zoned for "highway commercial" use by Lake County and that the development of the southern portion would include such things as a gasoline service station, a neighborhood grocery store or a franchise restaurant.

Beaubien said that the owners of the property would agree to return to the plan commission for approval on the development of both the complex and the shopping center after zoning is approved and annexation to the village is accomplished.

THE REPRESENTATIVES of the developers said they would also agree not to exceed 16 units per acre in the apartment development.

No three-bedroom apartments are planned, and not more than 50 per cent of the apartment units would have two bedrooms.

The complex would be set back from Highway 83 with a roadway extending to the thoroughfare from the complex.

Michael Krugly, plan commission chairman, pointed out that according to the plans, the business portion of the development was not big enough for the zoning that was requested. Beaubien suggested that the roadway from the highway to the apartments could be included in the commercially zoned portion.

THE REALTOR, Ed Matus, told the plan commissioners that rents on the apartments would vary from $170 to $180 for the one-bedroom units and from $175 to $200 for the two-bedroom units.

He said the owners hoped to start construction of the apartments in January.

The developers would also donate $100 per unit to the village with 50 per cent of the amount earmarked for the school district. No lands would be donated for public use, but the roadway would be turned over to the village.

The attorney responded to a plan commission question that the developers would also covenant not to put any residences above the businesses in the southern part of the property.

Wheeling Going with Apollo

When the Apollo 12 spacecraft lifts off its launching pad, a small part of Wheeling will go along.

The part is the 10-pound central timing device for the spacecraft, the one that triggers the ignition of the rocket's stages operates the complicated machinery in the spacecraft according to schedule.

The "clock," which General Time produces, automatically controls all the programmed functions of the spacecraft.

There are two identical units in the spacecraft so that if one should fail the other takes over automatically. Composed of transistorized and integrated circuitry, the unit is sealed in an environmental chamber to insure its operation.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Defense Contract Administration Services Regim inspects the units as they are completed at the Wheeling plant. Lucian Cressler, the representative, says spacecrafts somewhat differently than the average American.

"I view each shot with the feeling of actually being a part of the crew; unseen, weightless, but doing what was assigned, through the equipment we have indicated was perfect for the shot," he said.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like those were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

Ball Joints Aid in Moonshot

by STEVE NOVICK

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception.

Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates.

A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Libby-Owens-Ford wholly owns Aeroquip, of which Barco is a division.

Computer System Up in Air Again

The question of a computer financial reporting system for Buffalo Grove, once thought to have been settled, is up for consideration again.

Though the village trustees awarded a contract to Honeywell Inc., for the computer system in September, they have decided to reconsider the matter at the request of Richard Decker, the village manager.

Decker plans to review the village's financial reporting requirements and, from that, draw up a new list of specifications for a reporting system.

The village board awarded a contract for the computer system to Honeywell prior to hiring Decker as the manager, however.

THE QUESTION OF a computer monitoring system for the village has been a long-standing and somewhat controversial one.

Last April the village board approved the start of negotiations with Worldwide Timesharing Inc., for a computer system to handle the village's financial records.

However when three new trustees were elected to the board last April, the question was raised of which kind of computer system to buy.

The village had planned to use an on-line system. However some trustees questioned whether an off-line system might be more feasible. Essentially the differences between the two are that while the on-line system results in the village's receiving reports faster, the off-line system is considerably cheaper.

Little progress was made through last spring on determining which system the village preferred.

THEN AT A BOARD meeting last summer a dispute arose among trustees over the fact the village's 1969-70 budget was not ready. Trustee Robert Gleason, who was responsible for the budget, maintained that without the computer reporting system the budget was "meaningless."

He charged certain of the other trustees with procrastination in deciding which computer system they preferred. He said the lack of a computer system was the main reason he had not completed the budget.

Bids were finally opened for an off-line system Sept. 15. Honeywell's bid won out over a bid submitted by Worldwide. An advisory committee set up by the village had recommended acceptance of the Honeywell bid.

Seek Red Car in Murder Case

by BARRY SIGALE

Arlington Heights police said yesterday that a delivery truck driver saw a red auto parked next to a gasoline pump at the exact time the attendant, Fred Tailon, 70, was robbed and brutally murdered.

Lt. George Ekblad, chief detective, said the unidentified driver passed by the Arlington Park Shell service station at about 3:15 a.m., the same time Tailon was repeatedly stabbed by an unknown assailant.

Wednesday, Ekblad theorized that the killer may have not acted alone. He said another person probably drove his car around the area and picked up the attacker after he left Tailon lying in front of a nearby house, where he sought help.

THE TRUCK DRIVER TOLD police he drove by the intersection of Euclid and Wilke roads and turned around about two blocks away and headed back to the station.

When he got to the station, Ekblad said, the red car was gone.

Police spent most of the day yesterday checking into the past records and background of about 30 persons formerly employed at the station.

"We spent all day backtracking and investigating what we have," said Ekblad. "We checked out the backgrounds of almost all the former employees and we contacted 15 of them personally. But we haven't come up with anything yet."

In addition, Mundelein police told Ekblad they were looking for a man who was wanted in connection with a bank robbery in their town in which the robber wielded a knife and threatened bank employees. So far, the two incidents have not been connected.

MRS. MARJE EVERETT, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, operator of Arlington Park and owners of the gas station where Tailon was murdered, yesterday offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest or conviction of the person or persons involved in the murder.

Also, police said, they expect other individuals and companies to offer a money reward in a further attempt to find Tailon's assailant.

Police said a squad car visited Tailon at the station about 10 minutes before the murder occurred. They said policemen sometimes visit the station five times a night during the midnight shift and that a squad car would have probably visited the station at about 3:30 a.m.

Ekblad said the station was the only one in Arlington Heights open 24 hours a day and that fairly heavy business probably would be handled between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. He said it isn't too busy after that and that is one of the reasons police occasionally visit the station.

Night Racing Hearing Set

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.

A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.

The major hurdle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.

THE VOTE, WHICH includes ballots from horse owners and trainers, was 492 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.

About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry appeared at a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-night racing experiment.

ARLINGTON PARK's application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 30-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970.

Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.

While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1969's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,288,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

The letter stated that Roeser's group concurred with the board's decision last Monday to limit Maturator activities in the schools. It praised board members for discussing the issue at length.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $350 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

Ask Archives Records

CHICAGO—Attorney for the "Chicago Seven" said yesterday they will seek to obtain from the National Archives the records on which a government study team based its controversial report on street violence before and during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Defense attorney William Kunstler said he will subpoena Roy Cutler, executive director of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, in an effort to get the documents.

Night Racing Hearing Set

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.

A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.

The major hassle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.

THE VOTE, WHICH includes ballots from horse owners and trainers, was 492 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.

About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry appeared at a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-night racing experiment.

ARLINGTON PARK'S application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 30-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970.

Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.

While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1969's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,238,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

Educational Fund Tax Vote Tomorrow

Palatine and Rolling Meadows voters in Dist. 15 will go to the polls tomorrow from noon to 7 p.m. to vote on a proposed 21-cent increase in the educational fund tax rate, a $3.3 million building program, and a $120,000 annual rent to be levied if the district reaches its bonding limit before the building program is completed.

Results of the Dist. 15 referendum will be available after 10 p.m. Saturday on the Paddock Publications Public Service Telephone, 384-1700.

The referendum is the first one requested by the district in almost two years. The last referendum was a $1.6 million building program passed in December 1967.

"LONG-RANGE planning in education cannot go beyond three years and be effective," Lester Ehringer, Dist. 15 board member and chairman of the board's referendum steering committee, said.

"We are proposing a three-phase building program which will take about three years to complete. This way we don't have to keep coming back to the voters every year."

The referendum ballot also includes a proposed 21-cent increase in the educational fund tax rate. The current rate is $1.40 per $100 assessed valuation of property. The increase would give the district $381,000 more a year for teachers' salaries and instructional materials.

Dist. 15 has not had an increase in the educational fund tax rate since 1958.

The third proposal on the ballot is an annual rent of $120,000 which will be levied if the district needs money and qualifies for a state loan to complete the three-phase building program.

THE RENT LEVY can provide a maximum loan of $2 million which would be paid back to the state at a rate of 6 per cent per year, or $120,000, for 16 and two-thirds years.

The building program includes $965,000 for a 24 to 26 classroom school in the Pepper Tree Farms subdivision; $2,015,000 for a 36 to 40 classroom junior high school on Smith Street in Palatine; and $300,000 to be added to the 1967 building program to complete a school in Rolling Meadows near Creekside or Winston Knolls.

Dist. 15 already owns the building sites for the proposed building.

Fire-Up Music

Fire-engine red decorations will cover the upstairs dance hall and one side of the downstairs area at the Slade Street Fire Station for the Volunteer Fire Department's benefit dance tomorrow at 8:30 p.m.

"The Deviations" and the "Twilighters" will provide music for the dance. "We will have continuous music all night," Pat Patske, dance chairman, says.

PALATINE'S 32 volunteer firemen have been selling tickets to the dance. Tickets are still available from any volunteer or Fire Chief Orville Helms. Cost is $1.50 per couple.

This year's dance is the first firemen's dance in eight years. Proceeds from the dance will supplement the volunteer fire department services.

Dance committee members are Elvis (Moose) Foster, Capt. Roy Whenty, Assistant Fire Chief Barney Langer, Harvey Helms, and Jim Ohlrick.

Four To Give Vietnam Views

Students at Palatine High School will have an opportunity to hear four speakers on "What Our Policy Should Be In Vietnam" at an after-school symposium today.

Ed Warman, Democratic candidate in the 13th Congressional District, will be one of the speakers at the student-sponsored discussion.

Palatine High School is the only Dist. 211 school which will have November Moratorium activities. Conant and Fremd high schools had programs during the October Moratorium, but have scheduled none for this month.

JERRY KYKISC, a Palatine High School graduate and decorated Vietnam war veteran, will represent a local group called the Citizens for True Representation in the hour-long symposium. Doug Cannon, former Con-Con candidate from Mount Prospect and member of Young Americans for Freedom, will also be on the program. Fourth speaker in the hour-long program will be a representative from the Chicago Moratorium Committee.

A late bus has been scheduled by the Dist. 211 transportation department to take students home after the symposium.

Students in Dist. 211 who are absent from school to participate in Moratorium Day activities outside school must have pre-arranged parent permission. The absence will be an unexcused absence.

Those who are absent from school without parent permission will be truant. A parent conference is necessary before the students can be readmitted to school.

Help Schools

Voters in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School Dist. 15 will have an opportunity to support the education program in their community tomorrow.

Three propositions are being presented to the voters for their approval. Passage of the three proposals will enable the district to continue its progressive curriculum and to begin a three-year building program providing classrooms to alleviate an expected overcrowding.

The district has not asked for a tax rate increase in the educational fund for 11 years. Last spring the board updated the teacher salary schedule in order to compete for qualified instructors. With rising costs of textbooks and materials, the board of education has also had to accept a deficit budget this year and will continue to operate "in the red" unless the tax rate increase is passed.

The two other propositions on the ballot tomorrow reflect an effort to plan in advance for the expected enrollment growth in Dist. 15 in the next three years. For the past five years, enrollment has increased by more than 600 students each fall.

Saying it differently, the district must open a new school each fall to keep up with the growth in enrollment.

Passage of the proposed $3.3 million building program for two elementary schools and a junior high school will keep the district abreast of this growth.

In case the district reaches its bonding limit, set by state law at 5 per cent of assessed property valuation, before the three-phase building program is completed, the voters are being asked for permission to levy for $120,000 a year for 16 and two-thirds years to repay an interest-free state loan.

Before the district can get a state loan to build schools and put the levy into effect it must be at its maximum bonding power, have "unhoused" students, and have an application accepted by the Illinois School Building Commission.

All three propositions are important in the long and short range plans to maintain and improve the educational program in Dist. 15. We urge voters to go to the polls tomorrow between noon and 7 p.m. and vote "Yes" on the three referendum proposals.

Speak Out

Students Speak

Instead of taking a random survey of opinions in Palatine Township on a current issue, reporter Marianne Bretsnyder participated in a youth forum this week where local teens talked about our country's problems as they see them.)

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

Wednesday evening, about 20 high school students in Rolling Meadows met in the city's library to discuss the things they are thinking about.

The library was made available to them through the Rolling Meadows Junior Women's Club, who sponsored the meeting for the students.

Conversation concerned their schools, the Vietnam war and the attitudes of their parents.

ONE OF THE STUDENTS asked if anyone knew enough about the war to know what is going on. One answer was that we are the strongest country and we're preserving allies.

Another student said we're so worried about freedom over there that we can't get it here.

The war brought other comments from the students, like "We're in Vietnam to fight the Communists. How many are in our country?"

"With our power we could tear Russia and China apart without nuclear bombs," one boy said.

A GIRL ASKED HIM who was going to do this, since the young people were being killed. A well received reply to her was, "The old people."

Another student asked if it was better to kill everyone all at once or drag it out. "They're killing us one by one," he said.

More people are killed in this country yearly than in the war, one student said. "We have the second highest death rate, because we have a 'free' country."

From here, the discussion went to voting and parents.

"My parents haven't voted in three terms," one student said. "They sit back and say only Schlickman, Crane, and Young are running. They have no right to run off at the mouth if they don't participate in elections."

SHE ADDED THAT TEENS in Rolling Meadows are following in their parents' footsteps, and the kids in the city won't get involved.

A boy added that "people cut down the youth of America, but they don't vote."

Citing a reason for why the voting age should be lowered, one girl said, "If you can die for your country, why can't you vote?"

Another student said they had to fight for a lowered voting age, and was told he had to go to his parents for help on it. But he said they have to fight for this themselves.

Then the girl asked, "Whose footsteps are we supposed to follow if we can't follow our parents'?"

"WHAT IT BOILS DOWN to," one boy said, "is kids should be able to do their thing. He was answered when kids do their thing, they abuse their privileges."

Complaints about school included smoking and dress codes. Some of the students said the student council isn't doing anything.

One boy said they wouldn't get anything by crying, and they had to fight for what they believe is right. He brought up the example of the boy in Barrington who took his case to court. The school was trying to get him to cut his hair.

"We've been doing it their way. We have to do it our way," another student said. "We have to stand up and fight."

THIS WAS ANSWERED by, "We can't fight, we're not old enough. We have to sit back and take it."

Students decided they wouldn't get anywhere by talking, and other minority groups in the school have gotten what they wanted by making some noise about it.

Representatives of the Rolling Meadows teen government asked the students to join their organization to try to accomplish some of the things the students want, and as a vehicle to get involved.

'Night of January' Set in Cutting Hall

The Palatine High School fall play, "The Night of January 16th," will be the first school program this year in Cutting Hall.

The hall is being repainted and new chairs installed for the 8 p.m. performance tonight and tomorrow.

"The Night of January 16th" is a play about a young girl accused of murdering her former employer. Jeff Graubart plays the district attorney, Rudy Walbel, the defense attorney, Jane Ritchie, Karen Andre; Marilyn Mischler, Nancy Lee Faulkner; and Jim Hartman, the judge.

LAWRENCE PETERSON, Palatine history teacher, is the play director.

Health, Welfare Discussed

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

DIST. 15 VOTERS will be able to vote at the polling place in their district tomorrow from noon to 7 p.m. Precinct 1 polling place is Kimball Hill School, 2905 Meadow Drive; Precinct 2, Jonas E. Salk School, 3705 Pheasant Dr.; Precinct 3, Gray M. Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak; Precinct 4, Stuart R. Paddock School, Washington Court; Precinct 5, Inverness Field House; and Precinct 6, Winston Park School, 900 E. Palatine.

Business in Education

Rolling Meadows businessmen learned yesterday what they can do for education and what education will do for them.

At a meeting of the industrial division of the Chamber of Commerce, Roderick McLennan, assistant superintendent of instruction for Dist. 214, gave a talk titled, "Are Business and Education Ready for Each Other?"

"I'm far more a part of your group than you think," McLennan told the businessmen.

He said he was "somewhat of a disillusionment" to his colleagues, because he wants to bring in outside people. Involving business in education is "not something 214 would applaud, but 100 per cent wouldn't reject it," he said.

McLENNAN SAID THE businessmen had shown a willingness to help, and "what you've done for 5 per cent is great, but the other 95 per cent need help too."

"Not that 95 per cent shouldn't go to college, but saying college or non-college puts poor labels on students," he said.

McLennan said 100 per cent of the students would benefit from spending some time with the business people.

He asked for their help, saying, "Education, as superb as it is, needs change, and won't change unless there is pressure from the outside."

Business has helped in the work-study programs, he said. People are coming to the board meetings, but are staying out of the area of curriculum, he said. "It's a huge mistake to stay out of this, we need your assistance," he said.

As an example of what business could do for education, McLennan said an excellent math student ought to relate to a business in the area and work with a research mathematician. "I hope you people will provide this," he said.

ON THE OTHER END of the scale, a student who shows no interest in learning should be permitted to go to another adult and learn there, he said.

With any course McLennan said, a good number of kids need to be out learning in a practical situation.

He said the businessmen have materials and products the schools can't afford, and a boy learning industrial work ought to go to them and learn on sophisticated machinery.

McLennan said the business people didn't have to pay the students, unless they wanted to. He also said if the students didn't drive, they might arrange

Ball Joints Used For Apollo Shot

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception. Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates. A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Libby-Owens-Ford wholly owns Aeroquip, of which Barco is a division.

Teen Talk Sessions At The Library

Rolling Meadows teens got together in the local library Wednesday night to talk about what was on their minds.

The Rolling Meadows Junior Women's Club sponsored the meeting, and invited all teens in the city to attend. Dec. 17 has been scheduled for the next meeting. It will be in the library at 7:30 p.m.

President of the club is Mrs. Walter Serget. Mrs. Gregory Langlotz is chairman of the committee arranging the meetings for the young people in Rolling Meadows.

ALSO AT THE meeting were officials from the Rolling Meadows teen government. The council meets the first Wednesday of each month in the Rolling Meadows city hall.

Their next meeting is Dec. 3 at 8 p.m. The teens are currently working on a project to raise funds for a plaque to commemorate Rolling Meadows men killed in Vietnam. Those who have outstanding recognition will also be named on the plaque.

Teen Mayor Wes Davidson told the young people at the library meeting to come to their meetings, and to "get anyone you can to come."

"We'll come to conclusions, and then follow it up. We want ideas to work with," he said.

Adult adviser to the teens is Jack Reif, from the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

Davidson said this is the teen's opportunity to get in with the teen government and do something.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like these were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $350 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

Ask Archives Records

CHICAGO—Attorney for the "Chicago Seven" said yesterday they will seek to obtain from the National Archives the records on which a government study team based its controversial report on street violence before and during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Defense attorney William Kunstler said he will subpoena Roy Cutler, executive director of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, in an effort to get the documents.

EVERYONE'S INVITED to the Second Annual Fireman's Dance tomorrow Mueller helped put up the sign in front night at Sacred Heart of Mary High of the Rolling Meadows Fire Station advertising the benefit dance.

Night Racing Hearing Set

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.

A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.

The major hassle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks, and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.

THE VOTE, WHICH includes ballots from horse owners and trainers, was 492 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.

About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry appeared at a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-month racing experiment.

ARLINGTON PARK'S application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 90-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970.

Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.

While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,268,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

Educational Fund Tax Vote Tomorrow

Palatine and Rolling Meadows voters in Dist. 15 will go to the polls tomorrow from noon to 7 p.m. to vote on a proposed 21-cent increase in the educational fund tax rate, a $3.3 million building program, and a $120,000 annual rent to be levied if the district reaches its bonding limit before the building program is completed.

Results of the Dist. 15 referendum will be available after 10 p.m. Saturday, on the Paddock Publications Public Service Telephone, 394-1700.

The referendum is the first one requested by the district in almost two years. The last referendum was a $16 million building program passed in December 1967.

"LONG-RANGE planning in education cannot go beyond three years and be effective," Lester Ehringer, Dist. 15 board member and chairman of the board's referendum steering committee, said.

"We are proposing a three-phase building program which will take about three years to complete. This way we don't have to keep coming back to the voters every year."

The referendum ballot also includes a proposed 21-cent increase in the educational fund tax rate. The current rate is $1.40 per $100 assessed valuation of property. The increase would give the district $381,000 more a year for teachers' salaries and instructional materials.

Dist. 15 has not had an increase in the educational fund tax rate since 1958.

The third proposal on the ballot is an annual rent of $120,000 which will be levied if the district needs money and qualifies for a state loan to complete the three-phase building program.

THE RENT LEVY can provide a maximum loan of $2 million which would be paid back to the state at a rate of 6 per cent per year, or $120,000, for 16 and two-thirds years.

The building program includes $985,000 for a 24 to 26 classroom school in the Pepper Tree Farms subdivision; $2,015,000 for a 36 to 40 classroom junior high school on Smith Street in Palatine; and $300,000 to be added to the 1967 building program to complete a school in Rolling Meadows near Creekside or Winston Knolls.

Dist. 15 already owns the building sites for the proposed building.

Fire-Up Music

The second annual Fireman's Dance in Rolling Meadows is scheduled for Saturday, at 8:30 p.m. at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, 2800 Central Road.

Members of the Rolling Meadows Firemen's Association are selling tickets to the benefit dance for the fire department. Tickets are $5 per couple.

MUSIC WILL BE provided by the Music-makers, a 16-piece dance band. Throughout the evening door prizes will be given away.

Snacks and drinks will be served by the firemen.

Profits from the dance will be used to purchase fire equipment.

Fireman's Dance committee members are Ed Kotliar, Al Weber, Don Marshall and Jack Fahn.

Four To Give Vietnam Views

Students at Palatine High School will have an opportunity to hear four speakers on "What Our Policy Should Be In Vietnam" at an after-school symposium today.

Ed Warman, Democratic candidate in the 13th Congressional District, will be one of the speakers at the student-sponsored discussion.

Palatine High School is the only Dist. 211 school which will have November Moratorium activities. Conant and Fremd high schools had programs during the October Moratorium, but have scheduled none for this month.

JERRY KYKISC, a Palatine High School graduate and decorated Vietnam war veteran, will represent a local group called the Citizens for True Representation in the hour-long symposium. Doug Cannon, former Con-Con candidate from Mount Prospect and member of Young Americans for Freedom, will also be on the program. Fourth speaker in the hour-long program will be a representative from the Chicago Moratorium Committee.

A late bus has been scheduled by the Dist. 211 transportation department to take students home after the symposium.

Students in Dist. 211 who are absent from school to participate in Moratorium Day activities outside school must have pre-arranged parent permission. The absence will be an unexcused absence.

Those who are absent from school without parent permission will be truant. A parent conference is necessary before the students can be readmitted to school.

Herald Editorial

Help Schools

Voters in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School Dist. 15 will have an opportunity to support the education program in their community tomorrow.

Three propositions are being presented to the voters for their approval. Passage of the three proposals will enable the district to continue its progressive curriculum and to begin a three-year building program providing classrooms to alleviate an expected overcrowding.

The district has not asked for a tax rate increase in the educational fund for 11 years. Last spring the board updated the teacher salary schedule in order to compete for qualified instructors. With rising costs of textbooks and materials, the board of education has also had to accept a deficit budget this year and will continue to operate "in the red" unless the tax rate increase is passed.

The two other propositions on the ballot tomorrow reflect an effort to plan in advance for the expected enrollment growth in Dist. 15 in the next three years. For the past five years, enrollment has increased by more than 600 students each fall.

Saying it differently, the district must open a new school each fall to keep up with the growth in enrollment.

Passage of the proposed $3.3 million building program for two elementary schools and a junior high school will keep the district abreast of this growth.

In case the district reaches its bonding limit, set by state law at 5 per cent of assessed property valuation, before the three-phase building program is completed, the voters are being asked for permission to levy for $120,000 a year for 16 and two-thirds years to repay an interest-free state loan.

Before the district can get a state loan to build schools and put the levy into effect it must be at its maximum bonding power, have "unhoused" students, and have an application accepted by the Illinois School Building Commission.

All three propositions are important in the long and short range plans to maintain and improve the educational program in Dist. 15. We urge voters to go to the polls tomorrow between noon and 7 p.m. and vote "Yes" on the three referendum proposals.

ADLAI STEVENSON III

Stevenson Forsees Democratic Inroads

Prominent Democrats said last night that 1970 will be the year for Democratic inroads into the suburbs at a rally honoring congressional candidate Edward Warman.

Before an audience of about 100 persons, Adlai Stevenson III, candidate for U.S. Senate and Edward Hanrahan, Cook County state's attorney, called on Democrats and Republicans to send Warman to Congress. The rally was held at the VFW hall in Arlington Heights.

Stevenson said that the job in Congress calls for a man "who understands that peace is the one condition of human survival." Stevenson identified Warman as a candidate "with no fixed ideology, a man who represents the people and who can do a job in Congress that can't be done by the extremists of the right and left."

STEVENSON'S COMMENTS were brief, but they touched off a standing ovation for the Senatorial candidate when he said, "Send Eddie Warman to Congress, where I am going to join him."

Hanrahan strongly endorsed Warman and then attacked Republican candidate Philip Crane's absentee ballot procedure during the primary race.

During the primary campaign, some absentee ballots for Crane were sent to Lake County homes in multiple quantities to facilitate the absentee ballot procedure for Crane's candidacy, which is legal under state law.

Speak Out

Students Speak

Instead of taking a random survey of opinions in Palatine Township on a current issue, reporter Marianne Bretsnyder participated in a youth forum this week where local teens talked about our country's problems as they see them.)

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

Wednesday evening, about 20 high school students in Rolling Meadows met in the city's library to discuss the things they are thinking about.

The library was made available to them through the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club, who sponsored the meeting for the students.

Conversation concerned their schools, the Vietnam war and the attitudes of their parents.

ONE OF THE STUDENTS asked if anyone knew enough about the war to know what is going on. One answer was that we are the strongest country and we're preserving allies.

Another student said we're so worried about freedom over there that we can't get it here.

The war brought other comments from the students, like "We're in Vietnam to fight the Communists. How many are in our country?"

"With our power we could tear Russia and China apart without nuclear bombs," one boy said.

A GIRL ASKED HIM who was going to do this, since the young people were being killed. A well received reply to her was, "The old people."

Another student asked if it was better to kill everyone all at once or drag it out.

"They're killing us one by one," he said.

More people are killed in this country yearly than in the war, one student said.

"We have the second highest death rate, because we have a 'free' country."

From here, the discussion went to voting and parents.

"My parents haven't voted in three terms," one student said "They sit back and say only Schlickman, Crane, and Young are running. They have no right to run off at the mouth if they don't participate in elections."

SHE ADDED THAT TEENS in Rolling Meadows are following in their parents' footsteps, and the kids in the city won't get involved.

A boy added that "people cut down the youth of America, but they don't vote."

Citing a reason for why the voting age should be lowered, one girl said, "If you can die for your country, why can't you vote?"

Another student said they had to fight for a lowered voting age, and was told he had to go to his parents for help on it. But he said they have to fight for this themselves.

Then the girl asked, "Whose footsteps are we supposed to follow if we can't follow our parents?"

"WHAT IT BOILS DOWN to," one boy said, "is kids should be able to do their thing." He was answered when kids do their thing, they abuse their privileges.

Complaints about school included smoking and dress codes. Some of the students said the student council isn't doing anything.

One boy said they wouldn't get anything by crying, and they had to fight for what they believe is right. He brought up the example of the boy in Barrington who took his case to court. The school was trying to get him to cut his hair.

"We've been doing it their way. We have to do it our way," another student said. "We have to stand up and fight."

THIS WAS ANSWERED by, "We can't fight, we're not old enough. We have to sit back and take it."

Students decided they wouldn't get anywhere by talking, and other minority groups in the school have gotten what they wanted by making some noise about it.

Representatives of the Rolling Meadows teen government asked the students to join their organization to try to accomplish some of the things the students want, and as a vehicle to get involved.

'Night of January' Set in Cutting Hall

The Palatine High School fall play, "The Night of January 16th," will be the first school program this year in Cutting Hall.

The hall is being repainted and new chairs installed for the 8 p.m. performance tonight and tomorrow.

"The Night of January 16th" is a play about a young girl accused of murdering her former employer. Jeff Graubart plays the district attorney, Rudy Waibel, the defense attorney; Jane Ritchie, Karen Andrie; Marilyn Mischler, Nancy Lee Paulkner; and Jim Hartman, the judge.

LAWRENCE PETERSON, Palatine history teacher, is the play director.

Health, Welfare Discussed

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensive and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

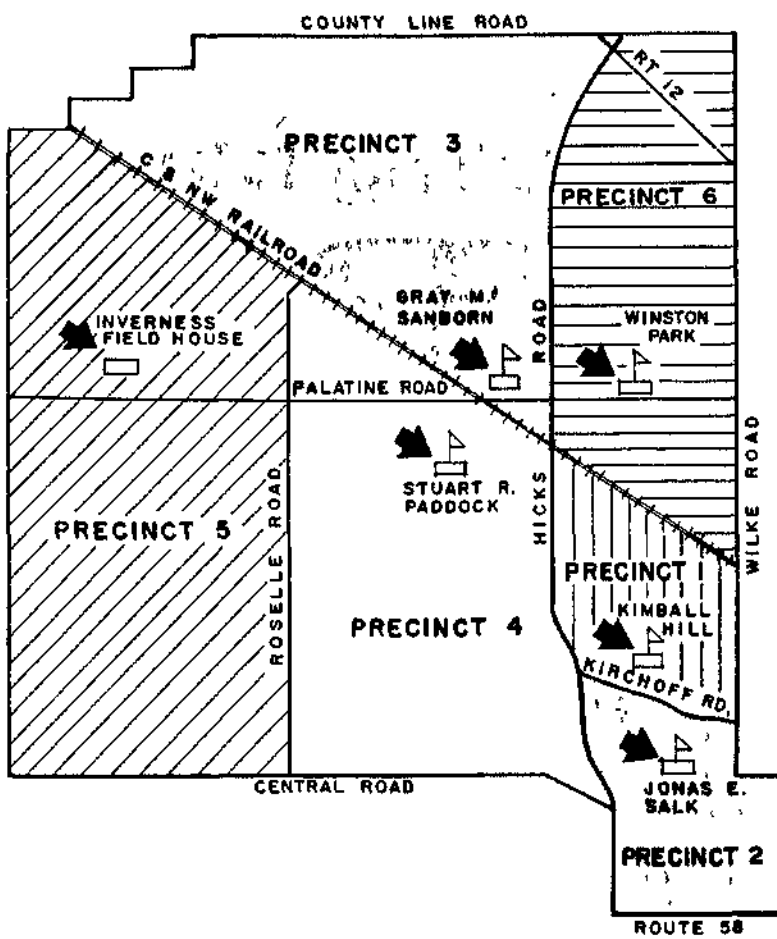

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

DIST. 15 VOTERS will be able to vote at the polling place in their district tomorrow from noon to 7 p.m. Precinct 1 polling place is Kimball Hill School, 2905 Meadow Drive; Precinct 2, Jonas E. Salk School, 3705 Pheasant Dr.; Precinct 3, Gray M. Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak; Precinct 4, Stuart R. Paddock School, Washington Court; Precinct 5, Inverness Field House; and Precinct 6, Winston Park School, 900 E. Palatine.

Business in Education

Rolling Meadows businessmen learned yesterday what they can do for education and what education will do for them.

At a meeting of the industrial division of the Chamber of Commerce, Roderick McLennan, assistant superintendent of instruction for Dist. 214, gave a talk titled, "Are Business and Education Ready for Each Other?"

"I'm far more a part of your group than you think," McLennan told the businessmen.

He said he was "somewhat of a disillusionment" to his colleagues, because he wants to bring in outside people. Involving business in education is "not something 214 would applaud, but 100 per cent wouldn't reject it," he said.

McLENNAN SAID THE businessmen had shown a willingness to help, and "what you've done for 5 per cent is great, but the other 95 per cent need help too."

"Not that 95 per cent shouldn't go to college, but saying college or non-college puts poor labels on students," he said.

McLennan said 100 per cent of the students would benefit from spending some time with the business people.

He asked for their help, saying, "Education, as superb as it is, needs change, and won't change unless there is pressure from the outside."

Business has helped in the work-study programs, he said. People are coming to the board meetings, but are staying out of the area of curriculum, he said "It's a huge mistake to stay out of this, we need your assistance," he said.

As an example of what business could do for education, McLennan said an excellent math student ought to relate to a business in the area and work with a research mathematician. "I hope you people will provide this," he said.

ON THE OTHER END of the scale, a student who shows no interest in learning should be permitted to go to another adult and learn there, he said.

With any course McLennan said, a good number of kids need to be out learning in a practical situation.

He said the businessmen have materials and products the schools can't afford, and a boy learning industrial work ought to go to them and learn on sophisticated machinery.

McLennan said the business people didn't have to pay the students, unless they wanted to. He also said if the students didn't drive, they might arrange

Ball Joints Used For Apollo Shot

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception. Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates. A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Teen Talk Sessions At The Library

Rolling Meadows teens got together in the local library Wednesday night to talk about what was on their minds.

The Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club sponsored the meeting, and invited all teens in the city to attend. Dec. 17 has been scheduled for the next meeting. It will be in the library at 7:30 p.m.

President of the club is Mrs. Walter Serget. Mrs. Gregory Langlotz is chairman of the committee arranging the meetings for the young people in Rolling Meadows.

ALSO AT THE meeting were officials from the Rolling Meadows teen government. The council meets the first Wednesday of each month in the Rolling Meadows city hall.

Their next meeting is Dec. 3 at 8 p.m. The teens are currently working on a project to raise funds for a plaque to commemorate Rolling Meadows men killed in Vietnam. Those who have outstanding recognition will also be named on the plaque.

Teen Mayor Wes Davidson told the young people at the library meeting to come to their meetings, and to "get anyone you can to come."

"We'll come to conclusions, and then follow it up. We want ideas to work with," he said.

Adult adviser to the teens is Jack Reif, from the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

Davidson said this is the teen's opportunity to get in with the teen government and do something.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like these were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopal clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $359 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

WRECKING CREWS demolish one of Mount Prospect's oldest landmarks, the first service station, at the corner of Main Street and Central Road to pave the way for progress. Norbert

M-Days Quiet Here

by TOM WELLMAN

It was business as usual yesterday in High School Dist. 214's six high schools.

With the exception of a few armbands and an after-school discussion at Arlington High School, the first of two Vietnam Moratorium days were quiet, orderly and uneventful.

At Hershey High School in Arlington Heights, a group calling itself Students Supporting the President's Policies (SSPP) handed out American Flag buttons before school. At the same time another group handed out Moratorium buttons.

AT ELK GROVE High School it was a normal day, according to a school spokesman. A handful of students wore the increasingly familiar Moratorium armbands.

Arlington High School students scheduled a discussion after school. Ronald Kaufman, a teacher at Arlington, was to address students, and the students would then state their own positions on the war.

District officials said it would be difficult to determine how many students would miss classes today, when an afternoon student rally against the war will be held in the Grant Park bandshell in downtown Chicago.

IN A RELATED action, an Arlington Heights resident notified Dist. 214 board president Arthur Aronson that a legal attempt to block Moratorium-related activities was being dropped.

J. O. Roeser of Arlington Heights is chairman of a group that announced last month it would seek an injunction to block Moratorium activities in the high schools. The letter stated that Roeser's group concurred with the board's decision last Monday to limit Moratorium activities in the schools. It praised board members for discussing the issue at length.

At Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine, no unusual activities were reported. A spokesman said that one student would be traveling to Washington, D.C., this weekend to participate in war protests there.

from horse owners and trainers, was 492 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.

About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry appeared at

Stevenson Forsees Democratic Inroad

Prominent Democrats said last night that 1970 will be the year for Democratic inroads into the suburbs at a rally honoring congressional candidate Edward Warman.

Before an audience of about 100 persons, Adlai Stevenson III, candidate for U.S. Senate and Edward Hanrahan, Cook County state's attorney, called on Democrats and Republicans to send Warman to Congress. The rally was held at the VFW hall in Arlington Heights.

Stevenson said that the job in Congress calls for a man "who understands that peace is the one condition of human survival." Stevenson identified Warman as a candidate "with no fixed ideology, a man who represents the people and who can do a job in Congress that can't be

STEVENSON'S COMMENTS were brief, but they touched off a standing ovation for the Senatorial candidate when he said, "Send Eddie Warman to Congress, where I am going to join him."

Hanrahan strongly endorsed Warman and then attacked Republican candidate Philip Crane's absentee ballot procedure during the primary race.

During the primary campaign, some absentee ballots for Crane were sent to Lake County homes in multiple quantities to facilitate the absentee ballot procedure for Crane's candidacy, which is legal under state law.

Ed Warman, the Democrat's choice to oppose conservative Philip Crane, told his audience last night that substantial numbers of Republican voters will stay away from the polls rather than vote for the Republican candidate.

Warman said 30 to 40 per cent of the Republicans will not vote Nov. 25 out of a strong refusal to back the conservative.

Warman then got right to the point of his candidacy by calling for faster troop withdrawals from South Vietnam. "We have been in that country for 15 years," he said. "It shouldn't take 15 years to train the South Vietnamese army to fight for their country. It is up to them now."

Capitol Building OK'd by Committee

The Mount Prospect Judiciary Committee, after a lengthy discussion with a handful of residents, granted a variation request for the Capitol Century Supply Co. for a new building at Louis Street and Rand Road.

About 10 residents were on hand to voice opposition to the zoning variation, claiming it would deteriorate the neighborhood and reduce property values.

The residents also questioned whether the business should be classified as a warehouse instead of a retail store.

AN OPINION concerning the variation was requested of Village Atty. John Zimmermann. However, it was considered confidential material and the contents were not revealed at the meeting.

In granting approval, the recommending body overruled another recommending body, the plan commission, which had earlier in the week denied approval.

Reasons for the action by the plan commission were that the building would increase traffic on a residential street, would involve wholesaling and warehousing activities, would penetrate with surrounding buildings too closely, and would not conform with the predominantly single-family residential area.

THE COMMITTEE ALSO concurred with the recommendation by the plan commission in the case involving the Butch McGuire Restaurant on 300 East Rand Road.

The case was referred until residents within 250 feet of the establishment receive adequate advance notice as to when the case will be heard.

Report Vandalisms

Mount Prospect police received two reports of vandalism in the area which occurred sometime Wednesday night.

Joe Tucker, 1410 Fern Drive reported someone threw cinder blocks through his garage window causing paint and windshield damage to his car parked inside.

Gordon Behrendt Jr., attendant at the Northwestern Railroad train station, told police that sometime between midnight and 6 a.m. Thursday, unknown vandals broke a light fixture and destroyed switch locks hung on a wall near a small door of the building.

Stolen Credit Card User Being Hunted

Mount Prospect police are searching for a young man who allegedly used a credit card stolen last week from Lawrence Levine, East Olive Street, Arlington Heights.

Barwig Marion, proprietor of the Texaco service station at Dempster and Algonquin Roads, told police that early this week a slender young man, about 5'-10" and with blond hair, used the card bearing Levine's name on two occasions.

Barwig told police that the man first drove a car in for a grease job and then returned with another automobile the following day and requested a tune-up.

THE ATTENDANT reported that on both occasions the cars bore no license plates and the total amount charged was $40, police said.

He became suspicious when the man failed to show a driver's license and he later discovered the card had been canceled.

Lindstrom: Families Notified

Families of the 97 Americans reported by the Rev. Paul Lindstrom to be held captive in North Korea and North Vietnam are being contacted by the U.S. Defense Department, Lindstrom claimed yesterday.

Lindstrom is the head of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee. The purpose of that group, according to Lindstrom, is to gain the release of all U.S. citizens now held in foreign countries.

Late Wednesday afternoon, Lindstrom, pastor of the Prospect Heights Christian Liberty Church, delivered the list of names of prisoners to Maj. Lawrence Markham, deputy chief of staff of the Fifth Army Headquarters, at Ft. Sheridan.

Lindstrom said a woman living in Illinois called him Wednesday night, several hours after he delivered the list of names to Ft. Sheridan. She said she had been contacted by the Defense Department and told a relative was on the list.

On learning of the woman's call to Lindstrom, an Army spokesman at Ft. Sheridan said that he had no information on calls made by the Defense Department. He said the original plan was to thoroughly check the names to determine whether they matched service records and if they had already been released.

According to the plan, the Defense Department would transmit the information to the next of kin, if they found it to be accurate, said the Army spokesman.

Lindstrom reported he secured the list in Canada this week, after working for three months to develop an underground line of communication into several parts of the world. He said he found the list in an airline flight bag in a pew at the St. Joseph Oratory church, on the outskirts of Montreal.

The list of names came from informants in North Korea and North Vietnam, via underground contacts Lindstrom set up in July. "These informants have acted out of religious conviction, rather than monetary gain."

Concerning the outcome of publicizing the list, Lindstrom said he didn't think there would be any punitive action against the prisoners if only the relatives were contacted. He added a public revelation of all of the names might jeopardize the pris-

Night Race Hearing To Be Wednesday

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.

A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.

The major hassle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.

THE VOTE, WHICH includes ballots

a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-night racing experiment.

ARLINGTON PARK'S application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 30-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970.

Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.

While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1967, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,283,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Barrington. Ball joints like these were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

Ball Joints Used For Apollo Shot

by STEVE NOVICK

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception.

Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Barrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates. A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Libby-Owens-Ford wholly owns Aeroquip, of which Barco is a division.

oners.

"I don't think exposure of the list will affect our underground lines of communication either," said Lindstrom. "The system is too intricate and involved."

One of the main reasons Lindstrom is acting, he says, is because he believes the U. S. government is not taking enough initiative to release prisoners of war. "I don't want the problems of the prisoners in North Vietnam and North Korea to deteriorate as they did when the USS Pueblo crew was held captive."

What our committee is asking, and what the woman who called me asked, is, "What will happen to the prisoners of war if we pull out and South Vietnam takes over? Are they to be left to rot as many were after the Korean war?"

In Princess Court

Barbara Joynt, Mount Prospect, was runnerup to the princess of the recent homecoming ball at Augustana College, Rock Island. She was one of six candidates.

A sophomore, Miss Joynt is a daughter of John J. Joynt, 1418 Small Lane, Mount Prospect. She is a member of Chi Omega Gamma sorority.

Dist. 57 Sets Nov. 19 Vote

A committee to nominate candidates for election to the School Dist. 57 board of education will be elected by the general caucus of Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 at a meeting to be held Nov. 19 at 8 p.m. at Busse School, 101 N. Owen Street, Mount Prospect.

The caucus will elect an 11-member nominating committee and three alternate members to interview and select candidates to fill three vacancies on the board of education in the April election. The terms of Harrison Hanson, chairman of the board; Ralph Walberg and Charles Houchins will expire in April, 1970.

None of the three school board members whose term expires in April has indicated at this time if he plans to run for reelection.

MEMBER OF THE general caucus will elect one or two candidates for each board vacancy from the selection of candidates presented to them by the nominating committee.

The general caucus will not meet again until February, when it will review the candidate recommendations from the nominating committee.

All caucus meetings are open to the public. Refreshments will be served following the program Nov. 19.

Seek Red Car in Murder Case

by BARRY SIGALE

Arlington Heights police said yesterday that a delivery truck driver saw a red auto parked next to a gasoline pump at the exact time the attendant, Fred Tailion, 70, was robbed and brutally murdered.

Lt. George Ekblad, chief detective, said the unidentified driver passed by the Arlington Park Shell service station at about 3:15 a.m., the same time Tailion was repeatedly stabbed by an unknown assailant.

Wednesday, Ekblad theorized that the killer may have not acted alone. He said another person probably drove his car around the area and picked up the attacker after he left Tailion lying in front of a nearby house, where he sought help.

THE TRUCK DRIVER TOLD police he drove by the intersection of Euclid and Walke roads and turned around about two blocks away and headed back to the station. When he got to the station, Ekblad said, the red car was gone.

Police spent most of the day yesterday checking into the past records and background of about 30 persons formerly employed at the station.

"We spent all day backtracking and investigating what we have," said Ekblad. "We checked out the backgrounds of almost all the former employees and we contacted 15 of them personally. But we haven't come up with anything yet."

In addition, Muncie police told Ekblad they were looking for a man who is wanted in connection with a bank robbery in their town in which the robber wielded a knife and threatened bank employees. So far, the two incidents have not been connected.

MRS. MARJE EVERETT, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, operator of Arlington Park and owners of the gas station where Tailion was murdered, yesterday offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest or conviction of the person or persons involved in the murder.

Also, police said, they expect other individuals and companies to offer a money reward in a further attempt to find Tailion's assailant.

Police said a squad car visited Tailion at the station about 10 minutes before the murder occurred. They said policemen sometimes visit the station five times a night during the midnight shift and that a squad car would have probably visited the station at about 3:30 a.m.

Ekblad said the station was the only one in Arlington Heights open 24 hours a day and that fairly heavy business probably would be handled between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. He said it isn't too busy after that and that is one of the reasons police occasionally visit the station.

AN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS resident told the Herald yesterday that he could possibly have been Tailion's last customer before the service station attendant was fatally stabbed early Tuesday morning.

"I talked with Mr. Tailion about 2 a.m. when I stopped at the station to return a gasoline can which I had borrowed earlier," the man said. "I ran out of gas just a few blocks from the station, and he filled the can with gas for me and asked that I please return it, since it was the only empty container he had."

"He was very nice to me, and when I returned the can, we talked for a few minutes. I asked him if it wasn't a little spooky working at the station all alone at night. He said no, but that it was a little lonely during the wee hours of the morning."

"Then I left to go home. There weren't any other customers in the station and I didn't notice any other people in the area when I left," he said.

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugene Schickman, R-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

Items Taken from Car

John Cassidy, 800 S. Waverly, told Mount Prospect police Wednesday that automotive accessories valued at $250 were taken from his automobile while it was parked at his residence.

The equipment reported missing includes an 8-track stereo tape deck, nine tape cartridges and a citizen's band radio unit. The tape deck and radio were ripped from their mountings and entry into the car was apparently made by prying the door lock open with a wire, police said.

War Protest Begins

WASHINGTON—Thousands of demonstrators converged on a security-tight Capitol yesterday for a three-day mass protest against U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Even before it officially began, about 150 protesters were arrested at the Pentagon. Among those arrested at an antiwar religious ceremony on a charge of "obstructing corridors," were about 40 Roman Catholic or Episcopalian clergymen.

Nixon Goes to Hill

WASHINGTON—Five hours in advance of a "march against death" from Arlington National Cemetery to the Capitol yesterday, President Nixon paid a surprise visit to Capitol Hill and thanked supporters in both houses of Congress for backing his Vietnam policy.

"I believe we will achieve a just peace in Vietnam. I cannot tell you the time or date," Nixon told the House.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $350 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

WRECKING CREWS demolish one of Mount Prospect's oldest landmarks, the first service station, at the corner of Main Street and Central Road to pave the way for progress. Norbert Huecker, whose father built the town's first filling station more than 50 years ago, is building a new station to replace the old one.

M-Days Quiet Here

by TOM WELLMAN

It was business as usual yesterday in High School Dist. 214's six high schools.

With the exception of a few armbands and an after-school discussion at Arlington High School, the first of two Vietnam Moratorium days were quiet, orderly and uneventful.

At Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, a group calling itself Students Supporting the President's Policies (SSPP) handed out American Flag buttons before school. At the same time another group handed out Moratorium buttons.

AT ELK GROVE High School it was a normal day, according to a school spokesman. A handful of students wore the increasingly familiar Moratorium arm-bands.

Arlington High School students scheduled a discussion after school. Ronald Kaufman, a teacher at Arlington, was to address students, and the students would then state their own positions on the war.

District officials said it would be difficult to determine how many students would miss classes today, when an afternoon student rally against the war will be held in the Grant Park bandshell in downtown Chicago.

IN A RELATED action, an Arlington Heights resident notified Dist. 214 board president Arthur Aronson that a legal attempt to block Moratorium-related activities was being dropped.

J. O. Roeser of Arlington Heights is chairman of a group that announced last month it would seek an injunction to block Moratorium activities in the high schools.

The letter stated that Roeser's group concurred with the board's decision last Monday to limit Moratorium activities in the schools. It praised board members for discussing the issue at length.

At Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine, no unusual activities were reported. A spokesman said that one student would be traveling to Washington, D.C., this weekend to participate in war protests there.

Stevenson Forsees Democratic Inroad

Prominent Democrats said last night that 1970 will be the year for Democratic inroads into the suburbs at a rally honoring congressional candidate Edward Warman.

Before an audience of about 100 persons, Adlai Stevenson III, candidate for U.S. Senate and Edward Hanrahan, Cook County state's attorney, called on Democrats and Republicans to send Warman to Congress. The rally was held at the VFW hall in Arlington Heights.

Stevenson said that the job in Congress calls for a man "who understands that peace is the one condition of human survival." Stevenson identified Warman as a candidate "with no fixed ideology, a man who represents the people and who can do a job in Congress that can't be

STEVENSON'S COMMENTS were brief, but they touched off a standing ovation for the Senatorial candidate when he said, "Send Eddie Warman to Congress, where I am going to join him."

Hanrahan strongly endorsed Warman and then attacked Republican candidate Philip Crane's absentee ballot procedure during the primary race.

During the primary campaign, some absentee ballots for Crane were sent to Lake County homes in multiple quantities to facilitate the absentee ballot procedure for Crane's candidacy, which is legal under state law.

Ed Warman, the Democrat's choice to oppose conservative Philip Crane, told his audience last night that substantial numbers of Republican voters will stay away from the polls rather than vote for the Republican candidate.

Warman said 30 to 40 per cent of the Republicans will not vote Nov. 25 out of a strong refusal to back the conservative.

Warman then got right to the point of his candidacy by calling for faster troop withdrawals from South Vietnam. "We have been in that country for 15 years," he said. "It shouldn't take 15 years to train the South Vietnamese army to fight for their country. It is up to them now."

Capitol Building OK'd by Committee

The Mount Prospect Judiciary Committee, after a lengthy discussion with a handful of residents, granted a variation request for the Capitol Century Supply Co. for a new building at Louis Street and Rand Road.

About 10 residents were on hand to voice opposition to the zoning variation, claiming it would deteriorate the neighborhood and reduce property values.

The residents also questioned whether the business should be classified as a warehouse instead of a retail store.

AN OPINION concerning the variation was requested of Village Atty. John Zimmermann. However, it was considered confidential material and the contents were not revealed at the meeting.

In granting approval, the recommending body overruled another recommending body, the plan commission, which had earlier in the week denied approval.

Reasons for the action by the plan commission were that the building would increase traffic on a residential street, would involve wholesaling and warehousing activities, would penetrate with surrounding buildings too closely, and would not conform with the predominantly single-family residential area.

THE COMMITTEE ALSO concurred with the recommendation by the plan commission in the case involving the Butch McGuire Restaurant on 300 East Rand Road.

The case was referred until residents within 250 feet of the establishment receive adequate advance notice as to when the case will be heard.

Report Vandalisms

Mount Prospect police received two reports of vandalism in the area which occurred sometime Wednesday night.

Joe Tucker, 1410 Fern Drive reported someone threw cinder blocks through his garage window causing paint and windshield damage to his car parked inside.

Gordon Behrendt Jr., attendant at the Northwestern Railroad train station, told police that sometime between midnight and 6 a.m. Thursday, unknown vandals broke a light fixture and destroyed switch locks hung on a wall near a small door of the building.

Lindstrom: Families Notified

Families of the 97 Americans reported by the Rev. Paul Lindstrom to be held captive in North Korea and North Vietnam are being contacted by the U.S. Defense Department Lindstrom claimed yesterday. Lindstrom is the head of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee. The purpose of that group, according to Lindstrom, is to gain the release of all U.S. citizens now held in foreign countries.

Late Wednesday afternoon, Lindstrom, pastor of the Prospect Heights Christian Liberty Church, delivered the list of names of prisoners to Maj. Lawrence Markham, deputy chief of staff of the Fifth Army Headquarters, at Ft. Sheridan.

Lindstrom said a woman living in Illinois called him Wednesday night, several hours after he delivered the list of names to Ft. Sheridan. She said she had been contacted by the Defense Department and told a relative was on the list.

On learning of the woman's call to Lindstrom, an Army spokesman at Ft. Sheridan said that he had no information on calls made by the Defense Department. He said the original plan was to thoroughly check the names to determine whether they matched service records and if they had already been released.

According to the plan, the Defense Department would transmit the information to the next of kin, if they found it to be accurate, said the Army spokesman.

Lindstrom reported he secured the list in Canada this week, after working for three months to develop an underground line of communication into several parts of the world. He said he found the list in an airline flight bag in a pew at the St. Joseph Oratory church, on the outskirts of Montreal.

The list of names came from informants in North Korea and North Vietnam, via underground contacts Lindstrom set up in July. "These informants have acted out of religious conviction, rather than monetary gain."

Concerning the outcome of publicizing the list, Lindstrom said he didn't think there would be any punitive action against the prisoners if only the relatives were contacted. He added a public revelation of all of the names might jeopardize the pris-

Night Race Hearing To Be Wednesday

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.

A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.

The major hurdle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.

THE VOTE, WHICH includes ballots

from horse owners and trainers, was 492 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.

About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry appeared at a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-night racing experiment.

ARLINGTON PARK'S application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 30-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970.

Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.

While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1969's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,288,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

MOONSHOT NEEDS are provided by products manufactured in Berrington. Ball joints like these were delivered four years ago for use in the Apollo program. In today's moonshot, as before, water will be supplied to the launch tower, thanks to the flexibility the ball joints allow in pipelines. Barco a division of Aeroquip Corp., designed and manufactured the ball joints used.

Ball Joints Used For Apollo Shot

by STEVE NOVICK

Thousands of persons around the country played some role in today's Apollo 12 moonshot and residents of the Northwest suburbs are no exception.

Barco, a division of Aeroquip Corp. in Berrington, is responsible for supplying expandable ball joints used on Pad 39 from which all Apollo shots have been launched.

"We employ persons from within a 15-mile radius of the plant," said personnel director Vic Lehman of Hoffman Estates. A large part of the company's 325 employees took part in manufacturing the ball joints, he added.

"During launch operations we have supplied two sets of ball joint dog legs," said Ed Krause, marketing manager. He said the ball joints are designed to take up expansion and contraction in two water lines on Pad 39.

The lines run between the pad and the LUT (launch umbilical tower). One line supplies domestic water used on the tower; the other is for fire hose water.

The ball joints are a modification of Barco's standard product used to provide flexible connections between pipes in heating and cooling systems.

The joints had to be nickel plated and special couplings and lifting jacks had to be installed, Krause said.

The ball joints were delivered to the launch pad in June, 1965.

Barco's role in the Apollo program began in 1962 when bid specifications were put out for the solution to a problem of pipe expansion.

"The problem was easy to solve with ball joints. Ball joints were the only answer," Krause said. "They are frequently the only answer so there was no real problem at all."

There were no abnormal problems faced in designing the fittings, he added.

Barco ball joints are for standard use on chill water, hot water, steam and chemical lines where there is thermo expansion.

Libby-Owens-Ford wholly owns Aeroquip, of which Barco is a division.

oners
"I don't think exposure of the list will affect our underground lines of communication either," said Lindstrom. "The system is too intricate and involved."

One of the main reasons Lindstrom is acting, he says, is because he believes the U. S. government is not taking enough initiative to release prisoners of war. "I don't want the problems of the prisoners in North Vietnam and North Korea to deteriorate as they did when the USS Pueblo crew was held captive."

What our committee is asking, and what the woman who called me asked, is, "What will happen to the prisoners of war if we pull out and South Vietnam takes over? Are they to be left to rot as many were after the Korean war?"

In Princess Court

Barbara Joynt, Mount Prospect, was runnerup to the princess of the recent homecoming ball at Augustana College, Rock Island. She was one of six candidates.

A sophomore, Miss Joynt is a daughter of John J. Joynt, 1418 Small Lane, Mount Prospect. She is a member of Chi Omega Gamma sorority.

Dist. 57 Sets Nov. 19 Vote

A committee to nominate candidates for election to the School Dist. 57 board of education will be elected by the general caucus of Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 at a meeting to be held Nov. 19 at 8 p.m. at Busse School, 101 N. Owen Street, Mount Prospect.

The caucus will elect an 11-member nominating committee and three alternate members to interview and select candidates to fill three vacancies on the board of education in the April election. The terms of Harrison Hanson, chairman of the board; Ralph Walberg and Charles Houchins will expire in April, 1970.

None of the three school board members whose term expires in April has indicated at this time if he plans to run for reelection.

MEMBER OF THE general caucus will elect one or two candidates for each board vacancy from the selection of candidates presented to them by the nominating committee.

The general caucus will not meet again until February, when it will review the candidate recommendations from the nominating committee.

All caucus meetings are open to the public. Refreshments will be served following the program Nov. 19.

Seek Red Car in Murder Case

by BARRY SIGALE

Arlington Heights police said yesterday that a delivery truck driver saw a red auto parked next to a gasoline pump at the exact time the attendant, Fred Tallon, 70, was robbed and brutally murdered.

Lt. George Ekblad, chief detective, said the unidentified driver passed by the Arlington Park Shell service station at about 3:15 a.m., the same time Tallon was repeatedly stabbed by an unknown assailant.

Wednesday, Ekblad theorized that the killer may have not acted alone. He said another person probably drove his car around the area and picked up the attacker after he left Tallon lying in front of a nearby house, where he sought help.

THE TRUCK DRIVER TOLD police he drove by the intersection of Euclid and Wilke roads and turned around about two blocks away and headed back to the station. When he got to the station, Ekblad said, the red car was gone.

Police spent most of the day yesterday checking into the past records and background of about 30 persons formerly employed at the station.

"We spent all day backtracking and investigating what we have," said Ekblad. "We checked out the backgrounds of almost all the former employees and we contacted 15 of them personally. But we haven't come up with anything yet."

In addition, Mundelein police told Ekblad they were looking for a man who was wanted in connection with a bank robbery in their town in which the robber wielded

a knife and threatened bank employees. So far, the two incidents have not been connected.

MRS. MARJE EVERETT, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, operator of Arlington Park and owners of the gas station where Tallon was murdered, yesterday offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest or conviction of the person or persons involved in the murder.

Also, police said, they expect other individuals and companies to offer a money reward in a further attempt to find Tallon's assailant.

Police said a squad car visited Tallon at the station about 10 minutes before the murder occurred. They said policemen sometimes visit the station five times a night during the midnight shift and that a squad car would have probably visited the station at about 3:30 a.m.

Ekblad said the station was the only one in Arlington Heights open 24 hours a day and that fairly heavy business probably would be handled between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. He said it isn't too busy after that and that is one of the reasons police occasionally visit the station.

AN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS resident told the Herald yesterday that he could possibly have been Tallon's last customer before the service station attendant was fatally stabbed early Tuesday morning.

"I talked with Mr. Tallon about 2 a.m. when I stopped at the station to return a gasoline can which I had borrowed earlier," the man said. "I ran out of gas just a few blocks from the station, and he filled the can with gas for me and asked that I please return it, since it was the only empty container he had."

"He was very nice to me, and when I returned the can, we talked for a few minutes. I asked him if it wasn't a little spooky working at the station all alone at night. He said no, but that it was a little lonely during the wee hours of the morning."

"Then I left to go home. There weren't any other customers in the station and I didn't notice any other people in the area when I left," he said.

Discuss Health, Welfare Programs

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take.

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

Items Taken from Car

John Cassidy, 800 S. Waverly, told Mount Prospect police Wednesday that automotive accessories valued at $250 were taken from his automobile while it was parked at his residence.

The equipment reported missing includes an 8-track stereo tape deck, nine tape cartridges and a citizen's band radio unit. The tape deck and radio were ripped from their mountings and entry into the car was apparently made by prying the door lock open with a wire, police said.

Apollo On Schedule

CAPE KENNEDY—Apollo 12 is back on schedule for its 11:22 a.m. EST blastoff today on man's second mission to the surface of the moon, following replacement of a faulty liquid hydrogen tank in the moonship which threatened the flight with a month delay.

Astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean did some last-minute tuning yesterday for their 10-day, $350 million expedition by zipping high over the moonport in T38 yet trainers.

Judge Debate Opens

WASHINGTON—The Senate opened formal debate yesterday on the nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the Supreme Court.

A bloc of uncommitted votes from both parties held the key to the confirmation. The latest UPI tally showed 45 senators, 34 Democrats and 11 Republicans, opposed to the President's nominee and 37, 17 Democrats and 20 Republicans, for him. That left 18 uncommitted — 12 Republicans and six Democrats.

2 Killed in Shootout

CHICAGO—A policeman and a youth who reportedly was associated with the Black Panther Party were killed yesterday in a shootout between police and at least three gunmen on the South Side.

Seven other policemen and one alleged assailant were wounded. The gun battle broke out after a woman summoned police, saying a man with a shotgun was in a vacant building and "I believe they're after my husband."

Ask Archives Records

CHICAGO—Attorney for the "Chicago Seven" said yesterday they will seek to obtain from the National Archives the records on which a government study team based its controversial report on street violence before and during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Defense attorney William Kunstler said he will subpoena Roy Cutler, executive director of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, in an effort to get the documents.

Predict Demo Inroads

Prominent Democrats said last night that 1970 will be the year for Democratic inroads into the suburbs at a rally honoring congressional candidate Edward Warman.

Before an audience of about 100 persons, Adlai Stevenson III, candidate for U.S. Senate and Edward Hanrahan, Cook County state's attorney, called on Democrats and Republicans to send Warman to Congress. The rally was held at the VFW hall in Arlington Heights.

Stevenson said that the job in Congress calls for a man "who understands that peace is the one condition of human survival." Stevenson identified Warman as a candidate "with no fixed ideology, a man who represents the people and who can do a job in Congress that can't be done by the extremists of the right and left."

STEVENSON'S COMMENTS were brief, but they touched off a standing ovation for the Senatorial candidate when he said, "Send Eddie Warman to Congress, where I am going to join him."

Hanrahan strongly endorsed Warman and then attacked Republican candidate Philip Crane's absentee ballot procedure during the primary race.

During the primary campaign, some absentee ballots for Crane were sent to Lake County homes in multiple quantities to facilitate the absentee ballot procedure for Crane's candidacy, which is legal under state law.

Ed Warman, the Democrat's choice to oppose conservative Philip Crane, told his audience last night that substantial numbers of Republican voters will stay away from the polls rather than vote for the Republican candidate.

Warman said 30 to 40 per cent of the Republicans will not vote Nov. 25 out of a strong refusal to back the conservative.

Warman then got right to the point of his candidacy by calling for faster troop withdrawals from South Vietnam. "We have been in that country for 15 years," he said. "It shouldn't take 15 years to train the South Vietnamese army to fight for their country. It is up to them now."

Moratorium Action Here Uneventful

by TOM WELLMAN

It was business as usual yesterday in High School Dist. 214's six high schools.

With the exception of a few armbands and an after-school discussion at Arlington High School, the first of two Vietnam Moratorium days were quiet, orderly and uneventful.

At Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, a group calling itself Students Supporting the President's Policies (SSPP) handed out American Flag buttons before school. At the same time another group handed out Moratorium buttons.

AT ELK GROVE High School it was a normal day, according to a school spokesman. A handful of students wore the increasingly familiar Moratorium armbands.

Arlington High School students scheduled a discussion after school. Ronald Kaufman, a teacher at Arlington, was to address students, and the students would then state their own positions on the war.

District officials said it would be difficult to determine how many students would miss classes today, when an afternoon student rally against the war will be held in the Grant Park bandshell in downtown Chicago.

IN A RELATED action, an Arlington

Heights resident notified Dist. 214 board president Arthur Aronson that a legal attempt to block Moratorium-related activities was being dropped.

J. O. Roeser of Arlington Heights is chairman of a group that announced last month it would seek an injunction to block Moratorium activities in the high schools.

The letter stated that Roeser's group concurred with the board's decision last Monday to limit Moratorium activities in the schools. It praised board members for discussing the issue at length.

At Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine, no unusual activities were reported. A spokesman said that one student would be traveling to Washington, D.C., this weekend to participate in war protests there.

AT HARPER, 30 faculty members have banded together to sponsor a teach-in from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today.

Seven faculty members will speak during three one-hour sessions to be held in Room E-106 and E-108 in the Lecture/Demonstration Center.

The program will be held from 11 to 2 so that it will not conflict with scheduled classes, according to a spokesman at the college.

AT 11 A.M., ROBERT Lokatos, an instructor in psychology, will moderate a program in E-106 that will feature Michael Bartos, associate professor of English and Robert Powell, chairman of the communications division.

At noon William Williamson, an instructor in philosophy, will moderate a discussion in E-106 that will include Sharon Alter, an instructor in history, and Angela D'Aversa, an instructor in political science.

At 1 p.m. in E-108 Williamson will moderate a program featuring Lokatos and Karen Kares, an English instructor.

Referendum Tomorrow

School Dist. 25 in Arlington Heights will seek authorization from residents tomorrow to sell building bonds at an increased interest rate. Polls for the referendum will be open from noon to 7 p.m. at the district's four junior high schools.

Approval of the referendum will permit the district to complete a three-year building program voters approved March 15. The program includes construction of Berkeley Elementary School, completion of Rand Junior High School and additions to Dunton, Olive, and Ivy Hill Schools.

A maximum interest rate of 6 per cent was listed on the ballot, at that time the legal limit on school bonds. Since March the interest rate has soared and Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie recently signed a bill raising the limit to 7 per cent.

THE DISTRICT PLANS to sell a part of the bond issue in December to pay current construction bills. At the present time the interest rate is hovering near and slightly over the 6 per cent limit and a "yes" vote on the referendum will give the district a better opportunity in the bond market.

The cost of the vote to the taxpayer will depend on the fluctuating market. If the district is successful in selling the remainder of the bond issue at 6 per cent, there will be no increase at all. If all the bonds are sold at the maximum 7 per cent level, the district estimates the additional cost to the owner of a $25,000 home would be 75 cents a year.

If voters turn down the request to raise the rate and the bond market remains above 6 per cent, the district has two alternatives. School officials said funds for the building program either would have to be borrowed from other categories, such as the educational fund, or bonds sold for shorter periods, which would push tax bills upward.

SCHOOL BONDS are usually sold with a 15 to 20-year pay-back period. If bonds were sold for a five or 10-year period the interest rates would be lower but the district would need funds faster to pay its debts.

Dist. 25 officials said approximately 200 school districts in the state will need special elections to insure success in the bond market.

Tomorrow's vote will be held at Thomas Junior High School, 303 E. Thomas St.; Rand Junior High, 2560 N. Arlington Heights Road; South Junior High, 314 S. Highland Ave.; and Miner Junior High, 1101 E. Miner St.

Hearing Set on Racing

Arlington Park's request for night racing next year will be heard by the Illinois Racing Board Wednesday.

A board spokesman said yesterday that 17 petitions will be considered and a decision by racing commissioners is expected the same day.

The major hassle is expected to be the night racing issue. The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) surveyed its membership during the last two weeks and announced that the vote was four to one in opposition to night racing.

Seek Red Car in Murder Case

by BARRY SIGALE

Arlington Heights police said yesterday that a delivery truck driver saw a red auto parked next to a gasoline pump at the exact time the attendant, Fred Tailon, 70, was robbed and brutally murdered.

Lt. George Ekblad, chief detective, said the unidentified driver passed by the Arlington Park Shell service station at about 3:15 a.m., the same time Tailon was repeatedly stabbed by an unknown assailant.

Wednesday, Ekblad theorized that the killer may have not acted alone. He said another person probably drove his car around the area and picked up the attacker after he left Tailon lying in front of a nearby house, where he sought help.

THE TRUCK DRIVER TOLD police he drove by the intersection of Euclid and Wilke roads and turned around about two blocks away and headed back to the station. When he got to the station, Ekblad said, the red car was gone.

Police spent most of the day yesterday checking into the past records and background of about 30 persons formerly employed at the station.

"We spent all day backtracking and investigating what we have," said Ekblad.

"We checked out the backgrounds of almost all the former employees and we contacted 15 of them personally. But we haven't come up with anything yet."

In addition, Mundelein police told Ekblad they were looking for a man who is wanted in connection with a bank robbery in their town in which the robber wielded a knife and threatened bank employees. So far, the two incidents have not been connected.

MRS. MARJE EVERETT, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, operator of Arlington Park and owners of the gas station where Tailon was murdered, yesterday offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest or conviction of the person or persons involved in the murder.

Also, police said, they expect other individuals and companies to offer a money reward in a further attempt to find Tailon's assailant.

Police said a squad car visited Tailon at the station about 10 minutes before the murder occurred. They said policemen sometimes visit the station five times a night during the midnight shift and that a squad car would have probably visited the station at about 3:30 a.m.

Ekblad said the station was the only one in Arlington Heights open 24 hours a day and that fairly heavy business probably would have been handled between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. He said it isn't too busy after that and that is one of the reasons police occasionally visit the station.

AN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS resident told the Herald yesterday that he could possibly have been Tailon's last customer before the service station attendant was fatally stabbed early Tuesday morning.

"I talked with Mr. Tailon about 2 a.m. when I stopped at the station to return a gasoline can which I had borrowed earlier," the man said. "I ran out of gas just a few blocks from the station, and he filled the can with gas for me and asked that I please return it, since it was the only empty container he had."

"He was very nice to me, and when I returned the can, we talked for a few minutes. I asked him if it wasn't a little spooky working at the station all alone at night. He said no, but that it was a little lonely during the wee hours of the morning."

"Then I left to go home. There weren't any other customers in the station and I didn't notice any other people in the area when I left," he said.

Study Storm Sewer Plan

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) decided to explore the feasibility of installing storm sewers on Princeton, Patton and Harvard streets at their informal hearing last night.

Approximately 60 residents from Patton, Princeton, Harvard, Salem and Fernandez attended the hearing which was held to hear the residents' objections to the proposed paving of the five streets and the proposed storm sewer on Salem from Northwest Highway to Oakton and on Fernandez, from Oakton to the high school.

The preliminary estimated cost of the entire Salem and Fernandez improvements was announced at approximately $226,000. The cost for Patton, Princeton and Harvard, without storm sewers, was nearly $61,000.

Many of the residents expressed their concern over the cost of the project and whether it was really needed. Village Engineer Allan Sander told the audience that any time a new street was put in, a storm sewer was put in also.

One resident suggested that Patton, Harvard and Princeton have storm sewers installed besides having the streets paved.

Grins That Show Teeth

On Sundays Robin Curtin and her long red hair drive east on Euclid. Sometimes she drives and sometimes she goes with friends. Robin has a lot of friends.

Robin and her red hair stay on Euclid a long time. Euclid becomes Lake and soon runs into Sheridan Road. If you make a right and follow the curving road, you'll be there in a minute or two. Robin has been there many times.

You see it first out of the corner of your right eye. It rises out of the midwestern soil like an architect's dream, glimmering in the sun with white pillars, like secret telescopes to the sky, surrounding its nine sides.

IT IS THE BAHAI' House of Worship, the only Baha'i temple in the United States. Robin goes there for the same reason you go to church. Robin, of the long red hair, is a Baha'.

She lives in Skarsdale, works in a bank and looks like any other attractive, 19-year-old with red hair. But she isn't. Because what she's doing is different.

But Robin is doing it. She devoutly, seriously and wholly believes in the tenets of the Baha'i faith. And, surprisingly enough, without knowing it, so may you.

For the Baha'is don't really believe in anything that's strange. They believe in one God, one religion and one mankind.

They believe in Moses, Christ, Buddha and the other acknowledged prophets of God.

They believe in the basic unity of all religions, condemnations of all forms of prejudice, harmony between religion and science, compulsory education, abolition of extreme wealth and extreme poverty, the glorification of justice and the goal of a permanent, universal peace for mankind.

THAT'S A SUPERFICIAL, quick look at the Baha'i faith. Robin knows a lot more about it. She became interested when she realized the civil rights movement and the peace movements which she was involved in were only flimsy bandages for the cuts and scrapes of the world.

She's found the Baha'i faith to have permanence and scope a bandage hasn't.

Last Sunday I was at the Baha'i temple with Robin. I met old, black, young and Indian Baha'is. Matronly women and bell-bottomed flower children. Suits, saris and paint-spotted jeans.

The only common denominator was the smiling. Everyone smiled. Smiles that weren't forced. The kind where your teeth show. The kind that makes the person you're smiling at wonder what the hell you're smiling at.

And Robin, red-haired Robin from Arlington Heights, smiled too. It was kind of nice.

Discuss Health, Welfare Programs

State aid to non-public schools, low-income housing, public health facilities and day-care centers were among the topics discussed yesterday at an open meeting at the home of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Chapman called the meeting to discuss health and welfare programs and problems with local residents. About 30 persons attended.

Mrs. Chapman remarked that better cooperation between volunteer and governmental agencies in all areas, not only in the area of education, should be developed.

In response to a question concerning her opinion on state aid to non-public schools, Mrs. Chapman said, "I will vote 'yes' on a bill to provide state aid to non-public schools when a good bill is presented to the legislature." She added that past bills on the matter were "not good bills."

She said more research into this question should be undertaken by the legislature, and she remarked the recently formed state commission headed by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, that was formed to study the problem was the appropriate means to take."

She said "more opportunity for shared time" programs between public and non-public schools to meet the same standards, as the public schools. "At the present time the state has no laws requiring non-public schools to employ certified teachers," she explained.

An explanation of New Communities, a recently-formed group seeking to build a new economically-integrated community in the Northwest suburbs, was offered by Mrs. Jane Broten, a member of the organization.

Mrs. Broten said the group now has 100 members, some from the immediate area and others from as far away as Skokie and Barrington.

"We feel there are no immediate solutions to this problem, but we are seeking to establish long-term goals," Mrs. Broten explained.

"One of the things I like about it (New Communities) is that there is a definite attempt to involve industry," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

She added local industries "suffer the most" from the lack of low and moderate income housing in the area. "They find it difficult to get people to accept employment due to transportation and housing problems." "New Communities wants to create a balanced community which would provide a variety of homes, both expensively and moderately priced, so that a person could buy a home no matter what his price range."

Representatives from the Cook County Public Health Department discussed the work of their organization, such as the "well-baby" clinic set up once a month in Wheeling and Hanover Park and the department's immunization services.

They remarked that the department provides medical care not only for indigent persons but those with higher incomes also.

They added one of their biggest problems was making the public more aware of the services available to them through the department's Des Plaines office.

Mrs. Chapman said a new day-care bill recently passed by the legislature would encourage the establishment of non-profit day-care centers in the state.

"Unfortunately the funds for this program were cut, so our area probably won't get much of the money," she explained.

"The areas of greatest need, such as East St. Louis and Chicago, will receive the maximum benefit."

Accept $703,060 Construction Bids

Board members of School Dist. 25 in Arlington Heights last night accepted bids in the amount of $703,060 for the construction of Berkley Elementary School and for additions to Dunton and Olive schools.

The construction, which will begin Monday, is slated for completion next September. Berkley School will be on the Rand Junior High School site and will serve the Berkley Square area. Dunton, in south Arlington Heights, and Olive, in the north section, are now busing students to other schools and the building program should provide adequate space for neighborhood children.

IN OTHER BUSINESS the board heard a report from John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. He said the first section of a new building for the trainable mentally handicapped student would open in the spring of 1971.

Vocational units for junior and senior high school students and young adults will open in 1972. The new building, which will be used by 10 school districts, is located on Plum Grove Road in Palatine.

Night Race Hearing Set

from horse owners and trainers, was 492 against and 132 in favor of racing under the floodlights.

About 20 per cent of the owners opposed to night racing said they were willing to race their horses on Friday or Saturday night if the programs were presented earlier, insuring a final race long before midnight.

The HBPA represents only the thoroughbred racing industry. Harness horse owners, who race their steeds at night and who would be in direct competition with Arlington Park, are also expected to oppose the petition. Spokesmen from all segments of the harness industry appeared at a racing board meeting in August to protest the race track's request for an eight-night racing experiment.

ARLINGTON PARK'S application for 1969 lists racing dates from June 22 to Sept. 14. An additional 30-day period may be added from mid-May to June 22 if the racing board decides that the Balmoral meet, owned by William Miller, should be held at Arlington Park again in 1970.

Miller has submitted two applications to the board, one for Arlington and one for Washington Park, and it is up to the board to make the final decision. Miller has a contract with Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, the owners of both tracks, which has two more years to run.

The Illinois Legislature is also investigating the effects of night racing. Charges were made in the legislature recently that the racing board acted improperly in giving night dates to Arlington Park this year and that the state lost money because of the switch from day to night racing.

While Arlington Park attracted 10,700 more fans to the race track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,288,500. The state receives a percentage of all money bet at race tracks during the year.

Planning Aid Sought

Merle Guild Post 208 of the American Legion will install new officers at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

The installation of officers for the 1970 year will take place at the Legion home, 121 N. Douglas, Arlington Heights. Incoming Post officers are William F. Griffith, commander; Theodore Kane, senior vice commander; Robert Koenig, first junior vice commander; Carl Hart, second junior vice commander; Hugh Kibbie, finance officer; Thornton Tongue, adjutant; Al Mitchell, chaplain; William Groh, historian; Carl Bloom, sergeant at arms; Leon Schroder, assistant sergeant at arms; Olaf Kolari, service officer; Harold Klingner, judge advocate.

INSTALLING OFFICER for the ceremonies will be Emil Eck, ninth district senior vice commander.

The installation of this year's post commander will bring a touch of nostalgia to some members of the post.

William Griffith will be installed with the aid of his father, C. Leslie Griffith, who was post commander in 1936 and was a former member of local village government.

In other action, the Merle Guild Post of the Legion passed a resolution this week calling for citizens to display their flags on Saturday to demonstrate support for the precepts of the American Constitution.

ID RATHER SWITCH than fight. Workers for Democratic 13th District candidate Ed Warman reported that they were passing out "Republican for Warman" buttons and stickers yesterday morning and more than 120 of them were grabbed up in 90 minutes at the Arlington Heights train station.

QUESTIONING AN application for the use of Pioneer Park for a moratorium rally, park board members were told that speakers at the rally would express only anti-war views. Park Board Pres. Charles Cronin asked, "How can you understand it if you only talk about one side?"

OVERDUE AND UNWANTED. Mrs. Florence Henderson, library board member, reported that she saw some youngsters filling the east book deposit box of the library with pecan shells from around the shrubbery.

PROMPT: An Arlington Heights resident for 17 years recently received a call from the Welcome Wagon. "I bet I've lived here longer than you have," the resident told the caller.

STUDYING a list of expenses for the month, park board members noted an item for about $200 in repair bills for vandalism to pool tables at Pioneer and Recreation parks. The damage was a result of deliberate damage and park Board Pres. Charles Cronin said, "I don't understand why kids do this."

AN EXPENDITURE of $150 for footballs was questioned by park board members who couldn't understand why the bill was so large. Park Director Thomas Thornton explained the item was mislabeled and included more miscellaneous recreation items than just footballs.

MINI-CULTURE. Some PTA bulletins now include a culture calendar for young children. Suitable plays for children in Chicago and the suburbs, exhibitions at the Art Institute and appropriate TV shows are included in the listings. Parents will have to scramble to keep up with the younger set.

STALLED? The plan commission's parking standards committee hasn't met since Ronald Riba, the committee's chairman, resigned from the plan commission last summer. James T. Ryan remarked that "the committee is parked."

REINCARNATION? After discussing the qualities that a city planner must possess and listing the functions he may have to perform, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson told the joint future planning committee that he didn't think such a man was available. Trustee Burt Thompson said, "You mean there's no young Rudy Hanson around."

Prayer for Peace Set

An ecumenical peace service, "Celebration for Peace," will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the St. John's United Church of Christ at 308 N. Evergreen in Arlington Heights. Sponsor of the event is the AHEAD Committee of Arlington Heights.

The purpose of the service is to "give people a place in the area to pray for peace during the November moratorium," said one of the coordinators of the service.

Included in the service will be an opening drama and contemporary and traditional music. The service will close with each person lighting a "peace" candle.

Both adults and children are invited to attend tomorrow's service.

Concordia Choir To Sing

The Kapelle Choir of Concordia Teachers College, River Forest, will sing at Faith Lutheran Church's services on Sunday.

Services are held at 8 and 10:45 a.m. at 431 S. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights.

The 60-voice choir, under the direction of Thomas Gieschen, recently returned from a world concert tour. The choir spent two months visiting overseas mission stations in the Orient and Europe.

The young men and women who sing in the choir are students at Concordia Teachers College who are preparing for full-time service to the church in the ministry of teaching and Christian education.

Concordia College is owned and operated by the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod.

PREPARING FOR Saturday night's "People Party," Mrs. James Booth watches Mrs. Emmanuel Thompson pin a sample nametag for the party on Mrs. George Miller. The event is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Human Relations Committee and will be held at the St. James Parish Center, 814 N. Arlington Heights Road.
